U. S. ASSISTANCE ASKED BY LABOR ON UNION ISSUE

PERMANENT BOARD URGED BY PERKINS

Motor Manufacturing Centers Likened To 'Tinder Box' by Advocates of Governmental Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Labor today began a major campaign for government assistance in winning industrial recognition of unions and equality of bargaining power between workingmen and their employers.

At the national labor board, a hearing called to try to prevent widespread strikes in the automobile industry brought demands from American Federation of Labor men that employers be made to recognize their unions coupled with warnings that the auto plants were "like a tinder box" to which a match would be touched unless prompt action were taken toward satisfying the men.

At the capitol, Secretary Perkins joined Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and other witnesses in urging the senate labor committee to approve Wagner's bill which would create a permanent labor board and outlaw employer influence over the organization of employes.

Today's were the first hearings on the measure, much opposed by leading industrialists.

As the automobile workers testified, leaders of that industry sat waiting their turn to answer the claims and demands. The automobile executives were resting upon yesterday's call by their code authority for a 36-

$50,000 Is Recovered In S. C. Bank Hold-Up

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) Solution within a week of the South Carolina National bank robbery at Greenville and recovery of the missing $50,000 was announced today by the justice department.

Under arrest in the case were Hugh White, bookkeeper of the bank; Officers John Corea and John Lindsay, of the Greenville police department, and Robert Willomen, a gasoline service station operator. Justice investigators said White confessed "that the purported robbery was premeditated by himself" and three others.

The alleged robbery took place March 8 when White reported he had been robbed on his way to the bank from the postoffice with a registered package containing $50,000.

ACTION POSTPONED ON COTTON BILL; VOTE SEEN TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—The Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill, scheduled for house action today, was side-tracked by the rush of action on veterans' legislation.

Proponents of the measure were hopeful that the way would be cleared for action tomorrow.

While the cotton legislation marked time, a cheering note came from the department of agriculture which in a report announced that the 24,969,000 running bales of cotton used by mills in this and other countries in the year ended January 31 represented a 10 per cent increase over the previous year.

While sponsors of the bill hope it can be forced to a vote tomorrow, since it is open for amendment, action may be delayed until Friday.

Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, of the agriculture committee, said that several important amendments were to be offered by certain opponents of the legislation in addition to a few perfecting amendments to be submitted by the committee.

"We expect the measure will pass by a safe margin," Jones said.

About an hour of general debate remains to be consumed. During it, Representative Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, co-author, will conclude argument for the measure.

The bill has the approval of President Roosevelt. It limits production in the coming cotton year to 10,000,000 bales and imposes a tax of 50 per cent of the market value of cotton produced in excess of quotas allocated farmers.

Meanwhile, world cotton consumption by mills was reported by the bureau of agriculture economics to have totaled 24,969,000 running bales during the 12 months ended January 31, 1934, compared with 22,676,000 bales during the preceding year, an increase of 10 per cent.

Consumption of American cotton during the same period was 14,338,000 bales compared with 13,051,000 bales during the preceding year, also a 10 per cent increase.

Most of the increase in world consumption came during the first six months of the year when 12,450,000

Col. Gasser Named Chief of Staff Here

Colonel Lorenzo D. Gasser, who commanded the American troops at Shanghai during the Japanese attacks in 1931 and who is now in Manila, has been named chief of staff of the fourth corps army area under Major General George Van Horn Moseley to succeed Colonel Lewis Brown Jr., who is at Denver on sick leave, it was announced Wednesday as Colonel Gasser prepared to sail from Manila on Saturday.

Colonel Gasser is expected to arrive in Atlanta after spending two months at his home in Tiffin, Ohio. Advices that he sails Saturday for Tiffin were received by a brother-in-law, Ralph Sugre, of Tiffin, by cable.

Colonel Gasser served on the army's general staff during the world war. General Moseley said Wednesday night that he had communicated with Colonel Gasser, whom he described as a "very fine officer," by cable several weeks ago and advised him that he need not report here until summer. Colonel Brown, who is expected back at Fort McPherson in the late summer, probably will be assigned to lighter duties until he fully recovers his health, it was said.

BIG NEGRO SCHOOL, 4 OTHER BUILDINGS DESTROYED IN FIRE

Holmes Institute, 2 Apartments, 2 Houses Are Burned as Thousands of Atlantans Look On.

Fanned by a stiff breeze and spreading in a manner that reminded many persons of the disastrous 1917 blaze, a fire which caught and destroyed the Holmes Institute, five-story negro school at 411 Hilliard street, early Thursday morning threatened the thickly populated section at Forrest avenue and Hilliard street while firemen called out on two alarms battled to get the fire under control.

Shortly after the fire was discovered at midnight, it had gutted the institute, an adjacent apartment building and two houses in the rear of the institute, and was burning another apartment building. Residents of the neighborhood were out in force on the roofs of their homes, using garden hose and brooms to extinguish sparks which were carrying as far as Felton drive, a distance of several blocks.

Occupants of houses and apartments close to the site of the institute were evacuating their homes, taking their prized possessions with them as the flames appeared gaining headway.

The midnight fire was the second big blaze in the vicinity within 12 hours, and may have originated from smouldering sparks left from the first blaze, which destroyed an apartment building and six houses. Another fire during the day damaged three houses on Berean avenue at Nos. 163, occupied by H. C. Brooks, 159, occupied by C. W. Howsley, and 165, occupied by A. J. Brookside.

In the earlier fire in the Holmes Institute section, the blaze started at 15 Felton drive from an undetermined origin, and spread to 12, 21 and 23 Felton drive, 388 Pine street, and 397 Merritts avenue. The apartment house was at 401 Merritts avenue.

The Holmes Institute, a five-story and basement brick building, was occupied by a number of students who were led to safety through the flames. Reports indicated that all of the occupants got out of the building.

Telephone and power posts and lines in the vicinity caught from the sparks, and employes of the utilities were kept busy cutting power lines in the danger area and extinguishing fires on pole-tops.

Attracted by the fire-sirens and the glow in the sky, thousands of Atlantans turned out as spectators, and automobiles were parked for many blocks in all directions.

Houses in the rear of the institute which caught fire were on Currier place. Sparks caught fire to a brick apartment house at 386 Felton drive, but this place was quickly gotten under control.

The Holmes Institute is headed by the Rev. B. R. Holmes, negro, a pioneer in education of his race, who has frequently obtained help from the Fulton county commission for his institution.

3 STATES FIGHT $3 GEORGIA TAGS

Louisiana, Connecticut and Alabama Arresting Users of $3 Licenses.

Two states, Louisiana and Connecticut, Wednesday opened warfare on Georgia's $3 tags and Alabama continued its drive against them, as Governor Eugene Talmadge promptly came to the defense of those discommoded by the acts of the other states.

From Louisiana came reports that all cars bearing Georgia tags were being stopped and the drivers made to identify themselves as bona fide residents of Georgia before being allowed to continue, while in Connecticut similar action was reported, although not on as extensive a scale as in Louisiana.

Governor Talmadge telephoned Governor O. K. Allen, of Louisiana, at Baton Rouge, and the chief executive of that state assured him that Georgia drivers would be shown every courtesy while in his state. However, reports from New Orleans said that motorists still were being stopped and their cars stored until they were able to prove themselves residents of this state.

Colonel E. P. Roy, of the Louisiana state police, said at New Orleans that motorists illegally equipped with Georgia tags would be forced to buy proper license plates before being permitted to drive their cars in Louisiana.

In Connecticut, a CWA worker has been arrested and faces prosecution for driving a car with Georgia tags.

Alabama is carrying on a constant warfare against the Georgia tags under an authorization issued several months ago by Governor B. M. Miller, who told S. R. Butler, state tax commissioner, and Captain L. G. Smith, state highway director, that "Alabama residents must buy Alabama tags—that's all," it was revealed Wednesday.

Georgia motorists are allowed 30 days' stay in Alabama under a visitor's stay with a Georgia tag, but after that period expires they must buy Alabama tags ranging in price from $11.75 to $30 on a weight basis, it was said.

Numerous arrests have been report-

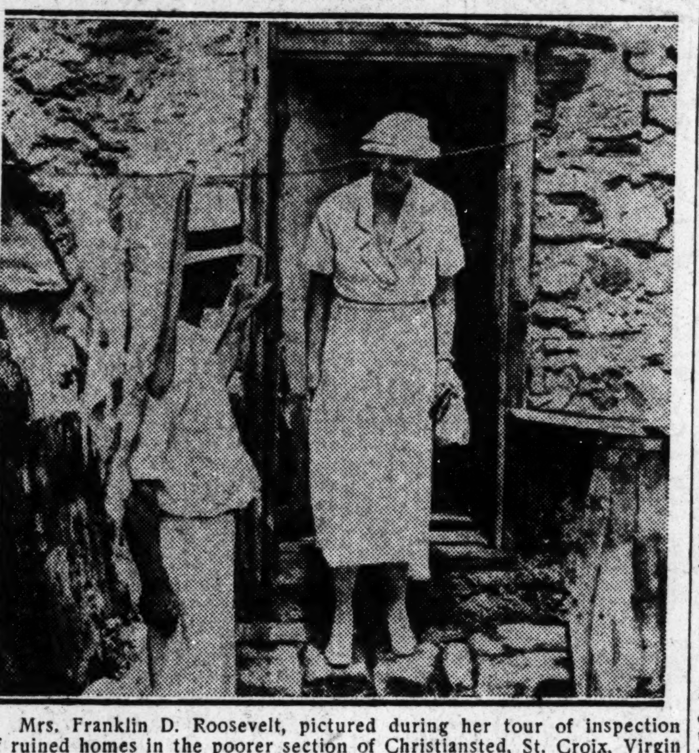
First Lady's Homeward Trip From Puerto Rico Set Today



Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pictured during her tour of inspection of ruined homes in the poorer section of Christiansted, St. Croix, Virgin Islands, during her flying tour of the Caribbean.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 14.—(AP)—At his first press conference since taking charge of the affairs of the island, Governor General Blanton Winship said today that the visit of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a great thing for Puerto Rico.

He said he was struck by Mrs. Roosevelt's keen interest in every phase of island problems and that he felt certain that Puerto Rico will benefit in many ways as a result of her personal study of conditions.

"Mrs. Roosevelt has given much attention to the island's plight, and while it is hard to immediately offset the effects of three hurricanes in four years, yet I think she will be able to do much to help bring the situation back to normal," he said.

He added that Puerto Rico is happy to have such a full report made for the president.

The wife of the president will return to the United States tomorrow by airplane.

She reviewed the reserve officers training corps today at the University of Puerto Rico. The cadets and coeds cheered her when she arrived and left.

During the day she shopped, began her packing, and inspected the school of tropical medicine. At the school she talked with research workers about hookworm and tuberculosis on the island.

Later she paid a visit to the convent of the Sisters of Notre Dame where she received a large consignment of needlework which she arranged to purchase on a previous visit last Saturday.

Mrs. Roosevelt was informed that handkerchiefs for the president were embroidered at the same table at which a vestment was being made for Pope Pius XI.

IL DUCE, DOLLFUSS DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Austrian View of Central European Scene Given Italian Premier.

ROME, March 14.—(AP)—The Austrian view of the central European scene was given Premier Mussolini today by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria, as a supplement to conferences Il Duce has had with the Hungarian premier, Julius Goemboes.

From the exchange of plans, hopes and opinions the three leaders were expected to evolve decisions of far-reaching import involving, it was generally agreed, a closer relationship among the three countries.

Premier Goemboes, who talked with Mussolini yesterday, was not at the council table today, but the three men sat at an exhibition of horsemanship and again tonight at a sumptuous state banquet Premier Mussolini gave in honor of his guests in Venezia palace.

Only Austrian and Hungarian diplomatic representatives attended the dinner, along with high Italian officials, including American Ambassador Long and his staff, were present at a reception given after the banquet.

It had been understood that the three conferees would meet together, but at the last minute it became known that Mussolini would receive the visitors separately. Well-informed persons believed the separate conferences would be the best approach to an agreement.

Four Possible Results.

1—A military alliance.

2—A customs union or economic alliance.

3—A consultative pact, wherein each power would agree to consult the other two before taking any action that might react upon them.

4—Limited agreements for increases in commercial exchanges.

Well-informed circles excluded the first two. A military alliance, they

GEORGIAN IS SAILOR ON ILL-FATED VESSEL

I. C. Walker, 22, of Wrightsville, Ga., a nephew of Mrs. J. E. Stewart, of 1541 Bankhead avenue, was one of the seamen aboard the Fulton when the ship was burned, his aunt said Wednesday night. Members of the family had not heard from Walker since the fire, but expressed hope that he was not one of the injured. Walker has been in the navy for about eight months, spending most of the time in California up to three months ago when he joined the Fulton. Mrs. Stewart said that she received a letter from Walker, who frequently visited the family here, about two weeks ago.

HONG KONG, China, March 15.—(Thursday.) — (AP) — The 187 men aboard the United States gunboat Fulton when flames enveloped her during a heavy storm were brought safely to this port early today.

Three of the crew were injured. One suffered smoke in the lungs, another had a broken arm, and the third a broken leg. Their names were not available. The Fulton was on patrol duty against pirates.

Their rescue by the British destroyer H. M. S. Wishart and the Chinese steamer Tsinan was an example of wonderful seamanship, the survivors related.

Commander Todd, of the Wishart, brought his craft alongside the ill-fated ship at a great risk in a heavy sea.

Twice huge waves forced the two vessels apart, but the Wishart returned and each time took men off. The Fulton's two launches and whaleboat

Zack Cravey To Order Arrest Of 15 Owners of Seized Game

Zack D. Cravey, state commissioner of game and fish, announced Wednesday that he would swear out warrants today for the 15 prominent Atlantans whose names were tagged to a quantity of quail and other game found stored Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Commissioner Cravey said that under the law he could do nothing but prosecute, even though a poll of sportsmen showed that not one in 10 knew that to keep game for longer than three days after it is killed is against the law.

The 15 persons to be accused all are prominent in the business and social life of the city.

The commissioner said he had been advised by legal experts that he could do nothing but let the law take its course.

Perhaps it is just as well for Commissioner Cravey said he had been authorized to quote E. B. Whitehead, of Savannah, federal game warden, as saying that if the state of Georgia did not act to prosecute the 15 Atlantans he would have to take action against them in the federal courts. It is presumed that if the state prosecutes there will be no federal action.

Under the game and fish law violations are misdemeanors and the cases, if made, will be tried before Judge Jesse M. Wood, of the criminal court of Atlanta, who upon conviction may mete out any sentence he chooses up to 12 months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 or both.

It was reported Wednesday that another prominent Atlanta club which had stored game for its members had disposed of the game after hearing of the "raid" on the driving club.

HOUSE DEFEATS WIDE VET RAISES, VOTES PAY HIKE

Taber's Compromise Adopted by 189-92; Increase of 10 Per Cent in Federal Salaries Approved.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—After once breaking away from administration leaders, the house settled down tonight and adopted compromise proposals on veterans and federal pay legislation contained in the controverted independent offices supply bill.

This action came at the close of a long day which had seen democrats join with republicans and farmer-laborites in an uprising aginst administration desires that the measure be sent to conference with the senate for a settlement satisfactory to President Roosevelt who had threatened a veto.

As dispatched to conference tonight, the measure included the $90,000,000 Taber compromise proposal for increased benefits to former soldiers and the Vinson amendment restoring 5 per cent of government salaries on February 1 and another 5 on July 1.

Restoration of Pay.

The senate originally had overstepped the administration to boost veterans' benefits about $118,000,000 and direct a 5 per cent restoration of federal pay now and the full 15 per cent on July 1.

Confronted by the veto threat, the house voted 222 to 191 for the proposal of Representative Taber, republican, New York, and 185 to 101 for the pay restoration proposition of Representative Vinson, democrat, Georgia.

On the Taber compromise, 201 democrats were joined by 21 republicans in voting for it while 97 democrats, 89 republicans and five farmer-laborites voted against. Speaker Rainey also voted for.

The Vinson pay restoration amendment was estimated to cost $28,000,000 to June 30, 1934, and from $125,000,000 to $130,000,000 for the next fiscal year compared with $190,000,000 estimated as the cost of the full 15 per cent restoration provided in the senate amendments.

Altogether the senate amendments were estimated to increase the bill by $354,000,000.

Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, leader of the fight for the adoption of the senate amendments, forced a second vote on each of the compromises in a final effort to get the house to reverse itself.

Rule Is Defeated.

Earlier in the day, the veteran bloc joined by republicans and farmer-laborites, successfully defeated administration leaders' effort to bind the house to send the bill to conference under a rule preventing votes on pay and veterans. The vote was 247 to 169, with 131 democrats bolting their caucus rule under which they were supposed to be bound.

ATLANTAN VICTIM OF 'RIDE' BANDITS

J. B. Belcher Robbed of $43; Police Receive New, Deadly Armament.

"Ride and rob" bandits resumed activities in Atlanta late Wednesday afternoon when J. B. Belcher, of 30 Capitol square, was taken for a ride by two white men and robbed of $43 in cash.

After a quiet day on the crime front, featured by delivery to the police department of new and deadly armament in its war on crime, Belcher reported the robbery to police shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday night. He said he was driving on Butler street under the railroad bridge when a man apparently drunk staggered out in front of him.

When Belcher slowed down to avoid striking the "drunk," another man and the inebriate jumped on his car and forced him to relinquish the wheel. They covered him with pistols and drove his car out Fair street to South Boulevard and the Decatur street underpass, where they were stopped by a red light. While stopped one of the men took Belcher's money and jumped from the machine and the other jumped out and escaped after

Insull Expulsion Scheduled Today

ATHENS, Greece, March 14.—(AP) The Greek government today ordered the expulsion tomorrow of Samuel Insull Sr., fugitive utilities operator, but there appeared to be some question whether the deadline set will actually be adhered to by the authorities.

It was announced that police officers will escort the Chicagoan to the frontier tomorrow some time. However, some quarters intimated that a full agreement has not yet been reached on the method of expulsion, and there may be a delay of one or two days.

The liner Statendam, here on a cruise, sails Thursday en route to the United States, and there were some reports that Insull might be placed aboard this ship.

Murder 'Victim' Appears To Free Seven Suspects

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., March 14.—(AP)—"Uncle Billy" Martin, for whose "slaying" his brother and six negroes have been arrested, returned today in good health with the explanation he had been "south for a while."

Martin dropped from sight January 1 and during an investigation of his disappearance charred bones, identified as those of a human, were found in a deserted cabin on the farm of his brother, Felix Martin, near here. Later Duck river was dragged in an effort to find parts of the body.

The missing man's reappearance caused intense excitement. Those held for his "murder" were ordered released. Martin said he knew nothing of the disturbance his absence had caused.

PACT WITH CANADA ON ST. LAWRENCE BEATEN IN SENATE

Ratification Refused by 42 Against to 46 for It. Roosevelt Plans To Resubmit Proposal.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) The senate today forcefully rejected the St. Lawrence seaway pact for which President Roosevelt had fought for half a decade as both chief executive of the nation and governor of New York.

Ratification was refused by a vote of 42 against the pact with Canada to 46 for it, giving the Roosevelt administration its first defeat on legislation backed by it. A two-thirds majority was required for approval.

Warned, by his lieutenants at the capitol that defeat impended, President Roosevelt announced even before the vote that as soon as circumstances permitted he would resubmit the treaty and again ask that it be approved.

The first reaction from the foes of the compact was that such a course would only bring about a second defeat for the president. But second thought brought the conclusion his chances would be considerably heightened if, when the treatry again goes to the capitol it included provisions guaranteeing United States sovereignty over Lake Michigan or proposed a pact with Canada on power development.

Would Favor Power Treaty.

"If a power treaty is offered, I'd vote for it."

It was from the western water-power states that the administration drew many of the 46 votes which fell far short of the necessary two-thirds. The 42 votes the opposition mustered against ratification (22 were democratic and 20 republican), came from districts in which it was argued the northern ship route would sap away commerce now beneficial to those sections.

There was a feeling that despite Mr. Roosevelt's decision to try for ratification again at the first opportunity, the treaty would not reappear on the floor of the senate at

Salvador Explosion Kills 150 Persons

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, March 14.—(AP)—An explosion of 250 cases of dynamite at the near by port of La Libertad today caused approximately 150 deaths, injuries to many more, and widespread property damage.

The dynamite was being unloaded from a ship when it exploded in a cellar and caught fire. The cause of the blast could not be determined exactly since all those handling the explosives were killed.

Among those killed were four customs agents and a telegraph operator.

Firemen, Red Cross workers and national guardsmen were rushed from San Salvador to the scene of the disaster, which occurred at 7 a. m. A temporary disruption of communication facilities delayed reports of the tragedy.

NEW LEGISLATION FOR MERGER URGED

ARMY WILL RESUME MAIL FLYING TODAY

The army air corps this afternoon will resume mail flying in and out of Atlanta, but only one of the four old routes will be retained. The mail will be flown only on the Atlanta to Washington route, the routes between here and Jacksonville, here and New Orleans and here and Chicago having been dropped.

The army will fly mail between Jacksonville and New York by way of Savannah.

Under the schedule to be inaugurated today, the plane will leave Atlanta at 1:30 in the afternoon and arrive in Washington at 8:15 at night. The southbound plane will leave Washington at 4:30 a. m. and arrive in Atlanta at 11:05 a. m.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's order for a study of aviation intended to produce a new air policy tonight promised to revive the bitter controversy that began with Brigadier General William Mitchell's frank utterances in 1925 and has continued sporadically since.

Meanwhile, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh split with the administration tonight for a second time on the operation of the air mail system, declining to serve on a special committee to study the army's mail flying.

Colonel Lindbergh, who conferred with Secretary Dern Saturday on general aviation practices at the latter's request, was invited by Dern to serve with Orville Wright, Clarence Chamberlain and other prominent aviators on a special committee to determine the "adequacy and efficiency" of the army's technical flying equipment and training for mail carrying.

Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army corps, urged one federal unit for the control of military aviation. The review that Mr. Roosevelt set in motion today may extend that proposed control to civil flying as well.

The speculation that the result of the inquiry into all phases of flying will lead to administration recommendations for one governmental agency to supervise aviation went so far that Mitchell's name was mentioned as a possible head of the unit.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, made it plain he intended to await the results of the inquiry before taking any action. It was said at the White House the president now has no immediate plans for the organization of a separate air corps, although Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, the majority leader, predicted yesterday that would be the outcome of the furore over the air mail.

There is still strong opposition to a combination of service aviation units in the high command of both the army and navy.

Only a little while after Mr. Roosevelt directed the study today, Secretary Swanson expressed "doubt whether efficiency or economy could be served" by taking the marine corps air force from the navy and placing it elsewhere.

Chairman McSwain of the house military committee said, however, that Senator Robinson had urged the "very set-up for aeronautics that I have been publicly advocating for the last 10 or 12 years."

Attention was directed momentarily

U. S. Aid To Avert Fla. School Closing

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 14. (AP)—In a joint announcement tonight, Governor Dave Sholtz and Julius F. Stone Jr., acting relief administrator for Florida, said they had "worked out a plan to prevent the closing of the public schools of Florida in this crisis."

The relief administration agreed to provide salaries to "needy teachers in school districts whose resources are exhausted," the statement said, while the state government agreed to insure "all other operating costs, including the transportation of pupils."

COUNTY HIKES PAY OF 75 EMPLOYES

Deputies and Clerks Will Go Back to $150 Salary Per Month.

Salary increases were ordered Wednesday by the board of county commissioners for about 75 men including deputy sheriffs and clerks who had been reduced from $200 to less than $150, these men being restored to the $150 mark. Small increases also were voted for 25 employes at the reformatory.

The increases, according to Chairman George F. Longino, upon whose motion the action was taken, will amount to an annual expenditure of about $15,000. Mr. Longino stated, however, that the board's policy of not filling vacancies as they occur, and elimination of jobs which will occur during the year, will reduce this amount considerably, if not take care of it altogether.

An appropriation of $400 was made for expenses of the federal re-employment office. W. B. Doke, appearing before the board, stated that with the city's appropriation of $250 per month for January, February and March, this sum would enable the bureau to continue operations, in view of decreased operating expenses brought about by the federal government taking over the new postoffice building on March 15. Mr. Doke stated that the bureau placed 100 men last week.

Under a decision reached by the board, the CWA will be asked for an appropriation for labor for cleaning the exterior of the courthouse, the county to furnish $1,710 to be used for equipment and material. It was stated by Paul S. Etheridge, chairman of the finance committee, that this project will enable the county to get a $5,000 job done for less than $2,000.

The matter of revising the custom of paying arresting officers one-third of the sale price of confiscated liquor cars came up for discussion, and Mr. Etheridge was requested to confer with County Attorney Ralph Pharr on the subject, Mr. Pharr having rendered a decision that such payment is illegal.

FAMOUS EXPLORER PASSES IN PARIS

Prince Sixte De Bourbon-Parme, 47, Dies of Mysterious Illness.

PARIS, March 14.—(AP)—Prince Sixte de Bourbon-Parme, peace negotiator during the world war and famous explorer, died at the age of 47 today from effects of a mysterious illness contracted in the Congo several years ago.

The prince, whose full name was Sixte-Ferdinand-Marie - Ignace - Pierre Alphonse of Bourbon-Parme, was the brother of former Empress Zita, of Hungary, consort of Charles VIII.

He was only 31 when Charles, who had just come to the throne, picked him for the delicate task of peacemaking.

Sixte, who thought much of his French ancestry, wanted to draw Austria-Hungary away from Germany and restore Alsace-Lorraine to France.

He drew up two memoranda for the Austro-Hungarian emperor who in turn used them in letters sent through the prince to heads of the allied governments.

He was the seventh of 25 children of Robert, Duke of Parme and was born in Warteg castle, Switzerland, in 1886.

In 1919 he married Hedwige de la Rochefoucauld, descendant of the Dukes of Doudeauville. The couple had one daughter, Isabella.

When Sixte became seriously ill at his mother's home in Pianore, Lucca, Italy, and feared he would die, he asked to be taken to his wife's family in Paris because "I want to die on the soil of France."

The illness that took his life spread to his heart, and doctors some time ago said he was beyond help. Relatives and friends were with him when death came.

FANNY WENTWORTH.

WATERTOWN, S. D., March 14. (AP)—Topsy is dead. The original interpreter of that inimitable character in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," died in a hospital in her 85th year after living in retirement for more than a quarter of a century.

She was Fanny Wentworth, stage star of the later 19th century, who had toured America and Europe, but who had lived here for the past 28 years. Simple funeral services were held yesterday.

Fanny Wentworth started her stage career as a child and at 16 joined the original J. J. Ryers company which first played "Uncle Tom's Cabin," taking the role of Topsy. Later she appeared in support of Edwin Booth, the senior Barrymores, Lillian Russell and Keller, the magician.

Her forte was character sketches and Irish dialect songs and it was this type of acting which so entertained Queen Victoria that she was commanded to appear before the British ruler several times.

STANLEY C. FLAGG.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—(AP) Stanley G. Flagg, manufacturer and clubman, died suddenly today, a week after the death of his wife. He was 74. Flagg was president of Stanley G. Flagg & Company, Inc., manufacturers of pipe fittings and valves.

HENRY B. IVES.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Henry Burton Ives, 65, first postmaster of Port Tampa City, died here tonight following a brief illness.

MRS. JACKSON S. ELLIOTT.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., March 14.—(AP)—Mrs. Isabel Joyce Elliott, 53, wife of Jackson S. Elliott, assistant general manager of the Associated Press, died at her home today after an illness of several months.

Mrs. Elliott, who was born in Washington, D. C., where she was prominent in newspaper and musical circles, before her marriage in 1909, was a daughter of the late Captain Charles Joyce.

Educated at Notre Dame convent, in Baltimore, the former Miss Joyce served a number of years as dramatic and music critic and special writer for the Washington Times. Later she was connected with the Washington bureau of the New York World and New York Herald as a special writer.

Under the name of Daisy Joyce, she also became widely known as a contributor to magazines. She was organist and musical director of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church in Washington for several years.

JUDGE FRANK J. COLEMAN.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Federal Judge Frank J. Coleman, 48, died tonight at a hospital. He had been ill for six weeks.

SELMA BONDI WISE.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Selma Bondi Wise, widow of Dr. Isaac Mayer Wise and mother of Dr. Jonah B. Wise, died at her home here today after a long illness. She was 90 years old.

Mrs. Wise, a native of Dresden, Germany, was married 68 years ago in the Central Synagogue, of which her son is now rabbi.

Surviving, besides her son, who was in Atlanta, Ga., when she died, and a twin sister are nine grandchildren.

Questions Often Asked

Why Wear Glasses at all, if I can see as well without them?

Damage often occurs to the eyes because some people do not understand that glasses are not, necessarily, worn to magnify or clarify the vision.

Quite often they are needed because the nerves and muscles of the eyes are under constant strain which, in time, will result in serious impairment, if not corrected.

A very good reason why one should have the eyes examined by an Optometrist, about once every year.

BOARD DELAYS ACTION ON BILTMORE AND CODE

The Atlanta regional labor board is of the opinion that the Biltmore hotel should be amenable to the hotel code, although it would not make any definite recommendation until the superior court, which was in charge of the hotel's receivership, could be consulted.

This opinion was expressed at a hearing on the complaint of employe members of the engineers' union who charges that employes were hired on individual contracts without regard to collective bargaining. The board deferred further hearing pending the attitude of the court.

APARTMENT RENT AT LEVEL OF 1914, REALTORS TOLD

Apartment house rentals in at least two typical Atlanta buildings are exactly the same now as they were in 1914 and 1916, Robert Holder, an expert on apartment appraisals, told the Atlanta Real Estate Board at its luncheon meeting on Wednesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

He said that apartments in the buildings brought $37.50 each 20 years ago. They were subsequently advanced to $65 each, and now had dropped back to $37.50.

A year ago, Mr. Holder said, vacancies were 22 per cent, but were now only 14 per cent. He added that rents had steadily declined during the last year, although commodity prices had risen. He said that prices were now stabilized and he expected to see an increase this fall.

There was some discussion by members on the effect of the government housing project on Techwood drive, but opinion was divided on the effect of the project on rental values generally.

DR. ROBERT G. LEE WILL SPEAK TONIGHT

Pastors and members of the official boards of the evangelical churches of Atlanta will gather at 7:30 tonight in the First Presbyterian church for a special program under the auspices of the Christian Council. The meeting will consider the place and the opportunities of the church and church officials under present-day conditions.

DR. ROBERT G. LEE.

Dr. Robert G. Lee, pastor of the Bellevue Baptist church, Memphis, will be the main speaker, coming to Atlanta for the meeting upon invitation of the council. Dr. Lee, an author of note, the successful pastor of one of the largest churches in the south, and a dynamic speaker, is regarded as one of the great religious leaders of our day.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of the council, is making the announcement, expressed the hope that every pastor and every member of an official board will be present at this gathering of Atlanta's church leaders.

Mrs. Talmadge, accompanied by Adjutant General and Mrs. Lindley W. Camp, left for Miami Wednesday. They will assist Colonel Beaver in preparing for the reception of the governor and his party Friday.

During their stay in Florida the governor and his friends will be guests at a number of functions to which Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, and Governor B. M. Miller, of Alabama, also have been invited.

Jury Launches Probe Of Dillinger Escape

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 14.—(AP)—The management of Lake county's jail today was given another opportunity to explain how John Dillinger, notorious bank robber, escaped with the aid of a wooden pistol.

This time the guards, who have been explaining almost without interruption since Dillinger escaped on March 3, told the story to a special grand jury of six, instructed to pin the blame for the escape wherever it belonged.

The six men put in the morning following Dillinger's well marked trail through the jail, entering the front door, as he did on January 30, and emerging from the back door, as he did on March 3.

STATE LOSES $250,000 ON COURT TAX DECISION

Georgia Income Return Ruling Allows Deductions for Federal Taxes Returned.

The state supreme court ruled Wednesday that under the income tax law of 1929 and 1930 corporation could deduct from their incomes the amounts paid the federal government in income taxes. The state revenue commission said that under the ruling the state will lose $250,000.

The Boykin income tax law passed in 1928 was vague regarding the exemptions and the National Biscuit Company and others contested the effort of R. C. Norman, former tax collector, to levy on the amounts paid the federal government. The supreme court held that under the law the federal taxes could be deducted.

The decision does not concern income tax payments paid in the years since 1930 as the legislature that year revised the law prohibiting such exemptions specifically.

In another case Wednesday the high court ruled that persons who hold automobile accident insurance policies cannot collect for injuries received in a motorcycle accident. J. C. Bullard, of Walker county, who had lost a foot in a motorcycle accident, had sought to collect from his insurance company but the supreme court ruled that the policy covered automobile injuries only.

I WALKED THE FLOOR IN AGONY AFTER THE PLAINEST MEAL. TRIED EVERY KNOWN DIET AND AT LEAST TEN MEDICINES BEFORE PLACIDAN WAS SUGGESTED. RELIEF WAS QUICK—I HAVEN'T HAD A REAL PAIN SINCE

H. C. Sparkman, Memphis, Tenn.

SWEETENS ACID STOMACH QUICKLY

Two-way method is necessary, physicians now know, when stomach is sour and you feel stuffed from the gas caused by excessive acidity.

Placidan is a new scientific way to relieve acid stomach discomforts. It contains four antacids—one for immediate relief—others to prolong the neutralizing process, to help keep away excessive acidity and gas.

In addition, Placidan contains a powerful new diastase to promote digestion of starchy food, often the cause of excessive acidity. This helps to make relief and ease more lasting. Placidan tastes so pleasant. You will like it. Keep Placidan in the house and take a swallow whenever you feel uncomfortable from eating.

Get it at all drug stores.

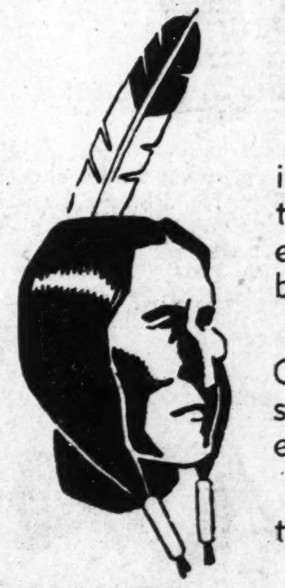
the IDEAL fuel



One very good reason for ordering at least one ton of Chief coal this season is, that you will know exactly what coal to stock your bin with for next winter.

Lots of people started using Chief as an experiment, just to see if it really is better and more economical.

You might, very safely, give it the same trial. You'll like it!

1934 Fashions in Gowns and Etiquette Shown at Davison's "School for Brides"

No matter how well posted the brides of the season may be, there are many interesting pointers they may learn from charming Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell, stylist for the International Silverware Company, who is conducting a thoroughly unique "School for Brides," at Davison-Paxon's this week.

Just as styles in clothes changes, so do fashions in the details of etiquette which stamp as correct the setting for a party, according to Mrs. Mitchell. The 1934 bride should no more have her table, for example, set in accord with the ideas of 1914 than she should wear gowns in the style of 200 years ago, says this well-known authority.

Fashion Review.

Thrilling alike to brides-to-be, recent brides, and brides of many springs ago is the bridal atmosphere carried out throughout the store. This afternoon and Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a fashion revue will be given in the tea room displaying the last whisper in good taste for the bride's trousseau from lingerie and gowns to be worn to parties, to her traveling ensemble and wedding gown.

Immediately following the revue, Mrs. Mitchell will set a table on the stage in three different and equally attractive ways for various types of entertainments, explaining and demonstrating the details. Clever and unusual touches which make a party different and outstanding will be suggested by Mrs. Mitchell. What could be more intriguing than a "Suppressed Desire Party," where each guest appears representing something she has always craved? The particularly amusing details for this affair and others equally attractive will be discussed.

Prizes Awarded.

Especially exciting are the prizes to be awarded to those attending the "school." Prospective brides may compete for one prize and the fortunate winner may have her choice of a maple dinette suite, a china service, a set of trousseau lingerie, or bridal linens. A chest of 1847 Rogers Brothers silverplate, valued at $122.50, will be presented to the winner in the group including anyone attending except the brides-elect of the season.

Even the girl whose home is thoroughly correct seldom notices each detail in the table appointment until she plans a home of her own and such brides-elect will be interested in the artistic tables decorated by Mrs. Mitchell. The more experienced hostess, too, will be interested in finding new ideas in the work of this expert.

On the second floor a beautifully appointed table set for the "Announcement Luncheon" features a centerpiece of red radiance roses with silver, china and linen chosen to blend with the rose motif. Appropriate for a stag party for the bridegroom is the table on the same floor overlaid with natural linen and featuring a color motif of blue and yellow, with the silver in plain patterns effectively used. Crystal epergnes holding pernet roses and crystal candelabra placed on a mirror reflector center the table on the third floor for the bridesmaids' tea, which is overlaid with an Italian cut work table cloth and set with lovely flat silver and china. Elegant in every detail is the lace-covered table on the fourth floor, which is decorated for the wedding dinner, with silverware and crystal in formal patterns used and a silver centerpiece holding white snapdragons, lilies and roses. Especially attractive is the table on the fifth floor set for the "first breakfast," where bright-hued mats and peasant china are strikingly used with very plain silver to give a delightfully informal effect.

"Honeymoon House," is lettered on a white scroll caught with wedding belles above the entrance to the model apartment on the sixth floor, where ideal furnishings for a bride's apartment are arranged. Of particular interest is the room on the same floor where appropriate wedding gifts are displayed on tables in groups according to price, ranging from the most inexpensive to very handsome presents.

NANCY PAGE

How About a Pin Cushion For a Bridge Prize?

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

One of Nancy's neighbors had just returned from a trip to New York. She brought all sorts of ideas with her. One of them concerned pincushions. "Really Nancy, the shops are all showing pin cushions. You see, the bedrooms are enjoying a return of mid-Victorian decorations and that means pin cushions on the bureaus.

I saw some perfectly adorable ones—drums, hearts, stars, ovals with smocking on the boxed sides. But one that I thought you might like particularly was a square boxed one with a quilted top.

The one I saw had white taffeta. The boxing was of the same material but the cording at the top was of cherry red velvet.

Nancy immediately had an idea. She saw no reason why she could not applique a cherry spray on top of the pin cushion and then quilt around that. She worked out a cherry spray. Then her pencil being in fine fettle she designed a swan, also mid-Victorian. And to put into an Empire room with its white and gold stars and arrows Nancy worked out a third design. All of them are on the direction leaflet which you may procure by following the directions at the bottom of the column today.

Nancy made a form for the pincushion, first. She chose heavy muslin and sewed the bottom to the straight sides. She put on the top and sewed three sides and part of the fourth. Then she filled the form with saw dust. She stuffed it as full as she could get it. Then she sewed the opening shut using hand sewing.

The dimensions for the cushion are given in the direction sheet. By placing the silk top over the design it will be possible to trace the design. Then use the traced side for the wrong side of the cover. The marking will show through clearly enough for quilting.

If the top is quilted it will be wise to make it of two thicknessess of cloth, one of silk and an under one of course cheesecloth with a thin layer of wadding or cotton between.

Detailed instructions for making "Pin Cushion" may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

TEACHERS FACE DELAY IN GETTING SALARIES

Distribution of approximately $125,000 in salaries of school employes for the last half of January may be delayed until Friday because of obstacles in the way of immediate bank loans, it was explained Wednesday.

Members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association Wednesday declined to lend the city $75,000 to pay federal relief officials to maintain CWA and other federal expenditures, and Mayor James L. Key and B. Graham West, city comptroller, were forced to revise communications to the banks, on which they pinned their hopes of obtaining funds.

Key dictated the agreement during the morning, but when the relief loan was refused he was forced to rewrite the agreement, thus delaying placement of the loan.

West said the $75,000 fund would be paid from current receipts.

Bank officials told West that they have refused charity loans to the county and made the same stipulation in city loans last year, but West attempted to obtain the $75,000 in order to apply as much current revenue as possible to past-due bills of the municipality.

It is not expected that the $80,000 will complete the paving but it is understood that at a later date more funds will be allotted to the road.

The announcement came after the delegation had called upon Governor Eugene Talmadge and cited the need for the paving.

Those in the party included: From Columbus, Colonel E. G. Peyton, of Fort Benning; W. E. Page, internal revenue collector for Georgia and publisher of the Columbus Ledger and Enquirer-Sun; Mayor H. CROSS-STITCH MOTIFS.
Pattern 5084.

Cross-stitch—fun to do—quickly done—colorful — effective — a durable embroidery—isn't that enough recommendation? These motifs done in good-sized crosses are lovely on table linens or scarfs. The transfer pattern is so drawn that the four motifs are correctly placed to form the wreath, as illustrated, doing away with the trouble of placing each one separately. The small sprays are separate and can be arranged as shown or used for napkins or in any way desired. The design lends itself to a great variety of color effects ranging from soft rose and green to the bright peasant colors.

In pattern 5084 you will find four 10 3-4 inch motifs, four and four reverses of each of the 2 1-2 inch motifs shown, suggestions and material requirements for using the motifs on various linens. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

AS THE EARTH TURNS

By GLADYS HASTY CARROLL

INSTALLMENT VI.

Mrs. Shaw climbed up to the front seat, her eyes bright with excitement. Her coat was two years old, but clean and neat, and Lois May had taught her how to pin her hair so that would show beneath her hat; it made her feel conspicuous but modish. Lize and Lois May and Bun sat together in the back, Lize in the white fur jacket, Lois May in the green velvet dress and wool coat with a new dark fur, a gift from Lize, slung rakishly across her shoulder; Lois May had changed in these last few weeks, though no one had time to notice it just now; she was older, secure in her experience with street cars and revolving doors, but a little subdued, a little watchful and speculating. Bun's collar had been turned and her short hair done up on rags the night before. She wore becomingly her serious angelic look between the red curls, and held the package which contained her own personal gift for Margaret—a dozen russet apples rubbed hard.

"Jen!" Ed called from the sitting room. "Come fix this thing, will you?"

It was a collar button he needed to have worked through the neckband she had starched too stiff for his clumsy fingers. His thick, untidy hair and stout wind-reddened neck bowed humbly before her.

"I couldn't seem to get it any way."

"It does go hard. There you are."

"Yes."

They went out and stepped into the wagon and rode away. Ed handled the reins gently. He would not drive his horse again for nearly a week.

"Margaret like my Easter lilies?"

"Fine. She's going to—carry them, I guess."

George's place came into view around the next turn.

"You better hitch at the end of the house," she said, "so Tommy won't see the plane go up. Then you go in the front door, won't you? That's what Margaret said."

She smiled at Ed encouragingly and went in.

A few minutes later Mil sat down at the organ in the parlor and began to play a march.

Margaret came down the stairs and across the room to Ed, not slowly as she had read that brides did, but easily and firmly, her natural step. She wore a white voile dress with its wide, filmy collar and clinging skirt, and carried three Easter lilies and a small black Testament, but otherwise she did not look very different from the way she did when she walked down the aisle at school, glancing over the children's shoulders at their figures. She smiled around quietly and when she reached Ed, tucked her hand in his arm and held the lilies and the Testament idly in the other hand.

The elder began to speak. Ed answered him gruffly. Margaret softly. No one heard much of what was said. A few words now and then, that was all.

"—take thee—"

"—to serve—"

"—to cherish—"

"—any reason—"

"I pronounce you—"

The elder raised both hands and prayed in his old voice.

The sun came in, lying across Ed and Margaret, across Mil and her children by the organ, across Mark Shaw and his family; and it was the same sun. Beyond the window it lay across ground that waited to be turned, and across budding trees in the orchard and the pines of the woods beyond the Ridge; still it was the same sun. Jen knew of it, though her eyes were closed. It felt warm to her, and full of promise. The season was early. Crops would be good. It was a fine time for a farmer to be getting married.

That night Jen, as often happened, was the last to go to bed.

The sound of a knock on the side door startled her. She lifted her head and listened. After a minute or two it came again very quietly. She took up the lamp and went into the entry. The key stuck briefly in the lock and she shook it.

"Who is it?" she asked of the dark as she finally pulled the door open.

He stepped into the range of her lamplight. She had never seen him near-by before and even now saw him only vaguely, a broad, stocky figure, bareheaded, with thick dark hair. His voice was deep and smooth, and he spoke almost in a whisper.

"It's too bad to trouble you this time of night. If your light had been out I wouldn't have. But one of the children over at the house is sick, and my mother thinks she'd better have a doctor. You see, we haven't got our telephone put in yet, and I thought maybe you'd be willing to call him. Or let me. If it wouldn't be too much trouble."

"Well, now, we haven't got a telephone either," Jen began.

"You haven't!" He sounded incredulous. "I wish I'd noticed that. I wouldn't have disturbed you."

"Disturbed me!" laughed Jen. "You're no disturbance. It's wonder I heard you at all, coming as easy as you did . . . No, father's never got around to 'having a telephone put in. We don't seem to see much need for it. They've got one up to my brother George's, though, third place up on the left, and at Hale's and several places down along."

He hesitated.

"Well, thanks. They're probably all in bed by now. I don't believe I'll get them up. The baby'll be all right by morning. Thanks, very much."

He was turning away. Jen held her lamp higher.

"What seems to be the matter with the baby?"

He looked back, one foot on the step, one on the ground. Every word he said he spoke so slowly it seemed to Jen he drawled, but otherwise he had no accent. She saw that his face was long and earnest, with a full, gentle mouth and bigger eyes than those of any of the men she knew: but they were blue eyes, or at least not black like Manuel's and the little girls'.

"Well, I don't know. He's been fine all day, but my mother says he all of a sudden can't get his breath tonight. It's probably just a cold."

"Probably the croup," Jen said. "If you'll wait a minute I'll run over with you and take a look at him." She would have gone to any other neighbors, she thought; she would go to these. "If that's what it is, you don't need a doctor. I'm an old hand at croup."

But Jen did not wait to listen to him. She was back in the kitchen writing on a torn strip of brown paper, "Gone over to Janowski's. One of the young ones is sick," and tucking the corner of it under the lamp. She collected a kettle, a basin, some clean cloths, mustard and flour, and the bottle of ipecac; there was no telling what Polacks might or might not have ready. When she came out of the house she carried the kettle in one hand, a lantern in the other, and wore one of her father's coats and a cap of Bun's; these had been the first things her hand touched in the entry; there was no need to keep a croupy child waiting.

"My," she said cheerfully, "it's an awful warm night for March."

"Here, I'll take your things," Stan Janowski said. "Give me the kettle, too. We'd better go across the field, the road's so muddy."

"All right," Jen answered. "Hold the kettle careful, so you don't break anything in there."

"But I don't feel as if you ought to come," he insisted.

"There," Jen silenced him, "I always go when there's need. It's our way in the country."

But she knew no one else here would have gone to help the Janowskis in the night, and so did he. She felt him glancing at her often as they went down over the hill to the east, across the main road, and into the Old Joe field. It was a still night, and the air was full of fog from the river and marshes, but she could see the pricking of the stars through it, and of lamplight at one high window in the end of the Old Joe barn.

"We haven't got much of a place to live in yet," Stan Janowski said as they went up the incline under the night, "but it's warm, anyway, and fixed so my mother can keep it clean. We're going to build a house as soon as we can."

He set down the lantern and kettle to open a small door that had been cut in the center of the big one, and stood back to let her go in.

The whole end of the barn was one great room with a stove on two sides of it, high, shining black cookstoves that had no legs but set flat on a new hard pine floor. Jen saw at a glance that everything was spotless. The walls had been covered with reddish sheathing paper studded with brass nails and there was a high ceiling plastered white. The new chairs, the long, bare table, the stoves, and even the three beds full of children along the back wall did not nearly fill the room, but left it still big and clean and the smell in it was sweet from fresh air coming in at what had once been a row of mow windows. It did not look like any living quarters Jen had ever seen, but she found nothing to complain of in it. The only sounds she heard were the crying and hoarse breathing of a child somewhere behind the partition and the creak of a rocking chair. She took the kettle from Stan and set it on the table beside a turned-down hand lamp.

"If you'll sit down," he said, "I'll call mother. I had her take him in my room, not to keep everybody awake."

"I can go in there," Jen said.

But a minute after he went through a door and she heard him speak, a woman came out carrying a baby over her shoulder. Nobody in Derwich had ever seen Mrs. Janowski before; some had doubted that there was a woman, doubted if even a Polish woman could really live in a barn. She was short and very fat, with black hair and eyes like the children's, a jolly, red-cheeked, dimpled face, and dressed in coarse, black stuff with the feet of felt boots pulled over her shoes so that she scuffed when she walked.

"Now ain't t's nice," she demanded heartily. "Now t'is what I call nice. Seem t'at I ain't seen no face but t'ese"—she moved her free arm in a generous circle—"for how long, I don't know t'at. My, my. I guess you got big heart, great big heart. My, how I am please; you come out t'is time of night for me, one you don't know. You got ver' big heart."

Crackers To Begin Workouts Today If Weather Permits

BREAK O' DAY!
By Ralph McGill

"And They Arrest Guys Like Us," He Chirped to Champ

One of the boys out in the federal big house sends in the best Carnera gag of the year.

When Primo called in Atlanta for a visit to the prison (and perhaps a wave to Al Capone), the windows were filled with "the boys" looking out in an effort to catch a glimpse of the champion.

The champion had, you will recall, just made that fight with Tommy Loughran, at Miami. And it was, essentially, pretty terrible.

And the story goes that one of "the boys" leaned out and, with the memory of the fight stories fresh in his mind, chirped:

"And they arrest guys like us."

ADIOS, MUCHACHA.

It was a couple of years ago that Dr. Sam Silverman and I were in a Juarez, Mexico, chop house, doing some damage to a couple of chicken tamales. We were en route west with the Georgia eleven.

As I recall we had just dropped a couple of pesos on the bird-cage game and wished to continue the idea. So we were eating chicken tamales.

There was a young lady standing nearby doing some damage to an extra dry Martini. She was dressed in riding togs and had in her eyes a far-away look. She was staring right out the windows to the Juarez mountains. It was a very, very, very far-away look. The mountains themselves are quite far away.

We were wondering about that far-away look when she was joined by an old gentleman and they left.

And since that time, two years ago, we have kept wondering. And today comes a card from Dr. Silverman. He's in Mexico. And he writes: "Still looking for that far-away-look-in-the-eye muchacha."

Dr. Silverman wasn't to be identified in the crowd at the bullfight. Maybe he didn't go that day. Gee, I wish I had a chicken tamale!

ROBIN RED BREAST A PHONEY.

It won't be long until spring. I know. I have seen, and smelled, spring.

It was out at the ball park. I went down to the training quarters and smelled the old, old odors of rubbing oil and adhesive tape. And I saw the uniforms and the trunks and a bat or so.

A cold wind was blowing outside. But I had seen and had a whiff of spring. The red, red robin, as an harbinger of spring, had seemed a phoney to me since childhood when I learned that rhyme:

The cold winds do blow
And we shall have snow
And what will poor robin do then?
Poor thing.
He will hide in a barn
To keep himself warm
And hide his head under his wing,
Poor thing.

Obviously the robin didn't know much about spring.

But the baseball box score is a sure-fire harbinger. It may be cold and harsh outside. But when the baseball box score arrives spring is here.

The Cracker boxes will begin appearing soon from Macon. A great town, Macon. And an ideal place to train. The ball club is taking the baseball reporters along to keep the public informed.

THE DERBY IN OLD KAINTUCK.

Comes a wire from Bruce Dudley, of the Courier Journal: "Keenly anticipating another of your coveted contributions to our annual souvenir Kentucky Derby edition. Kindly jot down sketch of your career and wire collect as soon as convenient so we can begin telling our readers."

Well, it was good up there last year. And in a stroke of pure luck this correspondent named the first three horses as Head Play, Brokers' Tip and Charley O. They ran Brokers' Tip, Head Play and Charley O. It was, of course, just luck.

There isn't anything like Derby Day at the Downs. With the sun warm on the barns and the oval ribbon of track with its emerald center. And the clatter of telegraph instruments in the press box and the horses going to the post.

And this year two fillies—Bazzar, of the Bradley stables, and Mata Hari, of the Dixiana farms, are the favorites. Kunnel Bradley has won himself a lot of Derbies.

And the Blue Grass money will be riding with Bazzar—if she goes to the post.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Sunday baseball will be a welcome addition to the city. The Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to announcement yesterday, will take over the ball club and operate it on Sundays for charity.

The ball club's official family will have nothing to do with it. The games, played in the afternoon, will not conflict with anything. And a baseball game has always appealed to me as being about the most harmless, wholesome and entertaining of sport.

Some 11 games are scheduled for Sunday in Atlanta. I never quite understood the opposition to Sunday baseball. Golf courses, swimming pools, airplane trips for hire and all sorts of amusements went right along. While the American game of baseball was opposed. It forced the ball club to move to another city to play on Sunday. Which seemed, to my doubtlessly uninformed mind, the height of ridiculousness. The people also voted for the Sunday game. But it has come to be the habit to ignore the voice of the people.

IT REALLY HAPPENED.

The wife of one of the boys at the office called up and asked to speak to her husband.

"I don't see him on this floor anywhere," said the voice on the office phone.

"My goodness," said the startled wife, "does he stay on the floor up there?"

GIANTS LOSE TO CARDS, 7-6

BRADENTON, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals tossed three of their first-string pitchers, Bill Hallahan, Bill Walker and Dizzy Dean, at the New York Giants today and although the world champions collected 12 hits off the trio the Cards won, 7 to 6.

The Cardinals, aided by four errors and seven bases on balls handed out by Al Smith and Jack Salveson, made the most of their seven hits. They scored three times in the second inning, twice in the sixth to tie the score and won the game in the seventh when they sent two more runs across the plate on a boot by Thompson, a force play, a wild peg by Blondy Ryan, two passes and Bill Myers' single.

The champions scored five of their runs off Walker, a former teammate, and the other off Dean in the sixth inning.

Britain Names Walker Cup Team

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—A Walker cup team seasoned with veterans and garnished with three brilliant newcomers to international golf today was named by the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews to carry Britain's colors this year against the United States.

The Hon. Michael Scott, 56-year-old British amateur champion, was named captain with such veteran campaigners as Roger Wethered, Cyril James Hastings Tolley, T. A. Torrance and Eric Fiddian and three youngsters, Jack McLean, S. L. McKinlay and H. G. Bentley, as the other members. Two more will be named later.

The rank and file of British golfdom received the announcement with pleasure, delighted that the committee had fallen back on the "old boys" in an effort to break America's string of seven consecutive victories since the series was instituted in 1922.

The "youngsters" of the team came in for praise, especially McLean, who last summer was called "the second best amateur golfer in the world" by no less an authority than Walter Hagen. He is the Scottish champion.

There had been some doubt as to whether he would be picked but he removed the last bar to his selection recently by quitting his job as a golf ball salesman. McKinlay and Bentley both have played for England in international contests but never against America.

Observers also were delighted with the selection of Wethered, especially as the matches will be played at St. Andrews, Roger's favorite course and one where he always plays his best.

The dates for the contests are May 11 and 12, less than a fortnight before the British amateur at Prestwick, in which members of the American team will compete.

Maxie To Meet Smith at Macon

MACON, Ga., March 14.—(AP)—Boxing in Macon and middle Georgia faces the crisis tomorrow night in its comeback campaign, when Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, faces "Cyclone" Smith, of Fort Benning, Ga., in a 10-round, non-title bout at the city auditorium.

Many think that Smith is not a worthy foe for the champion despite the fact that the soldier boy won a decision over the champ in Savannah two years ago.

The champion, himself, did not appear unduly confident as he concluded his training this afternoon with a light trot around a local city park, a distance of about 200 yards.

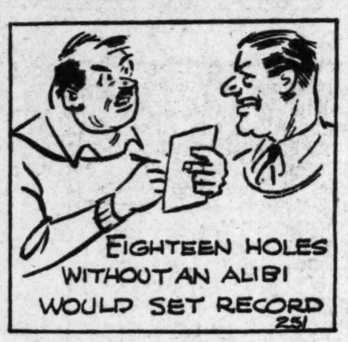
WINS LAST HOLE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Isaac Merrill, of Rollins College, stymied Bobby Walker, of Jacksonville, on the last hole today for a 1-up victory and a place in the finals of the annual Ponce de Leon cup golf tournament here. Henry Baldwin, of Boston, went to the last round by downing James Nammack, of New York, 2 and 1.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By ALEX. J. MORRISON

Central Press Association



Alex Morrison says:

I found Dr. Herman Bundesen, president of the Chicago board of health, one of the keenest pupils I've been privileged to teach.

He's terribly exacting about everything he does.

When he started my exercises Dr. Bundesen made excuses for what he thought was a lack of progress. I told him that he would progress much faster if he could keep from making excuses.

I pointed out that I hadn't found him making nor accepting alibis in his office. He got the idea and has become one of my star pupils.

It isn't necessary to give as much time and thought to golf as you do to your business but, it's just as well to avoid alibis on the course as you do in business.

RECORD ENTRY IN PIN EVENT

By Jack Troy.

That thrill in finally getting over the hill is hard to beat. Meaning that last night the forty-ninth team entered The Constitution's St. Patrick's day handicap doubles duckpin tournament and the previous United States entry record of 48 teams, established last year in the first annual Constitution event, was broken.

Indications are that fully 60 teams will line up Saturday afternoon and Saturday night at Blick's center in the big push for the engraved gold medals.

George Small, whose stature is like unto the characterization of Jiggs, and John Conyers, a robust gentleman, are the defending champions. And their work is really cut out. They announced upon re-entering the event that they expected to win.

BEST IN CITY.

Well, they will be firing away against the best competition the Gate City has to offer. No doubles tournament has approached the forthcoming St. Patrick's day fixture as to interest or size.

The 12 additional teams that came in yesterday to put the tournament beyond last year's record mark include G. P. Dozier Jr., and I. Ashendorf, C. L. Harris and M. Johnson, E. W. Bryan and G. E. Thierfelder, Charley Wolcott and George Harris, R. M Matson and Lucien Hope, A. C. Cooke and G. L. Bushong, M. B. Barnett and E. C. Gilmore, R. Petre and Harris Dodd, W. Mays and J Leftwich, Charley Tilman and L. (Ray) Barnes, W. P. Brock and A. L. Simmons, Lindy James and Vernon Nygard.

You may as well join the fun because there is almost certain to be some of your kinfolks taking part. There is no entry fee, only the price of the games being charged.

DUCKPIN RULES.

The championship event is being conducted under the rules of the Atlanta Duckpin Association and the only restriction is that entrants must have bowled 15 or more games in a league this season.

Those who cannot roll the five-game championship set Saturday night will be allowed the privilege of bowling Saturday afternoon. Others will bowl Saturday night, beginning at 7:30.

Checker Champion Gives Exhibition

Newell William Banks, of Detroit, national checker champion, last night gave a remarkable demonstration at the Elks' Club before a gallery estimated at 100.

Mr. Banks played nine boards of checkers, three boards of chess and then four boards of checkers (blindfolded) at the same time.

Grover Heaton, of Hartwell, Ga., won considerable prestige by getting a draw with Mr. Banks. The champion swept all the other matches.

Mr. Banks will make two appearances today—at 3:30 o'clock at the Cauthorn Motor Company and at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel. Chess players also are invited to these matches. Competing players are asked to bring their own boards.

KERRY PATCH.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Kerry Patch, one of the big money race horses of the past few years, was saved from death tonight as eight other horses, including Sun Patch, perished in a stable fire at Belmont Park racetrack on Long Island. Kerry Patch, a Kentucky Derby candidate last year and winner of the futurity in 1932 at 40-to-1 odds, and a brown filly were the only horses led to safety.

'Mystery Match' At Indoor Range

There will be a big "mystery match" at the indoor rifle range of the Atlanta Rifle Club, 141 1-2 Alabama street, tonight at 7:30.

Executive Officer Hal Drake is to be in charge. He has proved as uncommunicative as a clam concerning the shoot. "Come and see for yourself," is the affable Mr. Drake's attitude.

Ammunition will be for sale if one forgets to bring any along. And, too, there will be extra rifles for those not having artillery.

ROBBY HAPPY AS KEY OKAYS SUNDAY GAMES

Mayor Issues Permit to Jaycees for Baseball for Charity.

President Wilbert Robinson, of the Atlanta Crackers, sees Sunday baseball games, as authorized by Mayor Key yesterday in a permit to the Junior Chamber of Commerce to sponsor them, as a "break" for the fans.

"It is a fine thing for the public and a fine thing for charity, too, Uncle Robby stated. The Cracker president and Manager Abbott sat in the huddle with Mayor Key and a list of optional Sunday dates given Atlanta at the last schedule meeting were presented.

It was explained that proceeds of the games would go to various civic charities under the same system which Sunday movies are presented.

SUNDAY GAMES.

Sunday games given Atlanta at the New Orleans meeting with hopes that the city would get Sunday ball were:

Biirmingham, June 17.
Chattanooga, July 29.
Knoxville, June 10.
Little Rock, August 26.
Memphis, May 20.
Nashville, August 22 and September 16.
New Orleans, May 13 and September 9.

The Jay-Cees will sponsor an exhibition game to be played on April 1 between the Crackers and the Toronto club of the International league, the Red Cross will receive the proceeds. This will be the first game to be played on Sunday between professional clubs in Atlanta in many years. Last year, the Crackers sought to play Memphis a regularly scheduled Sunday game during the league season, but were enjoined from so doing.

Mayor Key, one of the city's most enthusiastic fans and a warm friend and admirer of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, yesterday addressed the following letter to President Clifford Hendrix, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce:

MAYOR'S LETTER.

"Mr. Clifford Hendrix, president,
"Junior Chamber of Commerce,
"City.

"Dear Sir:

"I am very happy to learn that you and the Junior Chamber of Commerce have agreed to conduct the regular league baseball games here on Sundays during the next year for the benefit of certain charities of the town whom you have selected.

"I am very glad for two reasons: First, that these charities will receive this benefit they so greatly need; second, that the people of this town will be given this opportunity to see clean, wholesome baseball sports on Sunday afternoon.

"As mayor of this city, I cheerfully subscribe to this program, and it has my hearty indorsement, and this is your permit to conduct these games during the season.

"Sincerely,
"JAMES L. KEY, Mayor."

Casey To Join Squad Today.

Hugh Casey, young Cracker pitcher who hopes to win 20 ball games in the Southern league this season, said last night that he would leave early this morning for the training camp at Macon.

Casey has been suffering from a cold, but said he would join the squad nevertheless. Last year, he pitched for Charlotte in the Piedmont league, winning 19 games and striking out 187 batters. The first Cracker party, which left yesterday, consisted of Manager Spence Abbott, Business Manager Earl Mann and Players Chatham and Neisler. The two players went down by bus. Joe Palmisano, catcher, is expected to join the squad today.

The Crackers will start practice today at 11 a. m. It will be the first of a series of practices that will last two weeks in the Central City. The entire squad will be on the scene by March 22.

President Wilbert Robinson will drive to Macon Sunday to be with the squad awhile. No further news has been heard on plans to dispose of Eddie Phillips, veteran catcher of last year's club.

Miss Waring Wins At Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 14.—(AP)—Helen Waring, Pinehurst links veteran, today continued the pace she set in the first day of play, carded a 165 for the 36-hole tournament, and won the sixth annual women's mid-south golf tournament.

Close behind her came the two players who ran her the closest race throughout the tournament. They were Charlotte Glutting, of East Orange, N. J., semi-finalist in the 1933 national, who shot 169, and Jane Douglas, of Beverly Hills, Cal., with 170.

Others who finished in the van of the original starting field of 68 were: Mrs. James J. Lawler, New Rochelle, N. Y., 174; Mrs. Marvin J. Haynes, Washington, 176; Miss Estelle Lawson, Chapel Hill, N. C., 177; Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., and Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., 178, and Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, Pittsburgh, 180.

Glaser Is Victor In Billiard Play

Glaser defeated Skelton last night in one of the outstanding games of a series being played at the Crescent Recreation Academy for the city pocket billiard championship. The final score was 100 to 85. Both men played a very close game. Skelton had high run of 26 balls.

Probably the largest crowd of the tournament so far attended the match, with quite a number of ladies present.

In the afternoon game Chambers won over Spencer, 100 to 92. Chambers obtained a good lead from the start and played well to the finish.

Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock Bassett will play Glaser with Cox vs. Hughes in the night game.

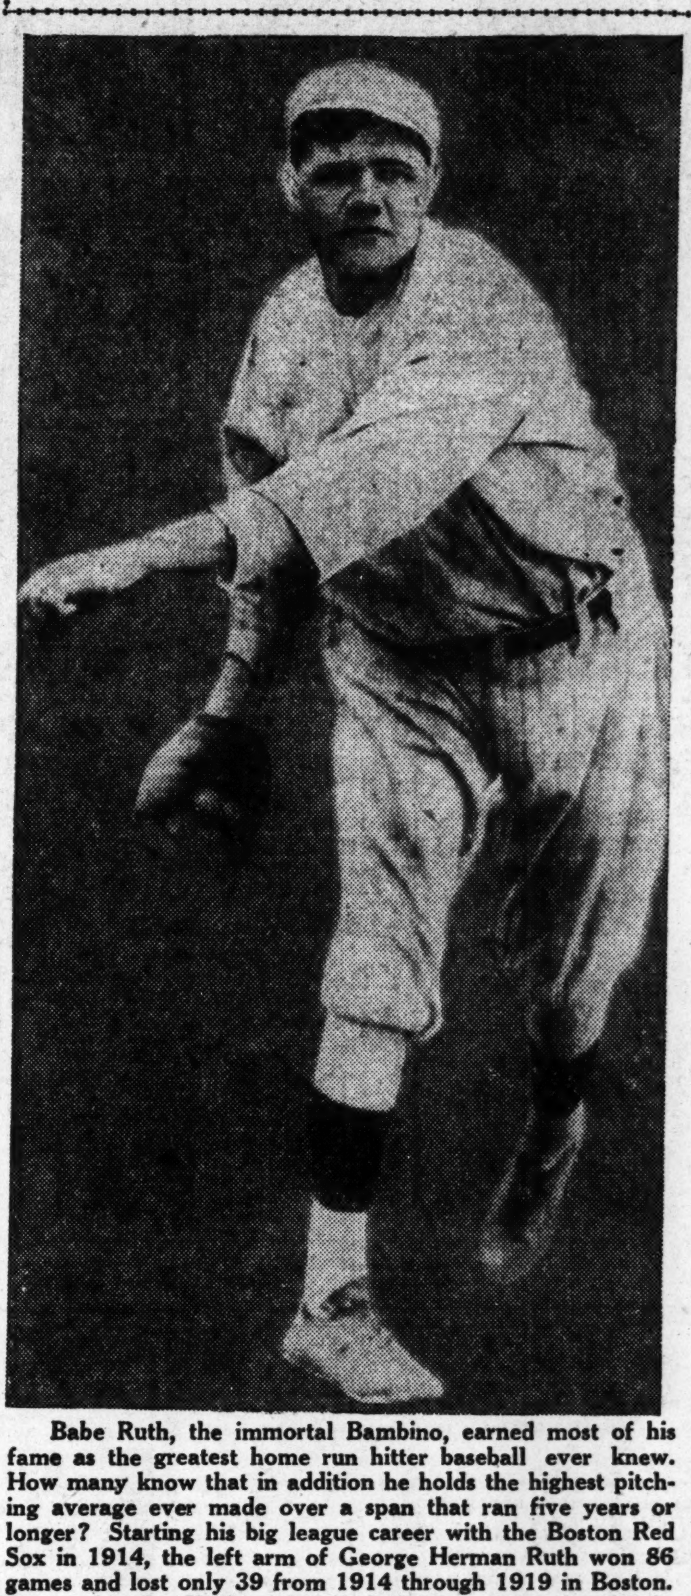
Records 'Lose' Game; Newsome Is Peeved

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14.—Buck Newsome, the St. Louis Browns' big speedball pitcher from Los Angeles, was all out of humor today. He discovered the Browns' official roster lists him as winning 30 games last yaer.

"All wrong," he fumed to Manager Rogers Hornsby. "I won 31 and I'd have made it 40, if I hadn't hurt my thumb and had to sit on the bench for a while."

THE SPORT PARADE

When Big Babe Was the Game's Best Pitcher.



Babe Ruth, the immortal Bambino, earned most of his fame as the greatest home run hitter baseball ever knew. How many know that in addition he holds the highest pitching average ever made over a span that ran five years or longer? Starting his big league career with the Boston Red Sox in 1914, the left arm of George Herman Ruth won 86 games and lost only 39 from 1914 through 1919 in Boston. Later with the Yankees he pitched four more victories in 1920, 1921, 1930 and 1933 for an all-time pitching record of 91 victories against 39 defeats—grand average .700. Not even Matty, Alexander or Cy Young reached this mark. (International News Photo.) Copyright, 1934, by Grantland Rice.

Londos Retains Title In Fast Match Here

"Thees Jeem" Is Master of Old Against Zaharias; Kirilenko, Roche Draw.

The world's mat title rested securely on the tousled locks of "Thees Jeem" Londos at the conclusion of more than an hour's furious wrestling last night at the auditorium.

George Zaharias, another Greek, was the victim. And more than 5,000 grappling fans squirmed and wrestled in their seats as the fast match went on.

Zaharias won a fall with a series of splits. He lost the first one after a series of front headlocks and body slams. Londos won the final fall, slipping out of a series of body blocks to get Zaharias in a back drop. The big fellow from Pueblo broke three of them but three body slams in succession did him in.

LONDOS GREAT.

Londos did not seem to have slipped a bit. He used his weight unusually well. For a relatively small man he makes his weight count for more than would be expected. He had his 200 pounds on Zaharias all evening. Or most of it.

His defensive against Zaharias' attempts to obtain another split was very good.

It was a great match with Charley Rentrop, veteran referee and official, as the third man in the ring. Rentrop, who was once a first-rate heavyweight, is an expert official. Commission officials and fans applauded his work. He was named for the match when Jim Londons' manager insisted on a change in referees from the one who officiated in their previous meeting.

GOVERNOR THERE.

Governor Eugene Talmadge was on hand. He is a Zaharias fan and was hoping to see him win. He cautioned Zaharias before the match against losing his, Zaharias' head.

Londos remained the most skillful and expert wrestler to appear here. He is really a marvelous athlete.

Roche and Kirilenko are both great favorites here. Roche, who has wrestled in the west and east, is the finest of the newcomers to show here.

EQUIPOISE RUNS FOR NEW MARK

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Equipoise is rounding into shape rapidly for his final assault on Sun Beau's world's money winning record. If all goes well in training he will make his first major start in the $7,500 Philadelphia handicap at Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.

From Trainer Thomas J. Healey, at Lexington, Ky., where the 6-year-old C. V. Whitney ace is wintering, comes word that "Ekky" will be shipped to Havre de Grace and then to New York for the rich Belmont Park meeting.

"The date of Equipoise's return to the races this year depends on the kind of training weather we enjoy here," said Healey in a message to the Associated Press. At the Maryland meeting, which opens April 16, Healey hopes to give the son of Pennant a sprint trial before the Philadelphia. Equipoise won the race last year, carrying 128 pounds to a new track record of 1:44 3-5 for the mile and one-sixteenth.

Holder of the world's record of 1:34 2-5 for the mile, Equipoise went into what was announced as permanent retirement last fall after boosting his total earnings for four years to $322,970, only $53,774 short of the mark compiled by W. S. Kilmer's Sun Beau.

Whitney and his famous trainer reconsidered their action during the winter.

Fonseca Is Devoting Attention to Lyons

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Manager Lew Fonseca, of the Chicago White Sox, is giving as much attention to a veteran, Ted Lyons, as to any of his younger pitchers.

Lyons, bothered by a sore arm for the past two seasons, says he is ready for another big year.

Baseball Leagues Will Meet Tonight

All commercial baseball teams are asked to meet again at Trammell Scott's store, 66 North Broad street, tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The City league will have another meeting of managers, and the Atlanta league will organize at this time. One more team is needed to complete the Atlanta league.

Southern Zone Dates Approved

Approval of the dates for the southern zone trapshoot was received yesterday from the Amateur Trapshooting Association by Jack Tway, secretary of the Capitol Gun Club.

The shoot, which will attract leading trap stars from 16 states, is to be held at the Capitol May 23-24-25.

LUTHER THOMAS SIGNS PAPERS; REPORTS SOON

Thirteen Crackers Ready To Start Drills Under Abbott.

MACON, Ga., March 14.—Thirteen Crackers and their boss, Manager Spencer Abbott, were in camp tonight impatiently awaiting the official opening of the training season tomorrow.

Manager Abbott tonight divided his time between greeting his aspirants and observing weather conditions as the thermometer began to slide.

The first practice session will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning unless the temperature, which began to fall sharply late this afternoon, descends so much as to make limbering up of pitching arms hazardous.

11 UNTIL 2.

Manager Abbott posted notice tonight that all players will be awakened at 8:30 o'clock each morning, and that daily training drills will be from 11 until 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the time being.

The big announcement of the day was from Business Manager Earl Mann, who accompanied Manager Abbott to Macon. Mann brought the glad tidings that Luther Thomas, the promising pitcher from Albany, had signed his contract and was expected in camp in a few days.

There were eight hurlers in camp tonight, Frank Barnes, Rufus Meadows, F. E. Nix, Art Jacobs, Jake Baker, Almon Williams, A. E. Smithwick and Carlos Moore.

Bob Weaver, Bill Casey and Fred Neisler were the catchers to report on opening day.

SHEERIN, CHATHAM.

Infielders Charlie Sheerin and Buster Chatham were the players to complete the roster of 13 to check in.

Immediately after their arrival this afternoon, Manager Abbott and Mann visited the new, modern baseball plant here and gave it their enthusiastic approval.

"My gosh," said Abbott, "this is the biggest baseball park I've even seen. You couldn't shoot one out of here with a gun."

The practice for the first few days will consist mainly of loosening stiffened arms and throwing the ball about.

L. E. GRANT WINS TROPHY SHOOT

Apparently he waited until the going got really tough before he decided to step out and show the boys a thing or two about this skeet shooting pastime.

At any rate L. E. Grant, a fine sportsman, won his first trophy at the Capitol Gun Club yesterday afternoon. The wind blew in gusts and the cold, cold wind bit at the sportsmen's ribs. But Grant went around resolutely in a spectacular fashion. With handicap added, he had a score of 50x50.

Clyde King Jr. was another of the day's stars. He broke his first straight at 25 targets in the wind and the cold. It was a great performance.

King and Bill Healey were second in the silver sherbet shoot with 47x50. King won in the shootoff when he achieved the straight.

Jack Tway had 45x50 and J. K. Orr broke 42x50.

In practice shooting on the skeet traps, Orr, Grant and Tway broke 24x25.

Eighteen Barons Drill Under Milan

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 14 (AP)—Eighteen prospective Barons reported to Manager Clyde Milan today at Rickwood field and took their first workout of the year.

The list included all except two of those who were ordered to report today, and a number of others who wanted to get an early start.

Milan had ordered only his pitchers and catchers to report today, with the rest of his squad to answer the roll call Monday.

Henry Shoaf, veteran pitcher, and a rookie named Wright, were the only absentees and they were expected within a day or so.

Emory Freshmen Win Cage Title

A last-half rally led by Manuel Kulbersh gave the Freshmen a 34-32 victory over the Lawyers and the intramural basketball championship in a playoff game Wednesday night on the Emory court.

The Lawyers were leading 19-13 at the end of the first half. Kulbersh dropped in three fields goals in quick succession to tie the score at 19-19. The Freshmen took the lead on a fine throw and were never headed.

Forty Atlanta Tennis Players Invited

ONLY 25 STARS TO BE NAMED BY COMMITTEE

Constitution Is Selected To Extend Invitation to Local Netmen.

By Jack Troy.

This is the official invitation to some 40 Atlanta tennis players to enter their names for the Biltmore invitation tournament, to be played March 26. There will be no written invitations.

The players herein invited who wish to participate in the tournament are asked to reply at once to Bryan Grant or Malon Courts.

Of the following players about 25 will be permitted to play. A committee will decide who will play, Grant said yesterday.

PLAYERS INVITED.

The players invited include Billy Reese, Malon Courts, Jack Simpson, Harry Gault, Kels Boland, Molly Williamson, Reg Fleet, Joe Boland, Lem Bracewell, Milo Potucek, Malcom Manley, Russell Bobbitt, Lindsay Hopkins, Britt Knox, Zack Carnes, Count Boyer, Allison Adams, John Oliver, Howard Moss, Arthur Potter, Doc Wilson, Marion Reese, Dick Courts, Dr. Ralph Aiken, Francis Brannon and Paul Houghton. Also all members of the Georgia Tech and Emory tennis teams.

The select Atlanta field, headed by Bryan Grant, will face at least three of the leading tennis stars of the country.

There will be Frank Shields, No. 1 ranking star, whom Grant defeated at Miami; Lester Stoefen, No. 3 ranking player, to whom Grant lost at Bermuda, and George Lott, tenth ranking star nationally, who beat Grant in the Miami tourney.

GALA OPENING.

It will be a gala opening of the Atlanta tennis season and Grant's next chance to renew his rivalry with the giant Stoefen. The Atlanta star almost overcame the Californian at Bermuda. But rain interfered with his chances.

Grant also will have a chance to get even with George Lott, who maintains he should be ranked higher than Grant nationally.

Twenty-eight other leading amateur stars have been invited for the tournament, which will precede the invitation event at Houston, Texas.

Atlanta, as forecast by The Constitution some months ago, is preparing for one of the greatest tennis seasons of all time.

SMITHIES BEAT TECH SWIMMERS

Tech High's swimming team won its second straight meet of the year in an exhibition with the Georgia Tech freshmen Wednesday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. pool. The score was 38 to 36. The Smithies won from the Emory freshmen some time ago at Emory.

The Smithies placed first in the 160-yard relay, the 40-yard free swim, the 200-yard free swim, the 100-yard free swim and the diving. Tech won the medley relay, the 100-yard breast stroke and the 100-yard back stroke.

Thorne gave Tech High two first places in winning both the 40 and 200-yard free style swims.

The results:

Leading Netmen Enter Semi-Finals

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Four of this country's most distinguished racqueteers—Frank Shields, Gregory Mangin, Lester Stoefen and Sidney B. Wood Jr.—today gained the semi-final round of the men's national indoor tennis championships.

Tomorrow Mangin, who is seeking his third successive title, will oppose Wood, and Shields will engage Stoefen for the honor of fighting it out for the championship on Saturday.

Rated off today's play, Mangin and Stoefen must be given the call. Seldom in the long history of the tournament have the old seventh regiment boards taken such a beating as they did today from the terrific cannonading of the stocky New Jersey boy and the giant Californian.

In licking Andre Merlin, French indoor titlist, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, Mangin displayed a skill at volleying that was breath-taking. Almost as sensational was the merciless forehand fire laid down by Stoefen in blasting George Lott, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

Wood was impressive in turning back Borotra's conqueror, Frank Bowden, 6-3, 12-10, 6-3, and so was Shields as he laced Dr. Eugene McCauliff, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3. But neither of them showed the brilliance of Stoefen and Mangin.

Buresch and Smith At Heights Tonight

On the main event at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight Promoter Frank Bettis has Stanley Buersch, the Australian Kangaroo Kicker, matched against Bull Smith, Hungarian. These two men have never met before, and fans may expect quite a bit of kangaroo kicking from Buersch. This will be a 60-minute match.

The semi-final brings together Eddie Wagner, former navy champion, who challenged Whittie Patterson to a finish match at this arena for Thursday night. This is a grudge affair and it will be a winner-take-all.

Bill Ward, the fast wrestler who has many victories under his belt, will wrestle a formidable opponent, Young Londos, in the opening match. These two men are very skillful and the fans may expect plenty of action in this match.

Promoter Frank Bettis wishes to announce that he will referee all of these matches.

Lakewood Heights arena is located at the corner of Lakewood avenue and Jonesboro road and is heated.

Pitching Staff Only Problem Facing Connie

By Alan Gould.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Perish the thought that there is melancholy in the mind of Connie Mack, or tears in his eyes over the breaking up of his second and perhaps last great championship ball club. At 72, after more than a half a century devoted to the national game, the tall, thin master of the Athletics has banished all regrets in his earnest, keen-eyed enthusiasm for a fresh job of reconstruction.

For one thing, the elderly leader is free for the time being from financial worries that have weighed heavily upon him and his associates for the past few years. For the second time in his career Mack has known the bitter experience of losing money with a championship club. Consequently, the sale of his greatest stars within the past two years, while wrecking his own pennant chances and making contenders out of three rival clubs this season, nevertheless has lifted a heavy payroll burden from the Athletics and brightened the club's hopes of capitalizing on Sunday baseball at home for the first time.

MACK CONFIDENT.

For another thing, Mack feels confident that except for an absolute gamble on his pitching staff he has a first-class ball club this year, one whose speed and batting power, featuring the great Jimmie Foxx, will make it troublesome for all rivals. The main survivor of the 1929-131 champions, Foxx, is a power house all by himself as the American league's leading batsman, home run slugger and run producer. At about $18,000, the Maryland mauler is now the only player on the club whose salary runs into five figures and he had to wage a brisk debate with Mack to get that much.

Mack's infield worries will be removed as soon as Frank Higgins, the last holdout, reports. Eric McNair is a great young shortstop and Dib Williams has replaced Max (Eagle Eye) Bishop at second. They all pack a real batting wallop, along with the rangy outfield trio of Bob Johnson, Roger Cramer and Ed Coleman.

The task of replacing the irreplacables, Lefty Grove and Mickey Cochrane, is something else. It only emphasizes the gap left by this great battery to say that Mack is hopefully inspecting a group of young pitchers named Cascarella, Dietrich, McKeithan, Benton, Kennedy and Matuzak or relying on Charley Berry and Ed Madjeski to do the back stopping. It is extremely doubtful if all six of the ambitious young moundsmen named could combine to duplicate the work of Grove last year, when he won 24 games and saved at least 10 more.

YOUTHS PROMISING.

In short, there are no substitutes for players like Grove and Cochrane, the best proof of which is the fact that on the strength of having one of them apiece, the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers have been babbling about their pennant chances.

"Some of my young pitchers are real promising," says Mack, "but I could not even give you a guess as to what they might do."

That just about sums it up. In Merrit (Sugar) Cain and Roy Mahaffey, Mack has only two seasoned flingers in a group consisting exclusively of right-handers. Consequently there is not even a potential Grove. The old master fancies John Marcum, fast-ball product of the American association who registered two shutouts in his 1933 major league debut. Harry Matuzak, apparently the best of a trio bought from Oklahoma City; Joe Cascarella, from Jersey City, and Tim McKeithan, a former collegian, so far have won Mack's approval but the future of all, under fire, is highly speculative.

The A's are shy anything resembling a seasoned relief pitcher. In fact Mack probably could use several experienced rescue artists. As it is, he may have to work his young pitching staff in relays when the season opens, just as he is doing now in training camp. The rest of the club's reserve strength also is limited. Rabbit Warstler and George Detore are the only infield reserves.

Although Lou Finney can substitute at first base as well as in the outfield. The veteran coach, Bing Miller, is available for pinch-hitting duty. Ray Radcliffe, obtained from St. Paul, also may be carried for outfield reserve duty.

Winn and Lassiter Will Meet Again

Rivalry between Hugh Winn, Georgia, and southern titleholder in the light-heavyweight class, and Freddie Lassiter, Ohio light-heavyweight champion, will come to a climax Monday night, March 19, in the Fair Street indoor arena at Fair street and Capital avenue.

The clamor for a return match between these two has been strong, and Matchmaker Jason Thompson has succeeded in getting them to agree on the terms. Several weeks ago, Lassiter put Bill Crussell out of the running temporarily in a rough scrap, and Winn stepped back into the picture as champion.

Terms on which the two have agreed to meet therefore have included the selection of a new referee, who will be announced later. There will be no time limit, and no holds will be barred. The winner will receive all the money. Mutual charges that the other fellow didn't intend to appear have been settled by both Winn and Lassiter posting $200 cash bond with the boxing and wrestling commission.

Down the Alleys

Mrs. Lindy James, of the Gold Diggers team in the Southern Railway Ladies' Bowling league, burned up the wood on the maple lanes at Blick's Bowling Center Wednesday evening with a 300 series, and was largely responsible for the three-game win of her team over the Gigolettes.

Miss Gertrude Whitney and Mrs. Blum had games of 102 and 108, respectively, as their team, Hoboes, won the second game from the Tramps, in the same league.

The Power Club mixed doubles sweepstakes will be a special attraction at the bowling alleys tonight. The event is scheduled to get under way at 7:30 o'clock and three games will be bowled.

Handicaps assure every pair of players an equal chance at the prize awards, which will be cash.

BERGER LOSES $250 EACH DAY HE STAYS OUT

Fuchs Ultimatum to Star Goes Into Effect on Friday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Emil Fuchs, Boston Braves president, today notified the slugging Wally Berger, now sulking over his 1934 salary terms in Miami, that he would be fined $250 for every day's training he misses after Friday.

The tribal "prexy" wired that threat to Berger today and demanded an immediate answer, which was not forthcoming.

"I gave Berger a $2,500 increase," Fuchs blustered. "He'll take it or leave it. And he's been informed that if he doesn't show up here by Friday, each day's absence thereafter will cost him $250. And I won't give it back to him either."

Ted Kleinhans Gives Up Homer.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 14. (AP)—Those Phillies yannigans served notice on the regulars today that they are by no means to be taken lightly.

In fact, until the last of the first practice game's six innings, the Yans were out in front of their first-string rivals. Then Left Fielder Ethan Allen, in the closing session, hammered one of Ted Kleinhans' slants to right-center field for a four-bagger to tie the score at five-all.

The game was a mere workout, with scoring frequent and errors plentiful. However, Curt Davis and Kleinhans, for the Yannigans, and John Kerdock and John Krider, for the regulars, gave good pitching performances.

Buck Newsom Has Tough Time.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—"Buck" Newsom, fireball king from the coast, is the first casualty of the Browns' 1934 training season.

He was fielding a ball in a pepper game yesterday when he stepped in a hole and fell against the grandstand. The club physician gave his right arm a little attention. He went out and got mixed up in another pepper game and was hit by a batted ball on the same arm. This sent him to the clubhouse for a time.

Johnson To Test Recruit Pitchers.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—(AP) Manager Walter Johnson is all set to find out what his recruit pitchers have got on the ball.

Thornton Lee, Dennis Galehouse and Forest Twogood have been awarded the distinction of pitching in Cleveland's first exhibition game against the New Orleans Pelicans here Saturday. Just two weeks later the Indians open a 14-game series with the New York Giants. Johnson expects to build up a pitching quartet for the series out of Monte Pearson, Oral Hildebrand, Mel Harder, Clint Brown and the recruits.

Red Holdouts Dwindle to Two.

TAMPA, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Holdouts of the Cincinnati Reds dwindled from three to two day, as Ray Kolp, pitcher, signed his contract for 1934. Si Johnson and Joe Morrissey still are outside the fold.

Redland hopes shot upward meanwhile as Chick Hafey reported, 15 pounds heavier than he has been in two years, and promptly, in batting practice, slammed a couple to the fence.

Washington Vets Work Cautiously.

BILOXI, Miss., March 14.—(AP)—The veterans of Washington's pitching staff, Al Thomas and Bob Burke, are training cautiously.

They want to avoid the sore arms that handicapped them and their club last season. Together they won 11 out of 21 games in the 1933 campaign, which wasn't impressive with a championship outfit.

White Sox Rally But Lose to Angels.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—(AP)—Held scoreless for eight innings, the Chicago White Sox put across two runs in the ninth with the aid of a home run by Milton Bocek but dropped an exhibition contest today to the Los Angeles baseball club, 10 to 2.

The Angels went wild in the third inning, scoring seven runs.

The score:

White Sox	000	000	002—	2	5	4
Los Angeles	007	020	01x—	10	12	0

'Flea' Clifton Gets Chance at Last.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 14.—(AP) Herman (Flea) Clifton, who has been trying to make the grade in the majors for two years, has landed at last, and will appear in Navin field with the Detroit Tigers this season, either as a regular or utility infielder.

Clifton has made a very good impression here in the training camp, both in hitting and fielding, and will be used in the season at either second or third.

Dodger Regulars Get Serious, Win.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' regulars decided to play a little serious baseball about the sixth inning of today's practice game after they had taken a pasting from the scrubs yesterday and were trailing 1-0. So they promptly pasted Rookie Bob Edwards for five hits and enough runs to win 4 to 1. Jimmy Jordan, Johnny Frederick and Joe Stripp contributed a three-bagger apiece to the rally.

Grove Uses Zip In Mound Practice.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 14.—(AP) Feeling in fine fettle, Bob ((Lefty)) Grove used all of his southpaw zip today when he took a half-hour turn on the mound for batting practice. None of his Boston Red Sox mates were able to take a clean wallop at his smoky offerings.

Nolen Richardson—Toronto Shortstop.

RICHARDSON.

One of the best all-around athletes ever developed in the city of Atlanta was Nolen Richardson, of Tech High school, now playing professional baseball as a member of the Toronto club of the International league.

Richardson, who afterward entered the University of Georgia at Athens to become a basketball and baseball star there, held a most unique record his last year at Tech High.

He captained the teams in all three sports in which he participated—football, basketball and baseball.

At Georgia, he did not play football, but as a basketball player under Coach H. J. Stegeman and a shortstop on Bill White's baseball team, continued his brilliant play that marked his high school career.

GREAT IN COLLEGE.

While a very fine forward on the basketball team and a very good high school end as a football player, Richardson probably reached greatest renown as a baseball player in college. He was generally conceded to be the best college shortstop in the south at Georgia, Bob Reeves, of Tech, and other good ones not excepted.

At Georgia in 1926, he captained both the basketball and baseball varsities. He had another unusual record in that he never missed a game in either his high school or college career. Nolen Richardson was a very durable athlete and was always a remarkable fielder at the shortstop position, which he always played until he entered professional ball.

He played through an entire season at Tech High school without an error.

Upon leaving college Richardson went with the Detroit club. In fact, the Tiger scouts had had their eyes on him even while he was playing in high school, but fortunately for Georgia, he was left alone until he had played out his allotted time.

Detroit sent Richardson to Fort Worth in 1927, where he was shifted to third base. He never liked the position as well as playing short, but said nothing in his own quiet way and went about learning to play third as well as he could.

FIELDED WELL.

He fielded very well and hit over .300 his first year in the Texas league. He was with Fort Worth two seasons—1927 and 1928—before being called to Detroit for a trial in the big leagues. He started the '29 season with the Tigers, fielded faultlessly but was a little light with the stick against the big league curvers. He was sent to Toronto, a Detroit "farm" for many years, to finish out the season.

Richardson's playing with Toronto was brilliant. He hit .320 there in 1930 an led the league in fielding.

For the next couple of years, the Georgian spent considerable time commuting between Detroit and Toronto. He continued to field brilliantly, however, and was good enough to play in 70 games at third with the Tigers in 1932. He made only two errors and would have led the American league in fielding but for the fact that Jimmy Dykes, of the Athletics, had played in a great many more games. Richardson's average was two points higher than that of Dykes, however.

VALUABLE PLAYER.

Bucky Harris, the Detroit manager, used Richardson often to play third in the tight spots. In other words, he would take the regular third baseman out for a pinch batter in the latter innings and if Detroit tied the score or went ahead, Richardson would go in to play third because of his accuracy on fielding and throwing.

"Talking about playing under a strain, that was it, scooping up those hard-hit balls with men on bases and your team holding a one-run lead," Nolen said once. In one inning he fielded three hard balls in succession to retire the side.

Richardson batted .270 for Detroit. If he could have hit a little more he would be with that club now, for they were shy of a third baseman for several years. But Detroit sent the Atlantan back to Toronto, where he has played good ball since. He has led the International league in fielding for three seasons, including 1930.

This year Richardson will play shortstop, his old position, and hopes to get back to the big leagues. He is only 29 years old and he is very happy to be able to play under Ike Boone, the old University of Alabama star and noted minor league slugger, who has been named the Toronto manager. Boone has told him that he will play short.

REPORTS SOON.

Richardson will report with the Maple Leafs, who will train at Augusta this year, on March 20. He will come here with the team on April 1 for two exhibitions with the Crackers.

Nolen is one of the most popular clean-cut young men in the history of Atlanta sports and has a great many friends here. He is married and has a young son of two and one-half years. He was employed during the winter by Rich's, Inc., and also played a little basketball with the Atlanta pro team as long as it lasted. He always kept in perfect shape as an athlete, during off season and on.

In all his baseball career, which extends quite a way back, including his high school and college and minor league days, Nolen Richardson was put out of only one ball game—that of 1926 with Tech, in Atlanta. But the rivalry was hot in those days and Richardson was captain of the Georgia club. Remember that it was Doug Wykoff's sensational hitting that won that series for Tech.

Bill White, the veteran coach, sent a number of players into professional ball while at Georgia. There were Spurgeon Chandler, Shaky Kain, Andy Chambers and Fred Sale, pitchers; Chick Shivers, Scrappy Moore and Buster Mott, outfielders; J. D. Thomason, first baseman, who played with Columbus a while, and several others. But Nolen Richardson remains the only Georgia infielder of recent years to reach the big leagues.

FIVE U. S. HORSES IN AINTREE RACE

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—Only five American horses were left among the 34 posted today in the final acceptances for the Grand National steeplechasing classic at Aintree March 23.

J. Metcalf's Theras and Patron Saint were added to those previously scratched, leaving only John Hay (Jock) Whitney's Thomond II and Lone Eagle, F. Ambrose Clark's Sorley Boy, J. R. Snow's Delaneige and M. D. Blair's Prince Cherry.

Of the American survivors Delaneige and Thomond II are the most fancied in the betting, being third choices at 18 to 1.

Sorley Boy was held at 20 to 1 in the last callover of odds. You could name your own price on Lon Eagle and Prince Cherry.

Heading the list of final acceptances is Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller, favorite at odds of 100 to 9.

Also named for the blue ribbon jumping test were Mrs. M. A. Gemmell's Gregalach, the 1929 winner; W. Parsonage's Forbra, which galloped home in front in 1932 at the juicy odds of 50 to 1; Major Noel Furlong's lightly-weighted Really True and second choice at 100 to 8; Trocadero and Southern Hero, bracketed with Sorley Boy in the betting.

The number of American-owned entrants is the smallest in years. Ten were named in the final acceptances last year.

The full list of final acceptors, in the order of weights: Gregalach, Thomond II, Golden Miller, Ready Cash, Remus, Collinolagh, Parsons Well, Forbra, Delaneige, Alpine Hut, Southern Hero, Really True, Flambent, Destiny Day, Pelorus Jack, Sorley Boy, Trocadero, Lone Eagle II, Uncle Batt, Egremont, Slater, Prince Cherry, Francolino, Libourg, Annandale, Kilbuck, Fortnum, Apostasy, Somnus, Southern Hue, Blue Peter III, The Act III, Cantilous II, Master Orange.

Culbertson on Contract

By ELY CULBERTSON
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Making the Best of a Bad Situation.

No player is particularly pleased when he must play a hand at five of a major suit. While this contract is often reached by entirely correct bidding in which a Slam try is made and refused, the Declarer who is faced with the necessity of taking eleven tricks when ten tricks would have been sufficient to secure a game is always fearful that some particularly unfavorable distribution will defeat his contract one trick, whereas a game could have been made had the bidding stopped at the safe level of four. Even though the bidding was unexceptionable, the Declarer usually regrets the one extra trick of the contract.

Today's hand, which was played by Mr. George T. Spillman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in a duplicate game, in spite of the precarious contract and very good defense, resulted in declarer's tying for top-score on the board.

North	East	South	West
			Pass

1—After North's jump to four hearts, South, with three honor-tricks, including the kind of his partner's suit, cannot be severely criticized for trying for a slam.

2—Mr. Spillman quite properly decides not to heed his partner's slam try, respecting the fact that both opponents have entered the bidding.

East's opening lead was the spade 6. West won with the spade Ten and returned the seven of clubs, which the declarer quite properly ducked, East winning with the queen. Another spade was returned and ruffed by North. The trumps were then all played out, the ace, king and nine of diamonds being carefully retained in dummy, and the last trump lead squeezed East, who gave up his last guard to the club king. Mr. Spillman now played out his ace of clubs, dropping the king, and won the last three tricks with the four of clubs and the ace-king of diamonds.

A diamond opening, and a diamond return after West wins with the spade ace, is the only defense that can defeat five hearts, but East's opening cannot be criticized. According to Mr. Spillman, he merely obtained a four-way tie for top on the board since three other players playing the hand at four hearts received as an opening lead the club king, which enabled the declarer to make five quite easily.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

With the opening lead of the heart knave, how can South fulfill his contract of four spades on the hand below?

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Only rarely do I burden other people with my troubles but I am asking your help to get rid of my worst enemy—sensitiveness. I have reached the point where my failure to solve the riddle of a happy life with understanding friends is making me lose every shred of self-confidence. I am not able to maintain that closeness in friendship that is so desirable. Even when I am with people I am so lonely that I can hardly keep back the tears. Living away from home increases that sense of loneliness. I have honestly tried to adjust myself to people and to circumstances and my failure frightens me. I don't blame the other fellow for this. I am not a coward. My friends would, no doubt, be surprised to know how unhappy I am. Sincerely I beg you to help me. I am 23 years old.

A STRUGGLER.

ANSWER:

It is possible that there is some physical basis for your sense of failure. Go to a physician, preferably a psychiatrist, and talk out your deep thoughts as you cannot do in a short letter. The expert will ask you leading questions that may develop ideas only partially formulated in your own mind, questions that will help to clarify your thoughts about many matters. He, or she, will make recommendations to you from the scientific point of view.

In the meantime, there are some common sense devices which you may employ to divert your mind and fill your empty life. Engage in some sort of sport, if only walking. This will induce physical weariness which is always a good antidote for worry. When you are tired a hot bath and a good bed will make you forget everything but bodily pain.

A famous metropolitan store is, at the moment, having an exhibition of leisure time pursuits, in common parlance—hobbies. This is an effort of business to capitalize on the new leisure that shortened working hours have given the American people. More than 50 hobbies are represented in the exhibit and experts in each line are lecturing to the crowds that attend. If you are so sensitive that you cannot enjoy association with people you should choose a hobby and pursue it energetically.

There is cllecting, not only a hobby for the rich and well-to-do but a hobby for the poor as well, collecting anything ffrom Indian arrowheads to rare antiques. There is building, anything from an airplane model to miniature furniture. There is needlework, with an endless opportunity for diversion and possibility for making it pay. There are scientific, artistic, literary hobbies any one of whch will fill emptiness and solace loneliness.

If you cannot enjoy association with people because of excessive sensitiveness and sense of frustration, then you should substitute things until you have dulled the keen edge of your disappointment in people. You must find some method of forgetting yourself or go crazy mulling over your situation.

You are doing, my dear young lady, what most of us do at some time in life and what many of us do throughout life—putting too high a premium upon your age. The only cure for this weakness is to force yourself to find outside yourself some absorbing interest. Young, college-bred, financially independent, or at least self-supporting, you might conceivably find that interest in seeking out the needy instead of dwelling on your own need. One of the strange paradoxes in life is that only as we empty ourselves in the interest of others do we find the fullness that we yearn for. This is one of the chief tenets of every worth-while religion. It is a theme that is harped on by psychologists and sociologists as well as religionists.

Lastly, buy the best clothes you can afford, groom yourself carefully. To be conscious that she looks her best has a stimulating effect on a woman's spirit. A new dress will dissipate the blues and a wash and a wave and a manicure have a magical effect on a maiden's mind.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

by Whitner Cary

The women's pair championship, the opening event in the Georgia state bridge championship got off to an auspicious start Wednesday afternoon in the ballroom of the Piedmont Driving Club.

No less than 48 feminine stars answered the call for fame, glory and the handsome Annie Adair Foster memorial bowl that goes to the winning pair for one year. The first session saw the Mitchell movement employed with each pair playing 22 boards. Thursday afternoon, which will see the final session in this event played, the field will be split into two sections of Howell play. The total points made in the two sessions will determine the winners.

As those lines are typed the official scores made during the first session have not been announced.

Several extremely interesting hands were played during the afternoon session but probably the one which produced the greatest thrill and resulted in more varied scores was the following apparent rock crusher:

North.

H—5
D—A K Q J 7 2
C—A K J 10 9

Both sides vulnerable and south the dealer.

Although the honor count in various suits looks tempting the hand is such a misfit at a suit that the best result is notrump. Two pairs, Mrs. Humphrey Wagar and Mrs. William K. Barrett and Mrs. Howard Muse and Mrs. George Street were the only ones to reach and make a grand slam at notrump. Mrs. Wagar, playing the north hand, was fortunate enough to get a double and therefore beat the Muse-Street combination one point on the board. The bidding at Mrs. Wagar's table was as follows:

Mrs. Barrett, sitting south, dealt and opened with two spades. Mrs. Wagar answered with three diamonds to which Mrs. Barrett replied with three hearts. Believing from her distribution and the bidding that the hand was a misfit and that the future lay in notrumps, Mrs. Wagar then bounced into seven notrumps which was doubled. She gave the hand a fine play and deserved to win a well-deserved top.

The opening lead was the heart jack. This was taken in the dummy with the king. The club seven was led and the ten finessed. When this held Mrs. Wagar led four rounds of diamonds. This suit failed to break. The ace and king of clubs was then led and East was hopelessly squeezed, being forced to either unguard the spade jack or the heart ten. Whichever was done made no difference as Mrs. Wagar had the spade deuce to led to dummy's hand.

The first session of the mixed pair is about to begin. The second session in this event will be played Thursday night. At the present time it looks as if about ten tables will go to the post in this event.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

VISITS IN STARLAND.
IV—Meteors.

How would you like to be standing in a barn when a meteor came sizzling down, right through the roof?

That happened, years ago, to William Gaffney, a Wisconsin farmer. Late on a June afternoon, he was working in the barnyard of his farm when he heard a rumbling noise which sounded like thunder. Then he did what proved to be just the wrong thing from the safety point of view—he stepped into the barn and stood there. Hardly an instant after he got inside there was a loud report, "like the firing of a cannon," and a stonelike object came through the roof.

By good fortune, it struck the floor of the barn several feet from where Mr. Gaffney stood. He went to the spot and found that it had gone down nine inches into the hard-packed clay. When he dug it out, he found that it was too hot to hold in his hands, and it remained warm for more than two hours.

The stonelike object was a small meteor cinder, or part of such a cinder. Perhaps the explosion—which was heard at a distance of three miles from the farmer's barn—blew a much larger cinder into bits; but, if so, this was the only piece found. It weighed barely two pounds, but it tore through shingles and a one-inch board in the roof, then through a plank in the hayloft, before it struck the floor.

It happens now and then, though not often, that a person is close to a falling meteor; but more often meteors fall where they are not seen until later. There is hardly a section of the earth from which meteor cinders have not been reported.

During visits to New York city, I have seen a large meteorite in the American museum which was brought from Greenland. It weighs 35 1-2 tons. The British museum in London contains hundreds of meteor cinders.

In Arabia people look upon the "Kaaba stone" as a sacred thing, saying that it "fell from heaven" long ago. This black stonelike object is believed to be a meteor cinder.

Meteors are made up chiefly of iron, or of stone like that which comes from the eruptions of volcanoes. In addition to iron and stone, some meteors contain copper, tin, nickel, aluminum and other elements.

It seems almost certain that some meteors, if not all of them, are bits of broken comets.

PLANE CRASH VICTIMS ARE BURIED IN TEXAS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 14. (AP)—Funeral services with military honors for Flying Cadets Nelson T. Samuels and J. W. Carson, of Kelly field, plane crash victims, were conducted here today.

Cadet Samuel's body will be sent to Baltimore, Md., and later to Arlington cemetery at Washington, D. C., for burial and that of Cadet Carson to Spartanburg, S. C.

Georgia Fields And Streams

By H. A. Carter.

Quite a number of people have telephoned recently, or where long distance charges prohibit, have written in from the fringes of The Constitution's circulation, to protest against the inroads that flying squirrels are making on their property. I had always considered Glaucomys a most amusing little rodent, and utterly harmless. I have lived in houses where visitors invariably went away with the sensation of having been in a rat hole, but if they were not intimate enough with the family to ask and be told that they were flying squirrels, we didn't mind at all.

Yes, I rather like to hear them go scampering over the rafters, and squeaking merrily in the friendly darkness. I have never minded being kept awake by any animal so long as I know it is not rats. Not that I am morbidly afraid of rats. I am wholesomely afraid of them, because I personally know of nothing more dangerous than a rat. Look at the money spent in this very state recently in an effort to control typhus fever, in a program which was based on the extermination of the rat, an immigrant of the most deadly sort. Think of that dreadful and justly dreaded organism of rat-bite fever, that has a high index of mortality in the tropics. But all this is beside the point.

If your are troubled with flying squirrels, you may control them in this style. Make a few light box traps, and see that they are baited with plenty of peanut butter of the nice, smelly, oily variety. Flying squirrels lose their small heads completely in the face of such a sticky mess. They enter the box traps with no suspicion at all, and from the traps they can be removed to whatever sort of disposition you choose to make of them. I recommend that they be sent to me, for I can use them in my studies on the fauna of the state. In fact, the American Museum of Natural History has already asked me to get some specimens of this particular subspecies of flying squirrel for them. If you want to kill them instead of shipping them or bringing them to me, you will do it most easily by gassing them with carbon bisulfide. If you want more immediate action, and cannot afford the time to build traps, burn a few formaldehyde candles in your attic after calking the ventilators. Results are guaranteed.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Bonds and preferred stocks were the chief movers in security markets today. Their direction was upward, the loan averages making another new high for 1934.

Common stocks loitered through an uninteresting and generally featureless session. Rails extended their recent gains by fractions to a couple of points at the best, but edged back when other groups failed to follow. Final price changes were mostly fractional, with gains and losses so well divided that the averages closed unchanged. Turnover was 1,400,869 shares.

Although the market had a firm undertone, traders seemed unwilling to venture far from the sidelines pending clarification of labor and other problems. Some of the aviation stocks improved, Douglas being especially busy. Motors were disposed to do better at times.

Some chain store stocks improved quietly as more recent statistics on sales trickled in showing expected gains over a year ago. American Telephone, ex-dividend $2.25, was firm. Steels were somewhat uneven, United States Steel losing nearly a point net.

Midweek trade reports included the Iron Age comment on the steel industry. Estimating current production at 48 1-2 per cent against 49 per cent a week ago, the review said demand from automotive consumers had been checked by "fear of labor troubles." Evidence of increased caution, it found, was also visible in other direction, but farm equipment makers and producers of containers have been able to expand output. The review thought the steel industry seemed disposed to increase wages if it could advance prices to cover the higher costs.

Bonds traded briskly as prices advanced. In the past week or two the investment market has tended to assert an independence of stocks, a reassuring symptom.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—On the basis of technical market considerations, we believe a further extension of current gains depends largely on the industrial group.

BEER & COMPANY—While the impressive strength continues in the bond market, we do not anticipate any sharp recessions in the stock market.

DOBBS & COMPANY—The market is still waiting for Washington developments.

COURTS & COMPANY—Until something definite is known in regard to present labor controversies the market is apt to be a dull, trendless affair, with minor meaningless moves in both directions.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for the adoption of the Bankhead bill and are inclined to view its passage as a help to the market.

BEER & COMPANY—We continue to favor buying cotton on recessions.

COURTS & COMPANY—Until some of the uncertainties in the present political situation have been ironed out we do not expect any pronounced activity and continue to suggest purchases only on substantial declines from present levels.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY—Should the Bankhead bill fail to pass we believe there would be a very sharp break in prices.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—From now on the wheat market ought to be a weather proposition, with a possible loss in crop outlook if the weather is not fully normal or a little better.

BEER & COMPANY—We continue to believe that the wheat market has little to offer for the time being and would await a more opportune time before making commitments.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY—There is a growing disposition to consider that the wheat market is quite thoroughly liquidated and that any favorable news would be quickly reflected in higher prices.

CURB LIST HOLDS IN NARROW RANGE

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Utilities and specialties advanced moderately on the curb exchange today. All groups, however, did not follow and final quotations among oils, metals and alcohols were marked by minor irregularity.

Activity was at the recent quiet pace, transfers which approximated 278,000 were about the same as the day previous. Fluctuations generally were narrow throughout. The list performed better during the forenoon and light offerings appearing in the last hour were scattered.

General Tire and Rubber rose 3 1-2 points in a good turnover. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Consolidated Mining each gained 4 in less active dealings. Advances of fractions to around a point were shown by American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Consolidated Aircraft, Mead Johnson, National Container, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Payments for the first 12 days of the month were $33,073,277 as compared with $10,377,625 in that period last March.

The increase has lifted income tax collections for the fiscal year almost to the level of the last fiscal year's payments.

For 1934 they stood at $391,280,266, compared with $393,717,268 in the corresponding 1933 period.

Metals.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Copper quiet; electrolytic, spot and future 8. Tin barely steady; spot and nearby 54.00; future 54.02. Iron quiet, unchanged. Lead steady; spot New York 4.00; East St. Louis 3.90. Zinc dull; East St. Louis spot 4.37@4.40; future 4.40. Antimony, spot 7.50.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Cotton fluctuated irregularly today in a quiet market. Differences narrowed somewhat on trade support in the near months and speculative liquidation of later positions. July contracts sold off from 12.39 to 12.30 and closed at 12.34, with the general market closing steady, 1 point higher to 5 points lower.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady but early trade and commission house buying was offset by some southern, Liverpool and wire house selling. During the morning moderate midmonth trade price fixing brought in a little scattered buying, causing the prices to rally to net gains of 2 to 6 points in the more active positions.

Absence of stimulating news with respect to the Bankhead bill appeared to bring in liquidation late in the session when the market established new lows for the day.

May sold off from 12.30 to 12.20 and October from 12.55 to 12.45, involving losses of 3 to 7 points for the list.

Renewed trade price-fixing in the near months developed at the lower levels causing old crop positions to recover most of their loss at the close. January ended at the lowest for the session.

The census bureau report on domestic consumption for February of 477,890 bales against 508,034 in January and 441,203 in February last year was in line with trade expectations.

Part of the late selling in the distant months was credited to southern hedging and also to liquidation of speculative account.

Exports today 26,164 making 5,872,813 so far this season. Port receipts 7,333. United States port stocks 3,234,362.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON SHOWS SLIGHT LOSS

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—(AP) Cotton continued very quiet today with prices keeping in a narrow groove as traders awaited congressional action on the Bankhead bill. Firm stocks supported values early in the day but the market dipped later, closing 3 to 5 points net lower. Census bureau figures showing 477,890 bales of cotton consumed in the short month of February as compared with 508,034 in January and 441,203 in February of last year were bullishly construed.

The market opened a shade easier with Liverpool cables slightly lower than due and sterling about steady. Manchester reported business in cloth and yarns restricted.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 3 to 4 penny points down.

Port receipts 7,333, for week 50,852, for season 6,624,878, last season 7,448,486. Exports 26,199, for week 88,155, for season 5,758,493, last season 5,846,587. Port stock 3,242,931, last year 4,402,924. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 136,177, last year 106,644. Spot sales at southern markets 12,755, last year 16,049.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Continued demand for corporate and United States government bonds again pushed prices up briskly today in the loans market.

The average for 60 domestic industrial, rail and utility issues advanced one-half point to 85.7, another new peak since 1931. Transfers totalled $19,476,000, par value, the largest aggregate since February 16.

The opinion was general that there would be little interruption to the business advance. Estimates were also made of a slightly more than seasonal advance in carloadings.

Certificates of the new American Waterworks 5s appeared for the first time on the list at prices ranging from 107 1-4 to 107 3-4. They were quite active. Among the livelier gainers of fractions to 2 or more points were some bonds of Alleghany Corporation, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, Florida East Coast, Goodyear, International Hydro-Electric, International Mercantile Marine, Louisville & Nashville, National Dairy, Paramount, Postal Telegraph, Southern Railway, Virginia Railway and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Most of the treasury securities edged up 1-32 to 5-32 of a point to new highs for the year.

Foreign obligations were without any particular interest.

Electric Production Gains Over Last Year

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Last week's electric power outturn for the country was 18.4 per cent ahead of the same week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today. This is one of the largest percentage gains ever reported in official figures giving yearly comparisons, but to some extent it resulted from the fact that at this time last year business was still suffering semi-paralysis from the bank holiday.

The week's output of 1,647,024,000 kilowatt hours was off slightly from the previous week which showed a consumption of 1,658,040,000 kilowatt hours. In the corresponding week of 1933 production was 1,390,607,000 kilowatt hours.

In the southern district output was up 18.5 per cent over last year against a gain in the previous week of 11.7 per cent.

CHICAGO, March 14.—(AP)—Notwithstanding a temporary advance of about a cent a bushel to the highest point since February 17, wheat at the last today underwent declines.

Belief prevailed in various quarters that owing to slackness of general speculative demand it would be impossible to uphold wheat prices when liquidation of May delivery got started in earnest. Increasing reports of bullish domestic crop condtions aided the transient rise of the wheat market, but purchasing was mostly in small lots, and during the late dealings the sellers of wheat here were more numerous than buyers.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 lower, corn 1-8 to 5-8 down, oats 1-8 off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to an advance of 2 cents.

Corn and oats took their cue mainly from wheat. Shipping demand here for corn was slack, although Argentine corn presumably for March arrival was quoted in Liverpool today at 60 cents a bushel, up more than 4 cents from yesterday.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

Earnings.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Net profit of the American Sugar Refining Co. in 1933 amounted to $4,801,574 equal to $3.67 a common share, Earl D. Babst, chairman of the board, reported to stockholders today. This compares with net income of $4,504,408, or $3.01 a share in 1932.

"Tariff protection for United States sugar refiners is urgently needed to stem the tide of refined sugar flowing into this country," Mr. Babst stated in his report. He listed total imports as 1,403,579,520 pounds, "enough to supply the needs of 15,000,000 Americans."

Fox Film Corporation reported a profit from operation of $1,410,793 for the 39 weeks since its reorganization beginning April 1 to December 30, 1933, compared with a loss for the 40 weeks ended December 31, 1932, of $7,595,100.

On the basis of 2,436,409 shares of Class "A" and "B" stock outstanding, these earnings amount to 58 cents per share of which $1,080,015, or 44 cents per share, was earned during the last quarter of the year.

Gross revenues for the 39 weeks ended December 30 amounted to $24,288,824 compared with $20,229,900 for the same period in 1932.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 14.—Net income of the Atlantic Coast Line Company for the year ended December 31, 1933, was reported today as $95,224. Net income for the previous year was $506,476.

All officers and directors of the company were re-elected at the annual meeting.

U. S. TAKES PRISONERS FROM FLORIDA JAIL

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Wall Street tonight waited hopefully for something that will sound off a trading move in the stock market.

There are optimists in the Street who believe prices have moved to levels which warrant a rise. There are others in the Street—mainly among the chart readers and technicians—who feel that even lower levels can be reached before any rising market will get under way.

Today's market was a repetition of those in the last week or so. Prices drifted in an aimless course. At the close the prices were irregular. Railroad shares were stronger. Packing stocks showed some strength. But the main list was without any clear cut position and trading again was light, totaling slightly more than a million and a quarter shares.

CHEERED BY RAILS.

Those optimistically inclined took cheer from the railroad group. Many brokers, technicians and traders have insisted the railroads give the true picture of the market. This group in the Dow Jones Averages today was the only one to advance. None of the gains was particularly impressive but there was fairish trading and the majority of issues showed fractional advances. Some Wall Street observers believe rails, particularly the eastern rails, will benefit by defeat of the St. Lawrence waterways treaty in the senate while the steadily advancing carloadings—with New York Central and Pennsylvania reporting peaks for many months and three years in the former—have given added incentive to buying in these issues.

The various points before the trader for tomorrow included such items as:

Electric power production showed the best gain since 1929, on a year-to-year basis, but this somewhat offset by the fact that business was at a low ebb a year ago during the banking holiday.

STRIKE SITUATION.

The strike situation, particularly as affecting the motor car industry, continued to be "loaded with dynamite," as paraphrased by one Wall Street man. The magazine Iron Age today called attention to this situation as affecting motor car demands for steel.

Opposition developing in several sources to the communications control bill.

The indefiniteness—as Wall Street considers the cause to be—surrounding the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market control bill. Request has been made for $50,000 additional funds to continue the investigation and pick up loose ends, while the ultimate manner in revision of the bill still has not been determined.

Buying in aviation stocks in belief that even if air mail contracts are not turned back to private companies, the government will have to buy new equipment for government planes in order to resume the mail routes.

One administration belief that some of the unemployment problem brought about by dismissal of CWA workers is being solved by absorption of labor in industrial concerns.

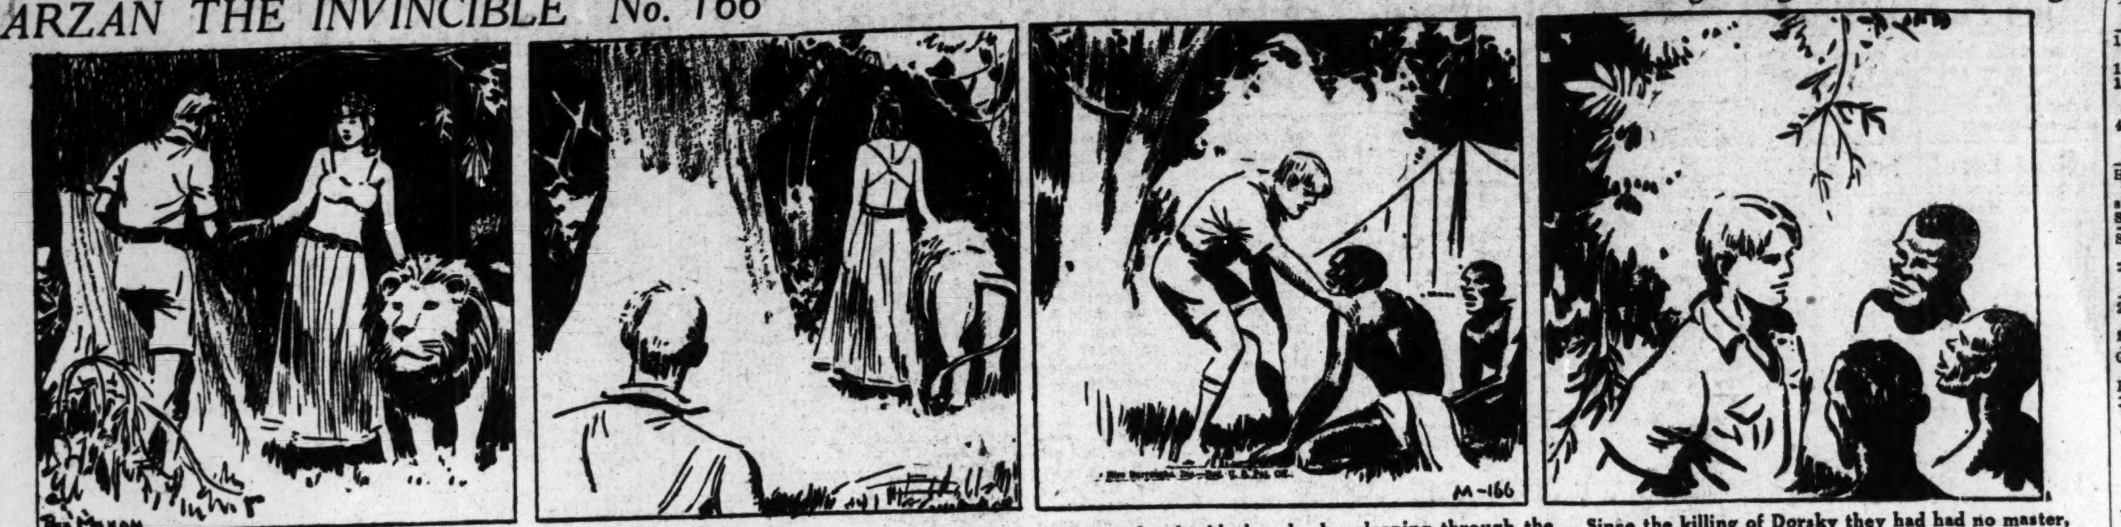
TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 166

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



"Won't you stay at least for today?" asked Colt of La. "No, my friend," she said, "that is impossible. Jad-bal-ja and your blacks could not remain together in the same camp. You would lose your men. Goodbye, Wayne Colt. But remember I have Jad-bal-ja."

From the base camp La knew the trail back to Opar; and as Colt watched her depart he felt a lump rise in his throat; for the beautiful girl and the great lion seemed personifications of loveliness, and strength, and loneliness. With a sigh he turned into camp.

He awoke the blacks who lay sleeping through the midday heat. At the sight of him they were all very excited, for they had been members of his own safari from the coast. At first they were a little frightened until they realized he was indeed flesh and blood.

Since the killing of Dorsky they had had no master, and they confessed to him that they had been considering deserting camp, for they had been terrified by the strange things they had witnessed, and they felt alone and helpless without the protection of their master.

CONTINUED GAINS FORESEEN BY FORD

DETROIT, March 14.—(AP)—Henry Ford, who yesterday announced a restoration of the five-dollar-a-day minimum in Ford Motor Company plants, said today that President Roosevelt is "stopping" a good many "harmful things" that would otherwise be "put over on the people."

Predicting that industrial and commercial condition will continue to improve throughout the year, Ford warned against "get-rich-schemes, whether they come from the stock market, the politicians or the so-called 'labor leaders.'"

"I believe the bankers cannot put anything more over on the American people," he said, "at least not in this generation. In the last year, the American people have learned so much about the bankers that they are no longer afraid of them.

"The bankers of the country would like to use the banks and the labor unions and anything else in their control to destroy competition. In the present condition of the country, a good many harmful things would be put over on the people if the president did not stop them.

"Most of these things come into collision with President Roosevelt. He stops them."

F. D. R. TO NAME FIVE TO STUDY CANAL PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was said by members of the Florida congressional delegation today to have agreed to the appointment of an independent board of five engineers to review the cost of the proposed Atlantic-to-Gulf ship canal.

Senators Fletcher and Trammell and Representatives Sears, Caldwell, Wilcox and Green called upon the president and presented a petition, which they said, was signed by gulf state senators, asking that such a board be named.

The petition, the delegation members said, cited that the army engineers estimated the cost of clearing the canal channel at about $200,000,000 while the engineers of the public works administration placed the cost at approximately $115,000,000.

W. F. Coachman Jr., executive vice president of the national Gulf-Atlantic Ship Canal Association, and H. H. Buckman, association engineer, accompanied the congressional delegation to the White House.

Buckman said the petition pointed out that public works and army engineers had agreed on the fundamental benefits to be derived from such a ship canal but disagreed as to cost.

City Hall Employes Fear Further Cuts

Fred K. Stephens, president of the City and County Public Service Employes' Association, Wednesday issued a statement in which he expressed fear that the compromise budget approved by Mayor James L. Key and members of council will result in further reductions in salaries of municipal employes.

He asserted that an impression is prevalent that city employes have been cut only 3 per cent in the lower brackets and 13 per cent in the brackets of $100 a month or more. Stephens pointed out that many of the laborers have been slashed from 15 to 47 per cent in reduction of time allowed them, and that they can not stand further slashes and make a living.

In addition, he cited large reductions in the personnel of various departments, especially the parks and construction.

SMALL LIQUOR CACHE FOUND IN BARBER SHOP

Liquor concealed in a wall trap hidden by a calendar, and under the cover of a towel on a bench, was confiscated Wednesday night by the Atlanta police "wrecking crew" in a raid on a barbershop and pressing club on Houston street near Ivy, according to police.

Detectives E. S. Acree, Leo Nahlick, J. D. Buice and F. B. Watson reported finding six quarts and a half-gallon in the wall trap, and six pints under the towel, as well as 250 empty pint bottles and 40 empty quart bottles. They arrested J. E. Chapman, 28, of 1094 North avenue, N. E., a barber, and Charlie Smith, 26, negro, of 326 1-2 Old Wheat street, a presser, on charges of possessing whisky. Both defendants made bonds of $100 each.

Californians Produce Play by Decatur Man

Recognizing the work of a Georgia playwright, the Berkeley Playmakers, of Berkeley, Cal., recently produced a play by Herbert Nellis, of 424 West Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur. The play, "The Red Pagoda," was presented at the exclusive Town and Gown Club at Berkeley.

Dispatches from California said the play was produced on February 16 and that the best dramatic talent of the East Bay section of Berkeley made up the cast. The drama, depicting the atmosphere of India and the orient, was supervised by Frances Schaufler, noted actress and author. Several dramatic critics in the west commented favorably on the production.

Talmadge To Decide On Downer Case Today

Governor Eugene Talmadge Wednesday heard a plea for executive clemency filed in behalf of John Downer, Elbert county negro, who is under sentence to be electrocuted Friday for an attack on a young white woman in May, 1931.

The governor delayed his decision until this morning, when, at his own request, he will interview the young woman and her husband who were not in the city Wednesday. The young woman was attacked while in the presence of the husband, the attack occuring the night before their marriage.

The plea for commutation was argued by Harry Strozier, of Macon, and Judge Henry C. Hammond, of Augusta, attorneys for Downer, while it was vigorously opposed by Solicitor-General A. Steve Skelton, of Hartwell, who prosecuted the case.

The prison commission has declined to recommend clemency for Downer.

Chicagoan Is Named Democratic Treasurer

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Walter J. Cummings, Chicago banker, is to be the next national treasurer of the democratic party and within a week will get started on his task of reducing the $500,000 party deficit.

His acceptance of the post was announced tonight by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee. He will succeed Frank C. Walker, of New York, who resigned several months ago to become executive director of the national emergency counsel.

Before appointing Cummings, Farley offered the job to Major John S. Cohen, of Georgia, who declined. Cohen said tonight he was sure "there could have been no more admirable appointment" and that it would "meet with the hearty approval of democrats throughout the country."

2 Filipinos Jailed In Extortion Scheme

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—The arrest of two Filipinos and search for a third involved in an extortion and kidnaping plot against Louis Hager, of St. Louis, and his 3 1-2-year-old son was announced today by the justice department.

Manuel C. Lopez and Andrew Haime were seized in New Orleans today, while George Cubano, the third, said by justice officials, to be implicated by Lopez's confession, was sought in St. Louis.

The similarity of the handwriting of Lopez, a former employe of the C. Hager & Sons Hinge Manufacturing Company, and the penmanship in the extortion letters, was the clue.

JUDICIAL REFORMS URGED BY CUMMINGS

Attorney-General Advocates Action To Avoid Breakdown of Agencies.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Drastic revision of judicial procedure under the guidance of the supreme court to remedy a "distressing breakdown of the law enforcement agencies in many parts of our land" was urged tonight by Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings.

Addressing the silver jubilee banquent of the New York County Lawyers' Association, the attorney-general declared he was authorized to say such a method of reform carried the indorsement of President Roosevelt.

Cummings said he has suggested to house and senate committees legislation to effect this reform.

"I am persuaded that if the federal courts could reform their procedure and render it not only simpler but more responsive to actual needs," the attorney-general said, "the example of such a system would have a powerful and corrective effect upon the practice in the states.

"Perhaps the most vital objection is that the federal courts are tied to the antiquated system of statutory regulation now generally prevailing in the various states. Reform and improvement are, therefore, hopelessly stalled at the outset."

The cabinet member cited the practice in America for more than a century of permitting the supreme court to regulate practice and procedure in equity cases.

"The results have been highly satisfactory," he added. "If this power could be extended to actions at law, the court would be in a position to unite the equity and law practice so as to secure one form of civil action and procedure for both. This would constitute a legal reform of the first magnitude."

Three Convicts Flee Cobb County Gang

A white man and two negroes late Wednesday afternoon escaped from the Cobb county chain gang under fire from guards as they leaped from a truck near Marietta on the Powder Springs road, according to a report to Atlanta police by Warden John Hood, of Cobb county.

Hood said that the three men were trailed for three miles with dogs but that they made good their escape. The convicts who got away were: B. A. Mullins, 20, of Rome, four to eight years for highway robbery; Walter Gibson, 21, negro, of DeKalb county, 13 to 17 years for burglary, and Elmer Prestley, 35, negro, of Cobb county, 12 months for a misdemeanor. The trio filed the shackles so that the iron broke easily when they were ready for the dash, police were told.

FRAUD IS CHARGED TO AIR MAIL LINES BY LABOR SPEAKER

Charging that fraud on the part of air mail operators brought about the curtailment of service, R. L. Johnson, business agent for the machinists' union of the American Federation of Labor, spoke before the regular meeting of the federation of trades in Atlanta Wednesday night and scored air line executives for "padding pay rolls and personnel records for a showing to the government."

Mr. Johnson said that because operators had "padded pay rolls in their reports to the government, unreasonable demands were made and secured." He stated that the operators had reported wages to the government which were from 40 to 100 per cent higher than the actual wage paid to mechanics and operators.

The regular meeting also was featured by the installation of officers elected at the last meeting and a speech by C. W. Bolick, of the United Textile Workers of America, who condemned "the stretch-out method which has been employed by American labor in recent months."

MISS. HIGHWAY BODY IS FLAYED BY CONNER

Governor Refuses To Approve $10,000,000 PWA Road Loan Bill.

JACKSON, Miss., March 14.—(AP) In a scorching arraignment of the state highway commission, Governor Sennett Conner today informed members of the Mississippi legislature, assembled in joint session, of his refusal to aprove the $10,000,000 PWA highway loan bill.

As soon as the governor finished speaking and the house session resumed, Representative Fielding Wright, of Rolling Fork, chairman of the committee on highway financing, moved that the house override the veto and fix consideration of the motion as special order of business tomorrow. The motion passed with only a few scattered "nays."

A two-third majority of both houses is necessary to override the veto.

The message contained sharp criticism of State Superintendent of Education W. F. Bond, who is seeking an increase in the common school appropriation for the current biennium.

The governor suggested that the legislature investigate the highway department, and "adopt legislation to compel efficiency and economy in this department, and to confine its activities to the purposes for which it was created. In other words," said the governor, "make them build roads instead of political machines. If you do this you will render the state a real service and may eliminate the danger of our losing federal monies, as was threatened last year because of the inefficiency of this department."

That a veto also awaits the homestead exemption bill, which is being enrolled and enclosed after passage by both houses, was strongly hinted in the message when the governor declared "thousands are losing their homes at tax sales to pay bond issues. You have proposed to give the average home-owner a reduction of about $3 on his tax bill through a so-called homestead exemption, and to supply revenue displaced by this nominal exemption you propose to mortgage his home with a bond issue."

SOUTH CAROLINA SOLONS FIGHT ON APPROPRIATIONS

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 14.—(AP) While the senate wrangled over a motion to recommit the $6,947,000 appropriation bill, the house today plunged into its calendar in an attempt to clear the way for sine die adjournment as soon as the pivotal supply measure can get its final approval.

In the face of what appeared to be another senate deadlock on money matters, the house took stock of its accomplishments to date and found that only five of the 46 counties have yet to introduce their supply bills for the next fiscal year.

Before becoming embroiled in the appropriations fight, the senate was prevented from taking immediate action on a joint resolution to extend the time for the payment of property taxes to May 1.

An objection by Senator Hughs, of Oconee, carried over consideration of the resolution until a later time. The taxes are scheduled to go into execution tomorrow. The resolution was passed by the house more than two weeks ago.

No sooner had the finance committee's new $6,947,811 appropriation bill been presented to the senate than it came in for a double-barreled attack. The committee bill proposed to raise state employers and teachers 10 per cent by slashing departmental allotments, and to leave the present six-month school term as it is.

A dissenting minority of the committee offered a motion to recommit the bill with specific instructions to cut it to the 1933 basis of about $5,400,000 and leave an estimated surplus of $1,600,000 to provide for an eight month school term, repealing district property taxes.

Pending before the senate also is a counter-proposal by Senator Purdy, of Jasper, to table the committee bill and to work out another measure on the senate floor to "come within revenue." Senator Purdy said a previous $6,784,000 bill had been recommitted after objections that it exceeded revenue, and that the committee had returned with a bill $164,000 higher.

FRANCE YIELDS POINT IN ARMS STALEMATE

Shows Tendency To Retreat From Adamantine Stand on Guarantees.

PARIS, March 14.—(AP)—France will propose a four-point arms convention in reply to the recent British disarmament plan.

A note now being drafted by the foreign affairs committee, it was learned tonight on reliable authority, will accept an arms treaty, providing that:

First, German storm troopers are included in any count of the reich's soldiers.

Second, France will not be asked to disarm immediately if the reich is granted the right to rearm.

Third, serious guarantees will be given that the convention be carried out faithfully.

Fourth, that the convention be concluded shortly because many countries are already speedily rearming.

Failing in these reservations, the note hints, it was said, that France will be unable to budge unless Great Britain offers to come to the aid of France in case of attack.

VIENNA, March 14.—(AP)—Rumors of arms shipments from Italy to Hungary caused excitement here today, even though an official communique branded them "products of malicious fantasy."

An independent investigation, meanwhile, revealed that a trainload of armed cars passed through Sillian and Lienz on March 8. Another train, also eastbound, passed through Lienz the following day.

This train of 24 cars included 20 cars of artillery and four cars of armored automobiles. Because they were going east, some who saw them assumed they were bound for Hungary.

It had not been established tonight, however, whether they actually crossed the Hungarian frontier.

Yen To Be "Engineers" Gets Two Boys in Trouble

A deserted steam roller, with steam up and rarin' to go . . . a lonely stretch of street . . . and two young boys with that greatest ambition of childhood, to be an engineer with hand on the throttle and keen eyes sweeping the roadbed.

You've experienced the thrill, in imagination. Melton Berry, of 705 Coolidge avenue, and Victor Freithe, of 558 Orme circle, both 14, experienced it in reality Wednesday when they came across the city's steam roller on Elmwood drive, according to police reports.

Motorcycle Patrolmen W. J. Stallings and G. M. Haley came along just as the juggernaut was getting under full steam and the young engineers were having the time of their lives watching the pavement slip by. Both boys were turned over to juvenile authorities.

GILLIAM IS OPTIMISTIC OVER PLAZA PROPOSAL

Alderman Leaves Washington After Conferring With Officials of CWA.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—After a series of conferences with officials of the civil works administration Alderman Ed Gilliam, of Atlanta, returned home this afternoon optimistic over prospects for obtaining approval of the proposed $300,000 downtown plaza project.

Councilman Gilliam explained that no application has yet been filed for approval of the development, the conferences here being preliminary in character, but after returning to Atlanta he will go over the situation with Miss Gay B. Shepperson, CWA administrator for Georgia, with a view of presenting a formal request for the necessary funds. In the initial discussions officials here reacted favorably to the proposal, he said.

The project calls for building a plaza over downtown railroad tracks between Forsyth and Pryor streets, with the CWA to furnish approximately $250,000 of the total cost of labor and materials. The city of Atlanta would provide additional materials costing $50,000.

"The proposed development," said Mr. Gilliam, "would not only serve a useful purpose but would go a long ways in beautifying an important business section of Atlanta. I received encouragement from officials during my conferences here and steps will be taken to advance the project after returning to Atlanta."

ARMY MAIL PILOTS HANDICAPPED--HAIZLIP

Army fliers had met with disaster in their attempts to carry the mail because their training had been specialized in a different form of aviation, James Haizlip, distinguished aviator, said Wednesday at a luncheon given for him and Mrs. Haizlip, herself a distinguished aviator, at the Athletic Club.

"You must understand that I am not taking sides in the air mail controversy," Captain Haizlip explained. "I simply want to point out the disadvantages these army boys suffered under.

"These young men are extremely capable. Out of 10,000 applications not more, perhaps, than 200 are finally qualified for army flights. They are picked men, intelligent, well-trained, alert and in perfect physical conditions.

"But their training is in combat flying which calls for a technic as different as possible from that used in commercial aviation. In the army aggression and maneuvering are insisted on. In flying the mail, the planes must fly evenly.

"It was too much to expect that young men so trained could respond to a new method overnight, and do as well as pilots trained for five or six years in it. Called on suddenly to do night flying under adverse weather conditions, in planes insufficiently equipped with instruments, it was natural that they should have met with disaster. However, I believe that this problem is soon to be solved satisfactorily."

He compared the visual method used by aviators in the pioneer era with the instrument method now used, and described in detail his famous cross-country flight which he won, much to his surprise.

Captain Haizlip's wife, May Haizlip, also made a talk. Jesse Draper presided, and talks were made by W. G. Hastings, of the city council; Major William Plummer, and Major Wiley Wright, of the department of commerce, introduced the Haizlips. Carl Becker, of the St. Louis organization of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, which brought the aviators here, spoke. Captain and Mrs. Haizlip left for Macon during the afternoon.

Auto Workers Appeal for Federal Steps To Make Employers Recognize Unions; Prompt Action Is Sought.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Labor today began a major campaign for government assistance in winning industrial recognition of unions and equality of bargaining power between workingmen and their employers.

At the national labor board, a hearing called to try to prevent widespread strikes in the automobile industry brought demands from American Federation of Labor men that employers be made to recognize their unions coupled with warnings that the auto plants were "like a tinder box" to which a match would be touched unless prompt action were taken toward satisfying the men.

At the capitol, Secretary Perkins joined Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, and other witnesses in urging the senate labor committee to approve Wagner's bill which would create a permanent labor board and outlaw employer influence over the organization of employes.

Today's were the first hearings on the measure, much opposed by leading industrialists.

As the automobile workers testified, leaders of that industry sat waiting their turn to answer the claims and demands. The automobile executives were resting upon yesterday's call by their code authority for a 36-

$50,000 Is Recovered In S. C. Bank Hold-Up

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) Solution within a week of the South Carolina National bank robbery at Greenville and recovery of the missing $50,000 was announced today by the justice department.

Under arrest in the case were Hugh White, bookkeeper of the bank; Officers John Corea and John Lindsay, of the Greenville police department, and Robert Willomen, a gasoline service station operator. Justice investigators said White confessed "that the purported robbery was premeditated by himself" and three others.

The alleged robbery took place March 8 when White reported he had been robbed on his way to the bank from the postoffice with a registered package containing $50,000.

ACTION POSTPONED ON COTTON BILL; VOTE SEEN TODAY

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—The Bankhead compulsory cotton control bill, scheduled for house action today, was side-tracked by the rush of action on veterans' legislation.

Proponents of the measure were hopeful that the way would be cleared for action tomorrow.

While the cotton legislation marked time, a cheering note came from the department of agriculture which in a report announced that the 24,969,000 running bales of cotton used by mills in this and other countries in the year ended January 31 represented a 10 per cent increase over the previous year.

While sponsors of the bill hope it can be forced to a vote tomorrow, since it is open for amendment, action may be delayed until Friday.

Chairman Jones, democrat, Texas, of the agriculture committee, said that several important amendments were to be offered by certain opponents of the legislation in addition to a few perfecting amendments to be submitted by the committee.

"We expect the measure will pass by a safe margin," Jones said.

About an hour of general debate remains to be consumed. During it, Representative Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, co-author, will conclude argument for the measure.

The bill has the approval of President Roosevelt. It limits production in the coming cotton year to 10,000,000 bales and imposes a tax of 50 per cent of the market value of cotton produced in excess of quotas allocated farmers.

Meanwhile, world cotton consumption by mills was reported by the bureau of agriculture economics to have totaled 24,969,000 running bales during the 12 months ended January 31, 1934, compared with 22,676,000 bales during the preceding year, an increase of 10 per cent.

Consumption of American cotton during the same period was 14,338,000 bales compared with 13,051,000 bales during the preceding year, also a 10 per cent increase.

Most of the increase in world consumption came during the first six months of the year when 12,450,000

Col. Gasser Named Chief of Staff Here

Colonel Lorenzo D. Gasser, who commanded the American troops at Shanghai during the Japanese attacks in 1931 and who is now in Manila, has been named chief of staff of the fourth corps army area under Major General George Van Horn Moseley to succeed Colonel Lewis Brown Jr., who is at Denver on sick leave, it was announced Wednesday as Colonel Gasser prepared to sail from Manila on Saturday.

Colonel Gasser is expected to arrive in Atlanta after spending two months at his home in Tiffin, Ohio. Advices that he sails Saturday for Tiffin were received by a brother-in-law, Ralph Sugre, of Tiffin, by cable.

Colonel Gasser served on the army's general staff during the world war. General Moseley said Wednesday night that he had communicated with Colonel Gasser, whom he described as a "very fine officer," by cable several weeks ago and advised him that he need not report here until summer. Colonel Brown, who is expected back at Fort McPherson in the late summer, probably will be assigned to lighter duties until he fully recovers his health, it was said.

BIG NEGRO SCHOOL, 4 OTHER BUILDINGS DESTROYED IN FIRE

Fanned by a stiff breeze and spreading in a manner that reminded many persons of the disastrous 1917 blaze, a fire which caught and destroyed the Holmes Institute, five-story negro school at 411 Hilliard street, early Thursday morning threatened the thickly populated section at Forrest avenue and Hilliard street while firemen called out on two alarms battled to get the fire under control.

Shortly after the fire was discovered at midnight, it had gutted the institute, an adjacent apartment building and two houses in the rear of the institute, and was burning another apartment building. Residents of the neighborhood were out in force on the roofs of their homes, using garden hose and brooms to extinguish sparks which were carrying as far as Felton drive, a distance of several blocks.

Occupants of houses and apartments close to the site of the institute were evacuating their homes, taking their prized possessions with them as the flames appeared gaining headway.

The midnight fire was the second big blaze in the vicinity within 12 hours, and may have originated from smouldering sparks left from the first blaze, which destroyed an apartment building and six houses. Another fire during the day damaged three houses on Berean avenue at Nos. 163, occupied by H. C. Brooks, 159, occupied by C. W. Howsley, and 165, occupied by A. J. Brookside.

In the earlier fire in the Holmes Institute section, the blaze started at 15 Felton drive from an undetermined origin, and spread to 12, 21 and 23 Felton drive, 388 Pine street, and 397 Merritts avenue. The apartment house was at 401 Merritts avenue.

The Holmes Institute, a five-story and basement brick building, was occupied by a number of students who were led to safety through the flames. Reports indicated that all of the occupants got out of the building.

Telephone and power posts and lines in the vicinity caught from the sparks, and employes of the utilities were kept busy cutting power lines in the danger area and extinguishing fires on pole-tops.

Attracted by the fire-sirens and the glow in the sky, thousands of Atlantans turned out as spectators, and automobiles were parked for many blocks in all directions.

Houses in the rear of the institute which caught fire were on Currier place. Sparks caught fire to a brick apartment house at 386 Felton drive, but this place was quickly gotten under control.

The Holmes Institute is headed by the Rev. B. R. Holmes, negro, a pioneer in education of his race, who has frequently obtained help from the Fulton county commission for his institution.

3 STATES FIGHT $3 GEORGIA TAGS

Louisiana, Connecticut and Alabama Arresting Users of $3 Licenses.

Two states, Louisiana and Connecticut, Wednesday opened warfare on Georgia's $3 tags and Alabama continued its drive against them, as Governor Eugene Talmadge promptly came to the defense of those discommoded by the acts of the other states.

From Louisiana came reports that all cars bearing Georgia tags were being stopped and the drivers made to identify themselves as bona fide residents of Georgia before being allowed to continue, while in Connecticut similar action was reported, although not on as extensive a scale as in Louisiana.

Governor Talmadge telephoned Governor O. K. Allen, of Louisiana, at Baton Rouge, and the chief executive of that state assured him that Georgia drivers would be shown every courtesy while in his state. However, reports from New Orleans said that motorists still were being stopped and their cars stored until they were able to prove themselves residents of this state.

Colonel E. P. Roy, of the Louisiana state police, said at New Orleans that motorists illegally equipped with Georgia tags would be forced to buy proper license plates before being permitted to drive their cars in Louisiana.

In Connecticut, a CWA worker has been arrested and faces prosecution for driving a car with Georgia tags.

Alabama is carrying on a constant warfare against the Georgia tags under an authorization issued several months ago by Governor B. M. Miller, who told S. R. Butler, state tax commissioner, and Captain L. G. Smith, state highway director, that "Alabama residents must buy Alabama tags—that's all," it was revealed Wednesday.

Georgia motorists are allowed 30 days' stay in Alabama under a visitor's stay with a Georgia tag, but after that period expires they must buy Alabama tags ranging in price from $11.75 to $30 on a weight basis, it was said.

Numerous arrests have been report-

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pictured during her tour of inspection of ruined homes in the poorer section of Christiansted, St. Croix, Virgin Islands, during her flying tour of the Caribbean.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 14.—(AP)—At his first press conference since taking charge of the affairs of the island, Governor General Blanton Winship said today that the visit of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was a great thing for Puerto Rico.

He said he was struck by Mrs. Roosevelt's keen interest in every phase of island problems and that he felt certain that Puerto Rico will benefit in many ways as a result of her personal study of conditions.

"Mrs. Roosevelt has given much attention to the island's plight, and while it is hard to immediately offset the effects of three hurricanes in four years, yet I think she will be able to do much to help bring the situation back to normal," he said.

He added that Puerto Rico is happy to have such a full report made for the president.

The wife of the president will return to the United States tomorrow by airplane.

She reviewed the reserve officers training corps today at the University of Puerto Rico. The cadets and co-eds cheered her when she arrived and left.

During the day she shopped, began her packing, and inspected the school of tropical medicine. At the school she talked with research workers about hookworm and tuberculosis on the island.

Later she paid a visit to the convent of the Sisters of Notre Dame where she received a large consignment of needlework which she arranged to purchase on a previous visit last Saturday.

Mrs. Roosevelt was informed that handkerchiefs for the president were embroidered at the same table at which a vestment was being made for Pope Pius XI.

IL DUCE, DOLLFUSS DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Austrian View of Central European Scene Given Italian Premier.

ROME, March 14.—(AP)—The Austrian view of the central European scene was given Premier Mussolini today by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss, of Austria, as a supplement to conferences Il Duce has had with the Hungarian premier, Julius Goemboes.

From the exchange of plans, hopes and opinions the three leaders were expected to evolve decisions of far-reaching import involving, it was generally agreed, a closer relationship among the three countries.

Premier Goemboes, who talked with Mussolini yesterday, was not at the council table today, but the three men sat at an exhibition of horsemanship and again tonight at a sumptuous state banquet Premier Mussolini gave in honor of his guests in Venezia palace.

Only Austrian and Hungarian diplomatic representatives attended the dinner, along with high Italian officials, including American Ambassador Long and his staff, were present at a reception given after the banquet.

It had been understood that the three conferees would meet together, but at the last minute it became known that Mussolini would receive the visitors separately. Well-informed persons believed the separate conferences would be the best approach to an agreement.

Four Possible Results.

Four possibilities were advanced as probable results of the exchanges.

1—A military alliance.

2—A customs union or economic alliance.

3—A consultative pact, wherein each power would agree to consult the other two before taking any action that might react upon them.

4—Limited agreements for increases in commercial exchanges.

GEORGIAN IS SAILOR ON ILL-FATED VESSEL

I. C. Walker, 22, of Wrightsville, Ga., a nephew of Mrs. J. E. Stewart, of 1541 Bankhead avenue, was one of the seamen aboard the Fulton when the ship was burned, his aunt said Wednesday night. Members of the family had not heard from Walker since the fire, but expressed hope that he was not one of the injured. Walker has been in the navy for about eight months, spending most of the time in California up to three months ago when he joined the Fulton. Mrs. Stewart said that she received a letter from Walker, who frequently visited the family here, about two weeks ago.

HONG KONG, China, March 15.—(Thursday.)—(AP)—The 187 men aboard the United States gunboat Fulton when flames enveloped her during a heavy storm were brought safely to this port early today.

Three of the crew were injured. One suffered smoke in the lungs, another had a broken arm, and the third a broken leg. Their names were not available. The Fulton was on patrol duty against pirates.

Their rescue by the British destroyer H. M. S. Wishart and the Chinese steamer Tsinan was an example of wonderful seamanship, the survivors related.

Commander Todd, of the Wishart, brought his craft alongside the ill-fated ship at a great risk in a heavy sea.

Twice huge waves forced the two vessels apart, but the Wishart returned and each time took men off. The Fulton's two launches and whaleboat

Zack Cravey To Order Arrest Of 15 Owners of Seized Game

Zack D. Cravey, state commissioner of game and fish, announced Wednesday that he would swear out warrants today for the 15 prominent Atlantans whose names were tagged to a quantity of quail and other game found stored Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Commissioner Cravey said that under the law he could do nothing but prosecute, even though a poll of sportsmen showed that not one in 10 knew that to keep game for longer than three days after it is killed is against the law.

The 15 persons to be accused all are prominent in the business and social life of the city.

The commissioner said he had been advised by legal experts that he could do nothing but let the law take its course.

Perhaps it is just as well for Commissioner Cravey said he had been authorized to quote E. B. Whitehead, of Savannah, federal game warden, as saying that if the state of Georgia did not act to prosecute the 15 Atlantans he would have to take action against them in the federal courts. It is presumed that if the state prosecutes there will be no federal action.

Under the game and fish law violations are misdemeanors and the cases, if made, will be tried before Judge Jesse M. Wood, of the criminal court of Atlanta, who upon conviction may mete out any sentence he chooses up to 12 months' imprisonment and a fine of $1,000 or both.

It was reported Wednesday that another prominent Atlanta club which had stored game for its members had disposed of the game after hearing of the "raid" on the driving club.

HOUSE DEFEATS WIDE VET RAISES, VOTES PAY HIKE

Taber's Compromise Adopted by 189-92; Increase of 10 Per Cent in Federal Salaries Approved.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—After once breaking away from administration leaders, the house settled down tonight and adopted compromise proposals on veterans and federal pay legislation contained in the controverted independent offices supply bill.

This action came at the close of a long day which had seen democrats join with republicans and farmer-laborites in an uprising aginst administration desires that the measure be sent to conference with the senate for a settlement satisfactory to President Roosevelt who had threatened a veto.

As dispatched to conference tonight, the measure included the $90,000,000 Taber compromise proposal for increased benefits to former soldiers and the Vinson amendment restoring 5 per cent of government salaries on February 1 and another 5 on July 1.

Restoration of Pay.

The senate originally had overstepped the administration to boost veterans' benefits about $118,000,000 and direct a 5 per cent restoration of federal pay now and the full 15 per cent on July 1.

Confronted by the veto threat, the house voted 222 to 191 for the proposal of Representative Taber, republican, New York, and 185 to 101 for the pay restoration proposition of Representative Vinson, democrat, Georgia.

On the Taber compromise, 201 democrats were joined by 21 republicans in voting for it while 97 democrats, 89 republicans and five farmer-laborites voted against. Speaker Rainey also voted for.

The Vinson pay restoration amendment was estimated to cost $28,000,000 to June 30, 1934, and from $125,000,000 to $130,000,000 for the next fiscal year compared with $190,000,000 estimated as the cost of the full 15 per cent restoration provided in the senate amendments.

Altogether the senate amendments were estimated to increase the bill by $354,000,000.

Representative Connery, democrat, Massachusetts, leader of the fight for the adoption of the senate amendments, forced a second vote on each of the compromises in a final effort to get the house to reverse itself.

Rule Is Defeated.

Earlier in the day, the veteran bloc joined by republicans and farmer-laborites, successfully defeated administration leaders' effort to bind the house to send the bill to conference under a rule preventing votes on pay and veterans. The vote was 247 to 169, with 131 democrats bolting their caucus rule under which they were supposed to be bound.

J. B. Belcher Robbed of $43; Police Receive New, Deadly Armament.

"Ride and rob" bandits resumed activities in Atlanta late Wednesday afternoon when J. B. Belcher, of 30 Capitol square, was taken for a ride by two white men and robbed of $43 in cash.

After a quiet day on the crime front, featured by delivery to the police department of new and deadly armament in its war on crime, Belcher reported the robbery to police shortly before 7 o'clock Wednesday night. He said he was driving on Butler street under the railroad bridge when a man apparently drunk staggered out in front of him.

When Belcher slowed down to avoid striking the "drunk," another man and the inebriate jumped on his car and forced him to relinquish the wheel. They covered him with pistols and drove his car out Fair street to South Boulevard and the Decatur street underpass, where they were stopped by a red light. While stopped one of the men took Belcher's money and jumped from the machine and the other jumped out and escaped after

ATHENS, Greece, March 14.—(AP) The Greek government today ordered the expulsion tomorrow of Samuel Insull Sr., fugitive utilities operator, but there appeared to be some question whether the deadline set will actually be adhered to by the authorities.

It was announced that police officers will escort the Chicagoan to the frontier tomorrow some time. However, some quarters intimated that a full agreement has not yet been reached on the method of expulsion, and there may be a delay of one or two days.

The liner Statendam, here on a cruise, sails Thursday en route to the United States, and there were some reports that Insull might be placed aboard this ship.

Murder 'Victim' Appears To Free Seven Suspects

SHELBYVILLE, Tenn., March 14.—(AP)—"Uncle Billy" Martin, for whose "slaying" his brother and six negroes have been arrested, returned today in good health with the explanation he had been "south for a while."

Martin dropped from sight January 1 and during an investigation of his disappearance charred bones, identified as those of a human, were found in a deserted cabin on the farm of his brother, Felix Martin, near here. Later Duck river was dragged in an effort to find parts of the body.

The missing man's reappearance caused intense excitement. Those held for his "murder" were ordered released. Martin said he knew nothing of the disturbance his absence had caused.

Ratification Refused by 42 Against to 46 for It. Roosevelt Plans To Resubmit Proposal.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) The senate today forcefully rejected the St. Lawrence seaway pact for which President Roosevelt had fought for half a decade as both chief executive of the nation and governor of New York.

Ratification was refused by a vote of 42 against the pact with Canada to 46 for it, giving the Roosevelt administration its first defeat on legislation backed by it. A two-thirds majority was required for approval.

Warned, by his lieutenants at the capitol that defeat impended, President Roosevelt announced even before the vote that as soon as circumstances permitted he would resubmit the treaty and again ask that it be approved.

The first reaction from the foes of the compact was that such a course would only bring about a second defeat for the president. But second thought brought the conclusion his chances would be considerably heightened if, when the treaty again goes to the capitol it included provisions guaranteeing United States sovereignty over Lake Michigan or proposed a pact with Canada on power development.

Would Favor Power Treaty.

"If a power treaty is offered, I'd vote for it."

It was from the western water-power states that the administration drew many of the 46 votes which fell far short of the necessary two-thirds. The 42 votes the opposition mustered against ratification (22 were democratic and 20 republican), came from districts in which it was argued the northern ship route would sap away commerce now beneficial to those sections.

There was a feeling that despite Mr. Roosevelt's decision to try for ratification again at the first opportunity, the treaty would not reappear on the floor of the senate at

Salvador Explosion Kills 150 Persons

SAN SALVADOR, Salvador, March 14.—(AP)—An explosion of 250 cases of dynamite at the near by port of La Libertad today caused approximately 150 deaths, injuries to many more, and widespread property damage.

The dynamite was being unloaded from a ship when it exploded in a cellar and caught fire. The cause of the blast could not be determined exactly since all those handling the explosives were killed.

Among those killed were four customs agents and a telegraph operator.

Firemen, Red Cross workers and national guardsmen were rushed from San Salvador to the scene of the disaster, which occurred at 7 a. m. A temporary disruption of communication facilities delayed reports of the tragedy.

ARMY WILL RESUME MAIL FLYING TODAY

The army air corps this afternoon will resume mail flying in and out of Atlanta, but only one of the four old routes will be retained. The mail will be flown only on the Atlanta to Washington route, the routes between here and Jacksonville, here and New Orleans and here and Chicago having been dropped.

The army will fly mail between Jacksonville and New York by way of Savannah.

Under the schedule to be inaugurated today, the plane will leave Atlanta at 1:30 in the afternoon and arrive in Washington at 8:15 at night. The southbound plane will leave Washington at 4:30 a. m. and arrive in Atlanta at 11:05 a. m.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's order for a study of aviation intended to produce a new air policy tonight promised to revive the bitter controversy that began with Brigadier General William Mitchell's frank utterances in 1925 and has continued sporadically since.

Meanwhile, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh split with the administration tonight for a second time on the operation of the air mail system, declining to serve on a special committee to study the army's mail flying.

Colonel Lindbergh, who conferred with Secretary Dern Saturday on general aviation practices at the latter's request, was invited by Dern to serve with Orville Wright, Clarence Chamberlain and other prominent aviators on a special committee to determine the "adequacy and efficiency" of the army's technical flying equipment and training for mail carrying.

Mitchell, former assistant chief of the army corps, urged one federal unit for the control of military aviation. The review that Mr. Roosevelt set in motion today may extend that proposed control to civil flying as well.

The speculation that the result of the inquiry into all phases of flying will lead to administration recommendations for one governmental agency to supervise aviation went so far that Mitchell's name was mentioned as a possible head of the unit.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, made it plain he intended to await the results of the inquiry before taking any action. It was said at the White House the president now has no immediate plans for the organization of a separate air corps, although Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, the majority leader, predicted yesterday that would be the outcome of the furore over the air mail.

There is still strong opposition to a combination of service aviation units in the high command of both the army and navy.

Only a little while after Mr. Roosevelt directed the study today, Secretary Swanson expressed "doubt whether efficiency or economy could be served" by taking the marine corps air force from the navy and placing it elsewhere.

Chairman McSwain of the house military committee said, however, that Senator Robinson had urged the "very set-up for aeronautics that I have been publicly advocating for the last 10 or 12 years."

Attention was directed momentarily

COUNTY HIKES PAY OF 75 EMPLOYES

Deputies and Clerks Will Go Back to $150 Salary Per Month.

Salary increases were ordered Wednesday by the board of county commissioners for about 75 men including deputy sheriffs and clerks who had been reduced from $200 to less than $150, these men being restored to the $150 mark. Small increases also were voted for 25 employes at the reformatory.

The increases, according to Chairman George F. Longino, upon whose motion the action was taken, will amount to an annual expenditure of about $15,000. Mr. Longino stated, however, that the board's policy of not filling vacancies as they occur, and elimination of jobs which will occur during the year, will reduce this amount considerably, if not take care of it altogether.

An appropriation of $400 was made for expenses of the federal re-employment office. W. B. Doke, appearing before the board, stated that with the city's appropriation of $250 per month for January, February and March, this sum would enable the bureau to continue operations, in view of decreased operating expenses brought about by the federal government taking over the new postoffice building on March 15. Mr. Doke stated that the bureau placed 100 men last week.

Under a decision reached by the board, the CWA will be asked for an appropriation for labor for cleaning the exterior of the courthouse, the county to furnish $1,710 to be used for equipment and material. It was stated by Paul S. Etheridge, chairman of the finance committee, that this project will enable the county to get a $5,000 job done for less than $2,000.

The matter of revising the custom of paying arresting officers one-third of the sale price of confiscated liquor cars came up for discussion, and Mr. Etheridge was requested to confer with County Attorney Ralph Pharr on the subject, Mr. Pharr having rendered a decision that such payment is illegal.

FAMOUS EXPLORER PASSES IN PARIS

Prince Sixte De Bourbon-Parme, 47, Dies of Mysterious Illness.

PARIS, March 14.—(AP)—Prince Sixte de Bourbon-Parme, peace negotiator during the world war and famous explorer, died at the age of 47 today from effects of a mysterious illness contracted in the Congo several years ago.

The prince, whose full name was Sixte-Ferdinand-Marie-Ignace-Pierre Alphonse of Bourbon-Parme, was the brother of former Empress Zita, of Hungary, consort of Charles VIII.

He was only 31 when Charles, who had just come to the throne, picked him for the delicate task of peace-making.

Sixte, who thought much of his French ancestry, wanted to draw Austria-Hungary away from Germany and restore Alsace-Lorraine to France.

He drew up two memoranda for the Austro-Hungarian emperor who in turn used them in letters sent through the prince to heads of the allied governments.

He was the seventh of 25 children of Robert, Duke of Parme and was born in Warteg castle, Switzerland, in 1886.

In 1919 he married Hedwige de la Rochefoucauld, descendant of the Dukes of Doudeauville. The couple had one daughter, Isabella.

When Sixte became seriously ill at his mother's home in Pianore, Lucca, Italy, and feared he would die, he asked to be taken to his wife's family in Paris because "I want to die on the soil of France."

The illness that took his life spread to his heart, and doctors some time ago said he was beyond help. Relatives and friends were with him when death came.

FANNY WENTWORTH.

WATERTOWN, S. D., March 14. (AP)—Topsy is dead. The original interpreter of that inimitable character in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," died in a hospital in her 85th year after living in retirement for more than a quarter of a century.

She was Fanny Wentworth, stage star of the later 19th century, who had toured America and Europe, but who had lived here for the past 28 years. Simple funeral services were held yesterday.

Fanny Wentworth started her stage career as a child and at 16 joined the original J. J. Ryers company which first played "Uncle Tom's Cabin," taking the role of Topsy. Later she appeared in support of Edwin Booth, the senior Barrymores, Lillian Russell and Keller, the magician.

Her forte was character sketches and Irish dialect songs and it was this type of acting which so entertained Queen Victoria that she was commanded to appear before the British ruler several times.

Questions Often Asked

Why Wear Glasses at all, if I can see as well without them?

Damage often occurs to the eyes because some people do not understand that glasses are not, necessarily, worn to magnify or clarify the vision.

Quite often they are needed because the nerves and muscles of the eyes are under constant strain which, in time, will result in serious impairment, if not corrected.

A very good reason why one should have the eyes examined by an Optometrist, about once every year.

BOARD DELAYS ACTION ON BILTMORE AND CODE

The Atlanta regional labor board is of the opinion that the Biltmore hotel should be amenable to the hotel code, although it would not make any definite recommendation until the superior court, which was in charge of the hotel's receivership, could be consulted.

This opinion was expressed at a hearing on the complaint of employe members of the engineers' union who charges that employes were hired on individual contracts without regard to collective bargaining. The board deferred further hearing pending the attitude of the court.

APARTMENT RENT AT LEVEL OF 1914, REALTORS TOLD

Apartment house rentals in at least two typical Atlanta buildings are exactly the same now as they were in 1914 and 1916, Robert Holder, an expert on apartment appraisals, told the Atlanta Real Estate Board at its luncheon meeting on Wednesday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

He said that apartments in the buildings brought $37.50 each 20 years ago. They were subsequently advanced to $65 each, and now had dropped back to $37.50.

A year ago, Mr. Holder said, vacancies were 22 per cent, but were now only 14 per cent. He added that rents had steadily declined during the last year, although commodity prices had risen. He said that prices were now stabilized and he expected to see an increase this fall.

There was some discussion by members on the effect of the government housing project on Techwood drive, but opinion was divided on the effect of the project on rental values generally.

DR. ROBERT G. LEE WILL SPEAK TONIGHT

DR. ROBERT G. LEE.

Pastors and members of the official boards of the evangelical churches of Atlanta will gather at 7:30 tonight in the First Presbyterian church for a special program under the auspices of the Christian Council. The meeting will consider the place and the opportunities of the church and church officials under present-day conditions.

Dr. Robert G. Lee, pastor of the Bellevue Baptist church, Memphis, will be the main speaker, coming to Atlanta for the meeting upon invitation of the council. Dr. Lee, an author of note, the successful pastor of one of the largest churches in the south, and a dynamic speaker, is regarded as one of the great religious leaders of our day.

Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, president of the council, is making the announcement, expressed the hope that every pastor and every member of an official board will be present at this gathering of Atlanta's church leaders.

During their stay in Florida the governor and his friends will be guests at a number of functions to which Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, and Governor B. M. Miller, of Alabama, also have been invited.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR COL. JOHNSON

Full military honors will be accorded Colonel Johnston, who at the time of his death was the most decorated man in the American army, holding the distinguished service cross, distinguished service medal, order of the purple heart, silver star with two clusters.

Among the pallbearers will be Major General Frank McCoy, commanding general of the seventh corps area and Major General Guy V. Henry, chief of cavalry.

Colonel Johnston was a native of Charlotte, N. C. His home was in Baltimore. He was the son of the Confederate general, Robert Daniel Johnston.

Jury Launches Probe Of Dillinger Escape

CROWN POINT, Ind., March 14.—(AP)—The management of Lake county's jail today was given another opportunity to explain how John Dillinger, notorious bank robber, escaped with the aid of a wooden pistol.

This time the guards, who have been explaining almost without interruption since Dillinger escaped on March 3, told the story to a special grand jury of six, instructed to pin the blame for the escape wherever it belonged.

The six men put in the morning following Dillinger's well marked trail through the jail, entering the front door, as he did on January 30, and emerging from the back door, as he did on March 3.

STATE LOSES $250,000 ON COURT TAX DECISION

Georgia Income Return Ruling Allows Deductions for Federal Taxes Returned.

The state supreme court ruled Wednesday that under the income tax law of 1929 and 1930 corporation could deduct from their incomes the amounts paid the federal government in income taxes. The state revenue commission said that under the ruling the state will lose $250,000.

The Boykin income tax law passed in 1928 was vague regarding the exemptions and the National Biscuit Company and others contested the effort of R. C. Norman, former tax collector, to levy on the amounts paid the federal government. The supreme court held that under the law the federal taxes could be deducted.

The decision does not concern income tax payments paid in the years since 1930 as the legislature that year revised the law prohibiting such exemptions specifically.

In another case Wednesday the high court ruled that persons who hold automobile accident insurance policies cannot collect for injuries received in a motorcycle accident. J. C. Bullard, of Walker ounty, who had lost a foot in a motorcycle accident, had sought to collect from his insurance company but the supreme court ruled that the policy covered automobile injuries only.

Several Persons Hurt In Madrid Rioting

MADRID, March 14.—(AP)—Several persons were hurt tonight during riots in the business district that came as an unexpected sequel to two weeks of strikes and disorders.

The rioters, singing communist songs, attacked the telephone exchange and socialist party headquarters, and repeatedly reformed despite guardsmen's attempts to disperse them.

Many were arrested before order was restored.

H. C. Sparkman, Memphis, Tenn.

SWEETENS ACID STOMACH QUICKLY

Two-way method is necessary, physicians now know, when stomach is sour and you feel stuffed from the gas caused by excessive acidity.

Placidan is a new scientific way to relieve acid stomach discomforts. It contains four antacids—one for immediate relief—others to prolong the neutralizing process, to help keep away excessive acidity and gas.

In addition, Placidan contains a powerful new diastase to promote digestion of starchy food, often the cause of excessive acidity. This helps to make relief and ease more lasting. Placidan tastes so pleasant. You will like it. Keep Placidan in the house and take a swallow whenever you feel uncomfortable from eating.

Get it at all drug stores.

Drivers' License Campaign To Be State-Wide in Scope.

Determined efforts to better the traffic situation in Atlanta were being made Wednesday by leading businessmen, judges and officials of the police department as plans were being formulated to make the driver's license law campaign a state-wide proposition within the next week.

Though relatively few traffic cases were made by police during the day, the traffic squad of Captain Jack Malcom continued its efforts to prevent accidents by forcing drivers to be careful or face charges in recorder's court.

Judge Jesse Wood, in city criminal court, Wednesday put two more drivers on probationary sentences of six months with orders not to drive, when they were found guilty of operating automobiles while under the influence of whisky. They were J. A. Grady, of Route 4, Atlanta, and Jack Williams, of 1184 Oak street, and in addition to their sentences received fines of $25 and $50, respectively.

Judge A. W. Callaway, in recorder's court, Wednesday fined a woman $100 or 30 days on charges of driving while drunk and leaving the scene of an accident under the new city ordinance.

Patrolman C. R. Adams, special police license number investigator, arrested Mrs. M. R. Bowen, of 251 Pine street, Tuesday and charged her with leaving the scene of an accident January 26 when her car and the machine of H. T. Porter, of 206 Elizabeth street, N. E., collided at Fowler and Alexander streets. She was sentenced Wednesday afternoon.

Jack Strouss, secretary of the Atlanta Motor Club, which is sponsoring the safety campaign in Atlanta, began preliminary work in obtaining the aid of other Georgia cities to pass the driver's law and to institute a state highway patrol in Georgia, while Goodloe Yancey, president of the club, called a meeting of the club directors for Monday at 12:30 o'clock at the Piedmont hotel.

Both Yancey and Strouss were pleased with progress already made and promised unflagging work in securing the patrol force and license law for the state.

Within a few days, J. E. Stott, safety director of the CWA for Georgia, will receive and file formal application for the traffic survey of Atlanta, it was said. Savannah, Macon, Columbus, Valdosta and Augusta already have prepared applications.

FOUR MURDER VERDICTS UPHELD BY HIGH COURT

Four murder verdicts, including the death sentence imposed on Miley Lively, Atlanta slayer of his wife and mother-in-law, were upheld Wednesday by the supreme court.

Lively killed the two women here in July of last year. He was tried only for the murder of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ruth Kell.

The high court also upheld the conviction and life term of Cliff Butler, sentenced in Spalding county for the murder of Clarence Nelms, of Griffin, by running over him with an automobile.

Another death sentence, that imposed upon George Cole, of Clarke county, convicted of the murder of W. C. Pittard, also was upheld as was the life sentence imposed upon Charlie Peeples of Bibb county for the slaying of Cleveland Murray.

Royal Johns of Charlton county, sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of W. C. White, won a new trial when the supreme court held that the trial judge erred in his instructions to the jury.

FORD CO. PAY ROLL HIKED TO $250,000

Big Annual Increase Shown Here Under Blanket Wage Raises.

Henry Ford's order advancing his minimum wage for workers to $5 a day has increased the annual pay roll of the Atlanta Ford branch to $250,000 effective last Tuesday, E. D. Bottom, branch manager, announced Wednesday.

Every Ford worker in this territory, Mr. Bottom explained, is receiving a 25 per cent increase, while salaried employes previously on minimum pay receive $25 a month extra. Ford workers here, as elsewhere, receive $5 a day and employes on salary are now getting a minimum of $110 a month.

Mr. Bottom also announced that the sales and service personnel of the Atlanta branch had been increased 40 per cent. He said:

"When Henry Ford established the minimum wage of $5 per day some years back, it was received as a startling innovation by the business world. The effect of this move on the part of the Ford Motor Company was undoubtedly responsible for resulting higher wages to workers in all lines of American industry and the growing belief upon the part of large manufacturers that their own prosperity depended upon the prosperity and higher standards of living of their own workers.

"Due to improving conditions in the southeast as well as remarkably increasing sales of the Ford V-8, it has been necessary to increase the sales and service personnel of the Atlanta branch by 40 per cent.

"In the last nine years wages and salaries paid to residents in this territory by the Ford Motor Company have amounted to over $10.000.000 and city, state and county taxes to over $325.000."

Mr. Bottom said that February sales of the company's branch broke February records for the past five years and that each preceding month is showing remarkable increase in the sale of Ford cars.

Dread going out in it?

you may lack good resistance

Does exposure result more seriously for you than for most people? Instead of taking it as a matter of course, do you look upon it as the beginning of an uncomfortable season?

Then now is the time for you to fall in with the modern practice of advance protection. Don't wait until exposure gets the best of you. Start right away to build up your resistance.

Many people find that good resistance is the best defense they can offer against exposure. They do not seem to mind the hazards of this time of year as much when they are in good physical condition.

Squibb Adex tablets are a concentrate of the protective factors in halibut and cod-liver oil with Viosterol. Each tablet contains 1500 units of Vitamin A and 2450 units of Vitamin D.

The only tablet made from three vitamin sources, they have special resistance-building value.

U. S. STARTS WAR ON TAX EVADERS

Roosevelt Orders All Cases To Be Heard by Grand Juries.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) With the deadline for filing income tax returns hardly more than 24 hours away, the government announced today large scale proceedings against those who had made false returns in the past were in preparation.

President Roosevelt told reporters that between two and three hundred cases were pending and the justice department indicated investigation of about 20 were nearing completion.

At the same time the president ruled that all cases should be presented to grand juries in the determination of whether criminal or civil proceedings should be instituted. To the grand juries will be left the delicate decision whether evasion was intentional or not.

The president feels a policy of justice and common sense requires grand juries instead of some government officer decide the question of motive. For that reason all new cases will be turned over to the district attorneys in the various sections of the country where they are located for presentation to the jurors.

If the grand juries find no intent to escape tax payments is involved, the president is perfectly willing to accept this decision and proceed then with civil action for recovery of the taxes the government believes due.

Just who is involved in the new income tax cases was not revealed, pending the institution of action, but it was made plain today at the White House that the government would make no distinctions between big and small taxpayers.

The announcement of the impending proceedings against Andrew W. Mellon, James J. Walker, former mayor of New York, and others was said to have been made here for the reason that the stories otherwise would have singly come out from the grand jury proceedings.

Committee To Weigh Exchange Bill Friday

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Chairman Fletcher today called a meeting of the senate banking committee for Friday to take up the revised draft of the bill to place the stock markets under federal regulation.

He said he had discussed the measure briefly with President Roosevelt while at the White House on another matter.

"The president wants a bill with teeth in it," Fletcher said afterwards. "He doesn't want it emasculated, although he is not committed to the details of the bill."

INJUNCTION STOPS POWER RATE CUTS

Georgia Power and Light Company Wins Decision in Three-Judge Hearing.

MACON, Ga., March 14.—(AP)—A three-judge federal court today ruled reductions ordered by the Georgia public service commission for the Georgia Power & Light Company would deprive the utility of a fair return and granted an injunction restraining enforcement of the rate cut.

The company's court fight was the first made by a power concern in contesting rate reduction orders of the commission. The Georgia Power Company and the Savannah Electric and Power Company agreed to reductions ordered by the commission in their rate schedules. President Arkwright, of the Georgia Bower Company, said in Atlanta the decision would not affect that company's policy regarding the reductions.

The three federal judges held that rates prescribed by the commission would reduce the Georgia Power & Light Company's return on its investment to one-half of one per cent. Their order stated that if the service is costing more than it is worth "we see no remedy but for the consumers to find a substitute."

Forty-nine south Georgia communities are served by the company. The judges pointed to purchase of power by the company from the Florida Power Company as one reason why its rates could not be reduced to conform with those of the Georgia Power Company. The latter concern generates most of its current.

Evidence presented the judges, the order said, showed the company's rate of return, after deduction of 3.5 per cent for depreciation, varied from 3.63 per cent in 1928 to 3.59 per cent in 1933. In 1932 the return was 4.1 per cent. The company's property investment was placed at $4,000,000.

The judges also pointed out the company must absorb a 3 per cent federal tax on electrical energy during 1934 and make some increase in operating expense because of the NRA. They said they had no criticism to make of previous expenditures by the company.

"It appears to us clear under the evidence so far produced that the new rates would deprive the company of a fair return on its property and would disable it to survive long" their order said.

Judge Bascom S. Deaver, of the middle district of Georgia, signed the injunction here today. It had previously been approved by the other two jurists, Judges R. E. Foster and Samuel H. Sibley.

GEORGIA POWER STANDS BY ATLANTA RATE SCHEDULE

Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, of the Georgia public service commission, Wednesday expressed surprise and keen disappointment when informed that the federal court had issued an order enjoining the rate cuts issued for the Georgia Power & Light Company.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, whose company some months ago accepted rate schedules identical with those which the south Georgia company fought in court, said the decision would not affect the views of the Georgia Power Company.

"We knew that the rates prescribed were too low but we accepted them, nevertheless," Mr. Arkwright said. "We will stand by that acceptance."

Chairman Wilhoit said the commission would not decide what course it will pursue until a meeting has been held. The chairman said that the usual procedure in such cases was to refer the matter to a master in chancery with the decision of the court only temporary until a master's hearing could be held. The federal court has given no indication that its order is anything but permanent.

bales were used compared with 10,794,000 bales during the corresponding period of the preceding year. During the last six months consumption was 12,519,000 bales compared with 11,882,000 bales in the preceding year.

Smaller world consumption of American cotton during the last six months compared with the first six months is accounted for, the bureau said, by reduced consumption in the United States following the upswing stimulated by speculative demands, prospective increase in manufacturing costs and improved economic conditions.

World consumption of cotton other than American, Indian and Egyptian during the six months ended January 31 was 2,607,000 running bales, the largest since the first half of 1929-1930. The increase was attributed to larger consumption of domestically produced cotton in China and Russia.

World milled stocks of cotton on February 1 were reported as 5,216,000 bales compared with 4,542,000 bales on that date last year, the second largest stocks on record.

The bureau reported the apparent supply of cotton in the United States on February 1 at 13,494,000 bales compared with 14,524,000 bales on the same date of 1933.

Atlanta Veterans To Celebrate 15th Birthday of Legion Tonight

Winds howling across hurricane decks, shades of Paris, the flaming Argonne, Chateau Thierry and St. Mihiel will haunt the Roof Garden of the Ansley hotel at 7:30 o'clock tonight when World War veterans, members of Atlanta Post No. 1 celebrate the fifteenth anniversary of the founding of the American Legion in Paris, France.

Again the marine will hark to "From the Halls of Montezuma;" the sailor thrill to the rollicking "Anchors Aweigh," the doughboy promenade once more with the "Mademoiselle from Armentieres."

The banquet table will take the place of the parapet; the staccato of the trap drummer will remind some of the cackling machine gun, and the boom of the big bass drum may bring back the thunder of the heavy artillery in the distance. But none will mistake the Roof Garden dance floor with its bevy of chorus girls and novelty skits for the No-Man's-Land of old.

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, commander of the fourth corps area, who was detailed by General Pershing to attend the Paris caucus and see what the khaki-clad subalterns were up to will be the speaker of the evening. He will give some interesting sidelights on that historic meeting.

MISS DORRIS CORRIE.

The artists who will participate in the entertainment to be interspersed with the dance numbers are Miss Bernice Johnson, soprano; Mr. Harry Hunnicutt, basso; Misses Doris Corrie, Juanita Paschall, Peggy Finch, Mildred Striplin, Elizabeth Harless and Mildred Adams, Buddy and Buster, harmony team.

The program will be from 7:30 o'clock to midnight.

'Talmadge Opposition' Meeting Is Denied, But Reports Persist

(By the Associated Press)

The principals in reports that a "Talmadge opposition" meeting would be held here today denied Wednesday night that they knew anything about it, but the reports persisted.

The only visible indication that such a conference might be held was the presence in town of J. J. Mangham, former chairman of the state highway board, who has been generally recognized as an opposition leader since he left that post after numerous disagreements with the chief executive.

Mangham denied he knew anything about such a meeting.

Asked to comment on the recurring story that he was the first choice of the Talmadge opponents for a coalition candidate to run against his former chief, Mangham answered:

"The dogwoods haven't bloomed yet."

He said his presence here was not even a coincidence at this time, explaining that he had spent a day or so a week in Atlanta ever since he left the highway board, and transacted part of his business here. His home is in Bremen.

William Schley Howard, Atlanta lawyer, rated by the political dopesters as the No. 2 choice to run against Talmadge, said he hadn't heard of the reported meeting and "if there were going to be one, it sure looks like I would have heard of it."

Howard said the reports sounded to him like "propaganda somebody is putting out to learn something about the opposition."

"There's plenty of opposition, all right," he concluded.

Senator W. H. Key, of Monticello, shown on the dope sheets as No. 3 choice, was not to be found in town, and friends of Abit Nix, the remaining member of the reputed "Big Four," said he was busy today with a trial in court at Thomson. Whether the case was finished or not they said they did not know.

At least a few persons active in politics in various parts of the state were known to have heard the reports circulated here and made telephone inquiry.

It was suggested in one quarter in position to be well informed that there might be a meeting of sorts, as a direct result of the reports that one was to be held, even without a formal plan.

Not like others..

Even so.. you can say Chesterfields are "not like others"

NO two people in the world look alike . . . act alike. So it is with tobacco . . . just like folks.

No two leaves are the same.

And it's the same with cigarettes . . . no two brands are alike.

Furthermore, not only are the tobaccos different, but the way the tobaccos are handled is different.

This, you can understand.

You know just as well as we do that no two manufacturers use the same kinds of tobaccos, or blend them or cross-blend them or weld them together in the same manner.

We do everything that science knows and that money can buy to make CHESTERFIELD as good a cigarette as can be made.

We hope you like them. They are "not like others."

RAIL GROUP OPENS CONVENTION HERE

Beef Cattle Outlook Discussed by Educator. Meet Continues Today.

Urging southern farmers to diversify their crops and to acquire livestock to enable them to "really make money on the big crop—which is cotton," W. T. Bennett, of the state college of agriculture, Wednesday at the Henry Grady hotel told the opening convention of the Railway Development Association of the Southeast "that profits in cattle, hogs and sheep will always come indirectly through cotton."

In further discussion of "The Outlook for Beef Cattle Production," Bennett said: "Like other crops, the production of livestock is more than likely to be a gamble when it is the sole source of income. Yet as a component of a well-balanced system of farming it is as antagonistic to red on the business ledger as a Jersey bull is to a bright red sweater. It would be poor salesmanship—it would be misleading, in fact, to say to southern farmers that livestock can replace cotton as a money crop or even compare favorably with it. Livestock, as grown on many farms, is not a great money crop in the usual meaning of the term. Some of the most successful cattlemen in the country insist that they have never made any considerable money directly from their livestock enterprises, but they will assure you—with figures to prove it—that they were never able to make any money at farming until they began raising cattle, sheep or hogs, or a combination of them."

Livestock "Great Balancer."

Continuing, Bennett said that "livestock is the great balancer in agriculture, the conserver of soil fertility, the profitable outlet for home-grown feeds, and otherwise waste roughage, and the means of balancing labor throughout the year."

Almost a hundred delegates to the convention were welcomed Wednesday morning by Robert Troutman, a director of the Chamber of Commerce. E. B. O'Kelley, agricultural and industrial agent of the Atlantic Coast Line railway and president of the organization, presided over the meeting and responded to Troutman's words of greeting.

Featured speakers at the closing session of the convention this morning will be D. P. Trent, assistant to Chester C. Davis, chief administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration, and Dr. J. Phil Campbell, regional assistant of the AAA and former Georgia extension director. The AAA with all of its ramifications and ambitions for greater accomplishments will be the theme of Trent's address, while Dr. Campbell will discuss "Utilization of Lands Taken Out of Cotton Production."

W. L. Mitchell, executive assistant of the NRA in the southeast, opened Monday's speaking program with a discussion of "The Progress and Accomplishments of the NRA and the NEC." "Regardless of who or what is responsible," he said, "everybody admits that conditions are better." He attributed improvement in our economic system to proper and effective co-ordination of all federal agencies, including the NRA, PWA, CWA and others. "NRA is responsible for the reemployment of 2,800,000 persons in the United States, according to a survey," he said.

Weltner Is Speaker.

Additional speakers Wednesday morning included Chancellor Phillip Weltner, of the University System of Georgia, whose subject was "State Planning," and Captain I. F. Eldredge, regional survey director, United States forest service, New Orleans, La., who talked on "Progress of the Forest Survey of the South."

Those heard Wednesday afternoon were, other than Bennett, W. A. Burnett, general manager Nashville (Tenn.) Union Stock Yards, speaking on "Live Stock and the Marketing of Live Stock;" J. N. McBride, general agricultural and land settlement agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, who spoke on "Agricultural Project Work," and E. J. Hoddy, general development agent, L. & N. Railway, who gave "Bright Lights in Development."

Railway officials and guests were entertained at a banquet Wednesday night at which W. C. Lassetter, Birmingham, acted as toastmaster. H. J. Schweitert, Chicago, general agricultural agent, I. C. railway, and J. L. Jackson, Savannah, general agricultural agent, Central of Georgia railway, were the principal speakers.

Adjournment of the convention is scheduled for noon today, following election of officers, reports of various committees and selection of the city for the next year's meeting.

presumptive cases to pension rolls at 75 per cent of the amount they drew before the economy act was passed last year.

One provision would restore about $51,600,000 to 190,000 Spanish-American War veterans or 75 per cent of their pre-economy pensions; another would increase allowances to disabled World War veterans estimated to cost about $30,000,000.

The compromise also would cut off about $2,000,000 by striking out the senate amendment to restore 1,900 emergency officers to the rolls, and benefits to men entering service after the Armistice and those suffering from disability due to their own wilful misconduct.

Amendment Deleted.

The Borah amendment prohibiting government pay restoration to those, including members of congress, receiving more than $6,000 a year, was eliminated as well as benefits to victims of the Shenandoah, Akron and J-S dirigible disasters and their dependents.

Taber told the house he felt that "under the circumstances"—referring to the threatened presidential veto—"this is probably more than you can get for the veterans any way."

"The president can't accept the senate amendments?" asked Representative McGugin, republican, Kansas.

"I understand not," replied Taber, "and I want to tell this house that you can't destroy this bill by amending it, but you can destroy it by not amending it."

The house, which had been in an uproar, calmed down some when the amendment was explained by Taber.

Connery appealed to the house to vote for the senate amendments. "If you want to please the American Legion, the disabled veterans, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Spanish-American War veterans."

Representative Browning, democrat, Tennessee, said he felt the compromise was the best that could be obtained, and he was joined in this by Representative Snell, of New York, the republican leader.

HOW GEORGIANS VOTED ON VET COMPROMISE

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Seven members of the Georgia delegation in the house tonight voted for the Taber veterans' compromise, two voted against and one was not recorded. Here is how they stood:

For the compromise: Paul Brown, of Elberton, tenth district; E. E. Cox, of Camilla, second district; Emmett Owen, of Griffin, fourth district; Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro, first district; M. C. Tarver, of Dalton, seventh district; Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, sixth district, and John Wood, of Canton, ninth district.

IRMA SZALEY

Mrs. Theressa Szaley, Winding Gulf, West Va., writes:

"My daughter, Irma, now five years old, had been very weakly and sickly from birth. She had a bad heart, was nervous, had kidney trouble and rheumatism of the joints. Her feet and hands were badly swollen all the time. In all her life she had only walked about a month and had not walked at all for two years when a representative of the New Scalf Medicine Company advised me to try Scalf's Indian River Tonic for her. I kept her on the treatment for several weeks, and now she is able to walk, running and playing uphill and downhill, as if she had never been sick.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels back to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child. Yen To Be "Engineers" Gets Two Boys in Trouble

A deserted steam roller, with steam up and rarin' to go . . . a lonely stretch of street . . . and two young boys with that greatest ambition of childhood, to be an engineer with hand on the throttle and keen eyes sweeping the roadbed.

You've experienced the thrill, in imagination. Melton Berry, of 705 Coolidge avenue, and Victor Freithe, of 558 Orme circle, both 14, experienced it in reality Wednesday when they came across the city's steam roller on Elmwood drive, according to police reports.

Motorcycle Patrolmen W. J. Stallings and G. M. Haley came along just as the juggernaut was getting under full steam and the young engineers were having the time of their lives watching the pavement slip by. Both boys were turned over to juvenile authorities.

LIBRARY TO OFFER ADVISORY SERVICE FOR READERS' AID

A reader's advisory service will be inaugurated by the Carnegie library March 15 and will serve all Atlantans who are interested in reading along some particular line or phase, it was announced Wednesday.

Designed to aid persons in obtaining information along specific and general subjects, the service is a part of the adult education sponsored by the library. A young woman librarian will have charge of the new department. The service resulted from the heavy demands of the reading public for specific information on books in the library and will augment the regular information bureau.

GILLIAM IS OPTIMISTIC OVER PLAZA PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, March 14.—After a series of conferences with officials of the civil works administration Alderman Ed Gilliam, of Atlanta, returned home this afternoon optimistic over prospects for obtaining approval of the proposed $300,000 downtown plaza project.

Councilman Gilliam explained that no application has yet been filed for approval of the development, the conferences here being preliminary in character, but after returning to Atlanta he will go over the situation with Miss Gay B. Shepperson, CWA administrator for Georgia, with a view of presenting a formal request for the necessary funds. In the initial discussions officials here reacted favorably to the proposal, he said.

The project calls for building a plaza over downtown railroad tracks between Forsyth and Pryor streets, with the CWA to furnish approximately $250,000 of the total cost of labor and materials. The city of Atlanta would provide additional materials costing $50,000.

"The proposed development," said Mr. Gilliam, "would not only serve a useful purpose but would go a long ways in beautifying an important business section of Atlanta. I received encouragement from officials during my conferences here and steps will be taken to advance the project after returning to Atlanta."

ARMY MAIL PILOTS HANDICAPPED--HAIZLIP

Army fliers had met with disaster in their attempts to carry the mail because their training had been specialized in a different form of aviation, James Haizlip, distinguished aviator, said Wednesday at a luncheon given for him and Mrs. Haizlip, herself a distinguished aviator, at the Athletic Club.

"You must understand that I am not taking sides in the air mail controversy," Captain Haizlip explained. "I simply want to point out the disadvantages these army boys suffered under.

"These young men are extremely capable. Out of 10,000 applications not more, perhaps, than 200 are finally qualified for army flights. They are picked men, intelligent, well-trained, alert and in perfect physical conditions.

"But their training is in combat flying which calls for a technic as different as possible from that used in commercial aviation. In the army aggression and maneuvering are insisted on. In flying the mail, the planes must fly evenly.

"It was too much to expect that young men so trained could respond to a new method overnight, and do as well as pilots trained for five or six years in it. Called on suddenly to do night flying under adverse weather conditions, in planes insufficiently equipped with instruments, it was natural that they should have met with disaster. However, I believe that this problem is soon to be solved satisfactorily."

He compared the visual method used by aviators in the pioneer era with the instrument method now used, and described in detail his famous cross-country flight which he won, much to his surprise.

Captain Haizlip's wife, May Haizlip, also made a talk. Jesse Draper presided, and talks were made by W. G. Hastings, of the city council; Major William Plummer, and Major Wiley Wright, of the department of commerce, introduced the Haizlips. Carl Becker, of the St. Louis organization of the Shell Petroleum Corporation, which brought the aviators here, spoke. Captain and Mrs. Haizlip left for Macon during the afternoon.

GEORGIA TAGS IN LOUISIANA.

Announcement that since January 1 all cars in Louisiana carrying Georgia tags have been impounded until their owners prove that they are residents of Georgia, would seem at first impression to be an unwarranted imposition on Georgia tourists, but it should be borne in mind that a serious situation has been created by the large number of Georgia tags bought by car owners from other states.

Many Louisiana motorists, in order to evade the high license in their own state, have, in one way or another, been able to secure Georgia tags. Georgia officials have sought to avoid selling tags to residents of other states, but they have been unable to put a stop to the practice when the tags were bought by friends and relatives in Georgia of people living elsewhere.

There are two sides to the question as to whether or not the Louisiana authorities are being unduly firm with law-abiding tourists from this state. It is undoubtedly troublesome for Georgians driving their cars in Louisiana to be faced with the frequent necessity of establishing their residence here to police officers they meet, but on the other hand the Louisiana officials are confronted with a difficult task in determining which cars using the highways of the state have, or have not, the right to carry Georgia tags.

The sensible thing for Georgia tourists in Louisiana to do is to carry with them satisfying credentials. This would insure their prompt release in the event they are held up by officers whose only purpose is to ascertain whether or not the Georgia tag belongs to one who has a right to it.

Those who are evading the law of their own states should be exposed.

THE GERMAN TYPE OF NRA.

The plan of industrial control enunciated by the Hitler government, based somewhat on the order of the NRA, is at the same time sufficiently different to emphasize how far the American plan is from being a "dictatorship" as has been charged.

Under the NRA it is largely left up to the industries of the country to work out a new and sounder plan of operation, and to eliminate the admitted evils with which former conditions abounded. The task is left to each industry and full provision for appeal from what are considered unfair steps are contained in the NRA setup.

Not so with the Hitler plan for the "organic reconstruction of German industry." Under its rigid provisions every industry will be required to join in the program and must take, without protest, the orders it will receive from the nazi government. Prices, production and other vital elements of industry will be dictated from Berlin to gain a "synchronization in the interest of all."

Minister of Economics Schmitt predicts "frictionless co-operation" on the part of industry, a belief in which he is well justified as industry will be allowed no word since its compliance is obligatory.

The German plan emphasizes by contrast the basis of democratic co-operation on which our NRA is founded, and should serve as a silencer to the malcontents who have been able to see nothing but governmental dictatorship, either now or in future, in the American plan.

Things are returning to normalcy. A woman can wear jewelry now without other women suspecting its of the paste variety.

A LOSS TO GOOD GOVERNMENT.

The announcement of Alderman G. Everett Millican that he will retire from public life at the conclusion of his present term will be received with general regret.

During his long service as alderman there has been no finer type of public servant in council. He has never failed to meet any issue with an eye single to the best interests of the city. He exemplifies the type of officeholder who, in the interest of good government, should be coming into council instead of going out.

His service has not been handicapped either by partisan politics or personal considerations.

During the past few trying financial years Alderman Millican has been a wheelhorse in supporting every plan to keep the finances of the city on an even keel, and he has contributed materially to the wise leadership which has brought the municipal government through this troublesome period in far better condition than many other American cities.

If Alderman Millican persists in his intention to retire the city administration will lose an able leader and the people a stanch champion.

THE BONUS AGAIN.

It is unfortunate that so controversial a question as the veterans' bonus should have arisen in congress at a time when it is necessary that every branch of the government should lend its full co-operation towards the success of the industrial recovery program.

It has revived a discussion in which the American Legion itself is divided and that has caused the first serious revolt by the members of the democratic majority in congress against the party leadership. Undoubtedly the attitude of many members of congress has been brought about by the fact that this is a congressional election year—a fact of which the proponents of the bonus have not been slow to take advantage.

The president is right in the position he has taken and congress should follow his leadership. To do otherwise will handicap the efforts of the administration in the vitally imperative work for national rehabilitation.

It appears the bonus bill cannot be passed over the president's veto, so the best thing for congress to do is to shelve this controversial topic until a time when it can be discussed with less danger to the country.

PEANUT RATED AS BASIC FOOD.

The senate amendment to the Jones-Connally bill, adding peanuts to the basic agricultural commodities subject to processing taxes, if concurred in by the house, will bring material assistance to agriculture in the states in which this product is largely raised.

Georgia is one of these states, ranking near the top of all the states in peanut production. The major part it plays in the farm-economics of Georgia is revealed in comparative figures on the so-called cash crops raised in the state last year, estimates of the Georgia office of the United States department of agriculture putting the value of the cotton produced at $52,000,000, corn at $23,000,000 and peanuts at $12,000,000.

The production of peanuts, especially in south Georgia, both for sale and for stock feeding, has grown rapidly during the past few years and the application of a processing tax to this formerly humble agricultural product which now ranks with the major farm commodities, will benefit thousands of Georgia farmers.

Representative Parker, of the first Georgia district, has made a stubborn fight to have peanuts included in the basic farm commodities coming under the processing tax provision of the agricultural adjustment act, and in view of the senate's action the prospects for a successful culmination of his efforts are materially strengthened.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Will It Be War?

We cannot deny that the failure of the disarmament conference to come to an agreement threatens to bring back the armament race which, on a previous occasion, plunged Europe into the great cataclysm of 1914. Thomas Mann, the great German writer, said on one occasion that war comes of itself, unless you do something against it. How much sooner then will it not come if some nations deliberately seek to hasten its advent?

There can scarcely be any question about it today that the reich under Herr Hitler is piling up armaments and chemicals and poison gases and exerts its utmost to bully the other powers in granting Germany a better equipped army. And, obviously, this renewal of the spirit of Prussian militarism and the thirst for expansion, could not have failed to produce a sense of deep disquietude in other lands. The vicious circle again enters into operation. Germany claims to be entitled to a larger army, France follows suit and strengthens her defense. France builds a bigger air fleet and immediately Italy follows suit. Italy builds and Jugo-Slavia takes alarm and so on and so forth, the one after the other the countries become infected with the psychosis of war.

What can be done about it? Our first duty is to look for the fundamental causes which determine this new madness. If we do this, and make a really serious inquiry, we soon find that there are actually people in this world who draw immense benefit from fostering the war spirit. They are the owners of gigantic munition concerns and armament trusts. I have seen their lobbies operate in Geneva, in The Hague and in London on the occasion of different international conferences. They thrive on international dissention. The more dissention, the more nervousness, the more reciprocal piling up of armaments, the more they like it and the more they flourish.

What should be done in every country is an immediate control by the different governments of the munition trusts. The manufacture of armaments is playing with dynamite in the present restless and nervous world-order. This highly dangerous game should not be left in the hands of private individuals, who are under constant temptation to foster the war spirit for the sake of profits. When the element of profit is taken out of the manufacture of armaments, an immense step forward is taken in the direction of universal peace. Governments, as owners of munition works, sole owners, that is, are nevertheless under the collective supervision of the citizens. And the citizens of not a single country on earth want war.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

CIRCULAR GARTERS AND VARICOSE VEINS.

It is commonly thought that the practice of wearing hose supporters that encircle the leg, or even the modern garterless stockings, tends to cause or aggravate enlargement of the veins—varicose veins.

According to the observations of Dr. Norman J. Kilbourne, of Los Angeles, who has carried out careful experiments and studies by means of X-ray, the direction of flow of blood in the superficial veins of the leg is not upward (toward the heart) as we have always assumed, but rather downward (away from the heart) from hydrostatic pressure or the weight of the blood at least when the patient stands or sits with the legs dependent.

By injecting into a vein a substance that is opaque to the X-ray and then watching the blood movement through the fluoroscope, Dr. Kilbourne determined conclusively that the direction of flow is downward in the superficial veins below the level of the great valve in the saphenous vein just below the bend of the knee. X-ray pictures taken 20 and 80 seconds after injection of such opaque substance showed no movement of the blood upward but only downward.

Therefore there is no upward blood flow to be impeded by round garters.

Can the blood flow in the main or deep veins of the leg be obstructed or impeded by the wearing of such garters? Of course the direction of this main blood flow in the leg veins is upward, toward the heart. Dr. Kilbourne answers this question with an assured "no." He determined this by applying a tourniquet very tight, much tighter than a patient would think of wearing a garter, and yet the opaque medium is carried away in the deep veins so rapidly that it is difficult to take the X-ray picture quickly enough after the injection to catch any of it on the plate. The deep veins, he says, are buried too well near the interosseous membrane under pads of thick calf and thigh muscle to be affected by the pressure of round garters.

Where there is a tendency to edema or swelling of the feet or legs, it may be better to avoid tight garters or other constriction around the leg, knee or ankle. But where there are swollen veins about the foot, Dr. Kilbourne points out that the direction of flow in the veins there is upward.

In normal persons, then, it seems there is no good reason to imagine the wearing of round garters causes varicose veins. In persons who have varicose veins, there is not only no sound objection, but perhaps some advantage in wearing round garters.

In regard to the treatment of varicose veins which distress the expectant mother, Dr. Kilbourne cites evidence in favor of injection treatment in the fourth to seventh months when the patient has serious trouble. Dr. H. O. McPheeters, of Minneapolis, who is likewise an authority on the subject of varicose vein treatment, urges injection of varicose veins in pregnancy when the patient suffers much from them. Nine out of ten such patients are gratified with the results.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

BONUS WASHINGTON, March 14.—That g-r-reat legislative battle in the house over the soldier bonus was no battle at all. It takes two opposing sides to have a battle.

The truth is that President Roosevelt's legislative generals picked out a nice soft spot on the battlefield, dropped a pillow and lay down to let the bonus juggernaut roll over them.

More than that, by their tactics they actually invited men in their army to join the opposition.

That would be strange in war, but not in politics. No suspicion of treachery exists. There are no hard feelings.

Everyone seemed to understand that the bonus cannot become a law anyhow; that if some democrats could get political prestige out of supporting it, they might as well get it; and, that after all, it was just in fun anyway.

FLIGHT Mr. Roosevelt did all he could be expected to do. He announced twice that he would veto the bill so it could not become a law.

The second announcement came about a week before the vote. It put the house democrats in a very touchy position.

The situation within a certain southern state delegation is illustrative of the inner condition. This state has 11 congressmen, all democrats. When Mr. Roosevelt made his announcement, five of them decided to stand with him and oppose the bonus. Five were determined to vote for the bonus regardless of Mr. Roosevelt. One was doubtful.

But when the vote was taken a week later, 10 voted for the bonus and one voted both ways—first to take the bonus up and then against its passage.

CHANCES The reason for the change was that they saw such good friends of Mr. Roosevelt's as Bankhead, Rayburn, Jones and Prosser opposing the president's wishes.

The average democratic congressman did not have to be told officially that if such outstanding democrats were going to risk the wrath of the White House, they would do well to take a chance, also.

That is why the bonus got as many as 295 votes, including 231 contributed by pro-Roosevelt democrats.

You would think that with all those votes, the bonus could be passed over a veto. Never fear. The 295 ayes were 15 more than the two-thirds necessary to pass over a veto, but after Mr. Roosevelt vetoes the bill 50 or more of those democratic ayes will change to nays. The matter then will have departed from the realm.

Also the perfect position for a congressman is to be on both sides of a question, not merely on one side only.

LEADING Another great help for the bonus was contributed by the chief of staff of Mr. Roosevelt's army, his floor leader, Mr. Byrns.

Mr. Byrns is not a Roman general. He does not believe in falling on his sword and killing himself because he is losing.

In fact one profane wag in the press gallery remarked that he could not tell what side Byrns was on, after hearing his speech. That was due to the fact that Mr. Byrns was in a tight spot. He voted for the bonus last time. His heart was clearly with the revolters. But this time he was the leader and he had to stand by the president. Also he wanted the soldiers in his district not to misunderstand him.

In the heat of the battle, when the time came to rally to the presidential flag and fight to the last drop of blood for the president, he said, in part:

"I regret very much to find myself in opposition to many of my good friends. . . . I hold no criticism of any member of the house for whatever action he may take with reference to this bill (applause) . . . I may be wrong and those of you who are in the great majority may be right. . . ."

SHYNESS The democrats did not even put into the record the announcement that Mr. Roosevelt would veto the bonus. That was done by Republican Representative Treadway.

Also Democratic Chairman Doughton declined to take charge of the time for the president's side, as is customary. That too, was handled by a republican. (However, Doughton voted with the president.)

The republicans were very happy to be as annoying as possible. It is not so long since they were passing the same bonus buck up to a republican president for a veto in the same way the democrats passed this one.

RESULTS It will probably all even up in the end.

The house is expected to stand by the president on the veterans' economies. The senate went political on that issue and revolted against the president.

Similarly the senate is expected to stand by the president against the bonus issue, on which the house went political.

In that way the congressmen will have voted for and against the veterans so many times that the veterans will not be able to tell who was for them and who was against them.

Ham's Sin Was That of Looking When His Father Wasn't Dressed To Be Seen

By Robert Quillen

A certain lady has brought suit against a photographer who displayed her portrait in his show window.

Whatever the merit of her case may be, she has the understanding sympathy of thousands who have been shamed and humiliated in the same way.

It is high time for the courts to determine whether innocent citizens have any protection from cameras.

It is clear that a citizen of a free country belongs to himself. His person is private property, and no one has the right to take liberties with it except with his permission.

Snap judgment might decide that a photograph cannot be defamatory or libelous, since it portrays the truth.

But a photograph in which the victim is caught off-guard, like a libelous statement in print, may tell no untruth and yet be untrue because it reveals but a small portion of the truth and presents it as the whole.

To say in print that Joe Doe neglects his wife may be a libelous untruth even though it is true. He may on rare occasions neglect her, while his normal and usual conduct is the perfection of tender solicitude.

So a photograph may reveal the subject exactly as he appeared at the moment and yet despoil him of his dignity and customary poise and make him seem an awkward and ridiculous imbecile.

No person, high or low, maintains at all times a pose that does him credit. Even when he seems most impressive to the eye, the camera may catch him in a momentary position that is ridiculous and shameful.

The "frank camera" has been especially offensive in portraying Mrs. Roosevelt.

She is a lady whose qualities of heart and mind would entitle her to every respect and courtesy if she were not the president's wife.

Yet cameramen with more zeal than taste have repeatedly and deliberately caught her off-guard and humiliated her before the nation.

Decent people resent that sort of thing. They believe, and rightly, that a libelous picture is no less defamatory than libelous words.

were launched, meanwhile, and conveyed others to the Tsinan.

The first assurance that the Fulton's crew was safe was contained in a message sent by the U. S. S. Isabel to Admiral Frank B. Upham, chief of the Asiatic fleet, at Manila. It said: "All officers and enlisted men have been saved; still standing by."

The U. S. S. Tulsa had left Hongkong for northern waters, and no other American warship was near the stricken craft.

Naval and port authorities here were ready to help the survivors, who will be accommodated in the sailors' and soldiers' home and China Fleet Club.

The Fulton was abandoned at 10 p. m., still burning furiously.

ed in North and South Carolina while in Florida several weeks ago it was reported that Georgia tags were being stripped from cars in and around Tampa.

Governor Talmadge said that the state would protect bona fide residents of Georgia. About 5,000 of the 320,000 tags sold in Georgia were mailed to persons out of the state.

The governor concluded his comments on the situation that it would be easily clarified if all states followed his lead in fixing the price of tags at $3.

this session. Debate on the measure had run into months of time.

In addition to the time element, Copeland expressed an opinion it would be "discourteous" to Canada for the United States senate to take up the treaty again without reopening negotiations looking to a revised form.

Failure of the senate to ratify was believed to have definitely precluded action on the pact by the Canadian parliament. The Canadian legislative body was described as sitting back, awaiting the first move by the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt was certain, in talks with newspapermen today, that if this country did not join Canada in building the seaway, the northern neighbor would carry out the project alone. The president has been informed that if Canada were to abandon the power phase of the St. Lawrence development, the seaway could be built for less than $100,000,000, in contrast to the estimate total cost of $543,000,000.

said, would be certain to be taken as a counter-balance to the militarily allied Little Entente, Czecho-Slovakia, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia, and would arouse resentment at best.

A customs union was considered out of the question. The big powers at The Hague, in 1931, forbade a customs union between Austria and Germany as endangering Austria's independence. The same argument would hold true for a customs union with Hungary and Italy.

Besides, the majority of Austria's trade is with Germany and the Little Entente. She would injure herself by allying economically with Italy and Hungary, it was pointed out.

The same circles believed that what Dollfuss, Goemboes and Mussolini will arrive at is a combination of the last two possibilities, that is, a consultative pact and foreign trade agreements.

RED CROSS FUNDS STILL FAR SHORT

Atlanta Lags in Storm Relief; Drive for Money Intensified.

With only one-third of her quota raised for the relief of tornado victims, Atlanta Wednesday lagged behind many Georgia counties and cities which have reported outstanding success in raising funds, Stone J. Crane, field representative of the American Red Cross, announced.

Strenuous efforts to bring Atlanta's total higher will be made today on the eve of an important disaster institute to be held Friday at the Piedmont hotel by the Red Cross workers of the state.

Committees headed by Mrs. Max E. Land, president of the Atlanta Woman's Club, and W. Eugene Harrington, director of the storm relief fund in Atlanta, are expected today to report many new donations which will be used in rehabilitation work at Bowdon and in seven Georgia counties.

The response to provide help for the storm sufferers by residents of Carrollton and Carroll county was praised by Crane. Carroll's county seat already has donated $2,813, but in Atlanta only about $5,000 of the quota of $15,000 has been received by, or promised to, the Red Cross.

Situation Urgent.

The urgency of the situation at Bowdon will be impressed on attendants at the Red Cross disaster institute Friday, it was said. Henry M. Baker, nationally known disaster relief worker of the Red Cross, will conduct the institute and will be the principal speaker. Chairmen of Red Cross chapters in tornado-stricken areas will tell of the havoc wrought by the storm and the need to rehabilitate its victims to prevent their becoming public charges.

TOBIN DENIES GIVING BONDS TO J. I. REECE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 14.—(UP)—Joseph S. Tobin, state commissioner of insurance and banking, today denied that he ever turned over any bonds from the department to Joseph I. Reece, whom he succeeded in office.

Tobin was put on the stand as a rebuttal witness by the state in the trial of Reece, charged with stealing $100,000 in bonds from the department, in an effort to refute Reece's story of a "political deal" concerning the bonds.

Reece has testified that the bonds were delivered to him by Tobin, after the latter had succeeded him in office in January of 1933, under an agreement whereby they were to be sold to settle certain political campaign deficits.

The defendant claimed the "deal" was conceived primarily to refund $22,000 which he had donated to the finance committee of Governor Hill McAlister's 1932 gubernatorial campaign from unadjusted back-tax funds in his custody.

Tobin denied that he ever discussed such a deal with Reece, or that any such agreement ever existed, so far as he knew. His detailed testimony denied virtually every point in Reece's story.

In reply to Reece's testimony that he and Tobin conferred here on the night of February 7 or 8, 1933, Tobin said he was in Memphis on the night of the seventh and unsuccessfully tried to contact Reece here on the night of the eighth.

WAR DEPARTMENT BILL PASSED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—The senate today passed the war department appropriation bill carrying $342,268,748 for the next fiscal year.

The bill now goes to conference for action on an amendment adding $50,000,000 for Mississippi flood control.

The bill also carried an amendment, added at the last minute at the request of President Roosevelt, making an additional $10,000,000 immediately available for improvement, development and augmentation of army aviation material and for training of pilots, purchase and construction of buildings and employment of civilian personnel.

- Fair Enough -

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

SHOW DOG'S LIFE NEW YORK, March 14.—Every year I go shoving through the crowd at the dog show in Madison Square Garden and I have yet to get over a sort of feeling that the dogs don't care much for the experience and that the principal motive of most of the people who show them off is to make some money. This is a legal purpose, all right, but the nonprofessional who goes to such an exhibition generally is a sucker for a playful bark or the wag of a tail and the pros who raise dogs by the herd, or pack, for the market, seem to be taking an unethical advantage of his tenderest feelings for purposes of sordid gain.

The professional exhibitor's attitude toward his dogs, or stock, seems altogether impersonal and when he bends down to grab his mutt by the tail and yank it to its feet in a studied and artificial posture, to catch the eye of the judge, my policy would be to say, "Oh, let us forget about the judges and what they may happen to think and go on home and see what I can frisk out of the ice box for you."

It appears very unlikely, judging from the demeanor of the show dogs and their owners, that anybody ever frisks anything out of the ice box for them or lets them jump up on a good chair or the foot of a bed and stay there. Anybody who has ever known a dog personally is bound to know, however, that these are among the most important pleasures in a dog's life, and, although the dog experts will claim that such practices are bad for the dog, I have known some dogs quite intimately which managed to survive this sort of mistreatment and live very full lives.

IMPERSONAL There can be no personal relation between the dog and the owner in a commercial kennel because if there were the proprietor would not hang a price tag on his pooch and sell it to anyone who happened to come along with enough money. I am aware of an incident at one of the best commercial kennels, or a dog store as you might call it, in the region of New York in which the buyer and the seller stalled just $5 apart on the prices bid and asked for a Scottie pup, whereat the professional dog lover picked up his little mutt and turned away, saying, "I will fry him and eat him before I will take a nickel less."

It is possible to become too sentimental about dogs, and rare examples of heroism and loyalty on the part of dogs are exploited into a tradition which runs for the entire breed of animals. Not to minimize the sacrifices which have been authenticated, I have a suspicion, however, that dogs do not invariably rescue the baby or the man from a watery grave but sometimes are guilty of terrible indifference and just amble away. Or, with an exaggerated sense of humor, the dog may frolic and bark along the shore making a great joke of a tragic happening, and then forget all about it. Dead men tell no tales about the dogs which didn't go to the rescue and one seldom reads pieces in the paper about the dog which fraternized with the burglars and romped about the house for them, showing off his tricks and playing the fool generally, while they drank the boss' Scotch and robbed the place.

But, on the average, dogs probably give as good as they get in the way of loyalty.

HIGH-FALUTIN' A dog may jump into anybody's car and ride away or follow anybody who calls him and gives him the bone from a chop, we will say. But the dog, himself, may have been sold for a sum of money at some time in his career and many of them are deserted in the country every year because people find it inconvenient to take them back to town.

For the fifth year in succession, I pored over the catalog of dogs in the show at Madison Square Garden without finding a dog named Rover, Towser, Sport, Spot or Fido.

In a way, it is no wonder the pros don't cultivate personal relations with their stock. The names which they give them preclude this. They are called such names as Champion Alexander of Clane O' Wind-Holme and Rose Shire Gorim O' Hollow Tree. Only fancy a man going to his back door at night and hollering: "Here Champion Alexander of Clane O' Wind-Holme; here Champion Alexander of Clane O' Wind-Holme."

HOLLYWOOD IN NEW YORK

BY MOLLIE MERRICK.

By CLARK GABLE.

(Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 14.—When she asked me to write about hunting and horses, Mollie Merrick knew my weakness. For if there's anything I like better than hunting it's horses, and vice versa.

The fact is that I like hunting for its own sake, for the innate pleasure of being in the open country on a good horse. And I would as soon "hunt" with a pocket camera as a rifle, and often do, for that matter.

Out in the hills of Arizona or Utah, where I usually go, I find complete relaxation for nerves worn ragged in the strain of motion picture production. To me it's the greatest tonic in the world.

Few people realize the nerve strain and long hours entailed in film work. Actors are usually thought of as privileged persons who sleep until noon. The fact is we're obliged to get up long before most people's alarm clocks ring and we're still working while they sit comfortably in bedroom slippers by their fireplaces.

Maybe that's why my periodic hunting trips mean so much to me.

Having passed most of my life prior to picture work in the theatrical profession, usually with itinerant stock companies, I never had time nor opportunity for outdoor sports. In fact, I had never been on a horse before the gates of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios opened to me. That was three years ago.

Then Lionel Barrymore saw my characterization of Killer Mears in "The Last Mile" and invited me to make a screen test.

The test satisfactory, I was offered a cowboy part in "The Painted Desert" and asked if I could ride. Determined to do or die, I said "Sure!"

Well, I'll never cease being grateful to the horse. If he hadn't decided in favor of docility I might still be traveling from town to town in stock. And that, by the way, is why I believe the element of luck is of paramount importance in shaping our destinies.

The event served a double purpose and introduced me to the saddle. Since then I have ridden almost daily. I usually get up an hour earlier each morning, often before dawn, to canter through the hills near my home before going to work.

Riding introduced me to hunting. At the suggestion of my friend, Dr. Franklyn Thorpe, of Los Angeles, I accompanied him between pictures to the mountains of Wyoming, a favorite location for which I share his enthusiasm.

That trip brought me the keenest pleasure of my life.

Although I have since repeated it often, I still take as great a delight even in the prosaic preparations as I did then.

As soon as my present work is completed, and the doctor gives his consent, I'll be off again, either to Arizona or Utah.

New York Broker Held In Death of Woman, 26

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Arthur W. Morse, Wall Street broker, was held on a charge of homicide today in connection with the death of Mrs. Emma Field Leavett, 26, member of a socially prominent Brookline, Mass., family.

Mrs. Leavett was found unconscious in Morse's Greenwich Village apartment yesterday after the couple had returned from a tour of the village night clubs.

She was taken to Bellevue hospital and Morse was released in $5,000 bail on a felonious assault charge. Twelve hours after her arrival at the hospital, Mrs. Leavett died without having regained consciousness.

An autopsy showed she died from cerebral compression caused by a hemorrhage in the head. Dr. Thomas Gonzales, deputy chief medical examiner, reported she also had suffered multiple contusions and abrasions of the body as well as a fractured rib.

1 KILLED, 4 HURT IN BUS ACCIDENT

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 14.—(AP)—One man was killed, four persons were injured, and 35 narrowly escaped today when a Greyhound passenger bus collided head-on with a gasoline-laden truck and a moment later was enveloped in flames as barrels of the fuel exploded. Hermann Whittaker, 32, of White House, Tenn., was one of those injured.

The truck driver, Sam Bricker, of Columbus, was injured fatally.

Ruth Judd Pardon Asked by Father

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 14.—(AP)—The Rev. H. J. McKinnell appealed today for a pardon for his daughter, Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk murderess."

His petition was received and filed by the state board of pardons and paroles without comment.

Once sentenced to death on the gallows for the slaying of Agnes Anne Le Roi, Mrs. Judd was found insane and placed in the state hospital at Phoenix. She also was accused of killing Hedvig Samuelson and sending the bodies of the two women to Los Angeles in a trunk.

Should the authorities of the state hospital at any time find Mrs. Judd has become sane her original sentence must be carried out under Arizona law.

CONFERENCE OF D. A. R. OPENS IN FLORIDA

MIAMI, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Unveiling of a marker on the federal highway here, designating the location of historic old Fort Dallas featured the opening here today of the thirty-second conference of the Florida Daughters of the American Revolution. The meeting will last three days.

After an address by Mrs. Hewell Brown, of Miami, in which she gave a historical sketch of the fort, the marker officially was presented to the state. It was accepted by H. C. Duncan, of Tavares, attorney for the state road commission, in behalf of Governor Dave Sholtz.

Army planes, grounded after 10 fatalities, still were idle and the time for a resumption remained undetermined, although the war department predicted it would come within the "next day or two."

The army tragedies and congressional disputes over the cancellation of private air mail contracts on the grounds they were arrived at through collusion and fraud were a factor in the decision of Mr. Roosevelt to have the entire aviation policy studied with a view to a new system.

Even before that, however, an interdepartmental committee was looking into the subject but its inquiry was interrupted by the series of events that followed the scrapping of air mail contracts.

Senators and representatives said today Mr. Roosevelt probably had authority under the economy act to merge military aviation units but that new legislation probably would be needed should he decide to include civil aviation also.

Representative Snell, republican, New York, said he doubted the chief executive would attempt even to merge the service units without consulting congress.

"The result today on the independent offices bill and the St. Lawrence treaty," he said, "will make Mr. Roosevelt have a little more respect for congress than he has had in the past, I believe."

Congressional sentiment is divided on the question of one agency to supervise military aviation, although a majority of the house military committee which has been studying army buying of planes probably favors the amalgamation.

England, France and Italy have separate ministries for air and some military observers assert the first two countries have had increased aviation efficiency in consequence.

Among the reports to be studied by the White House will be that of the committee already named to inquire into army transport of the mails.

Colonel Lindbergh, notifying Secretary Dern that he could not serve on the special committee to investigate the army flying of the air mail, said:

"I do not feel that I can serve on a committee whose function it is to assist in following out an executive order to the army to take over the commercial air mail system of the United States.

"I greatly appreciate the honor of your request that I become a member of a special committee to study and report upon army aviation in relation to national defense.

"I would of course be glad to contribute in any way that I can to the maintenance of an adequate national defense. However, according to the announcement by the war department, this committee is to study and report upon performance by the army air corps in its mission to carry the air mail as directed by executive order.

"I believe that the use of the army air corps to carry the air mail was unwarranted and contrary to American principles.

"This action was unjust to the air lines whose contracts were cancelled without trial. It was unfair to the personnel of the army air corps who had neither equipment designed for the purpose nor adequate time for training in a new field.

"It has unnecessarily greatly damaged all American aviation."

Chamberlin Accepts Task.

Clarence Chamberlin, aviator who has defended the army, accepted appointment on the group today but Orville Wright said illness forced him to decline to serve.

Other members of the committee included five army officers headed by Major General Hugh Drum.

The president said his recommendations would await the results of the aviation inquiry but he indicated plainly dissatisfaction with the present organization. Changes undoubtedly are to be advocated by the administration.

The head of the army air corps, Major General Benjamin Foulois, today began a check on all routes over which the army is to carry the mail when the ships go aloft again.

The service has taken intensive precautions to prevent a repetition of the accidents that caused President Roosevelt to demand that army fatalities cease.

Every branch of government connected with aviation, including army, navy, marine corps, department of commerce, customs and bureau of internal revenue will participate in the aviation review.

The senate passed the bill authorizing the army to carry the mails today but reconsidered on the request of Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, that a record vote be taken.

Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, reviewed the events that led to the cancellation of the private contracts. He contended the action was without justification. Then the senate passed the bill again, 51 to 22.

General Mitchell declined today to express his views on the president's aeronautical survey, explaining that his ideas were well known and unchanged.

Since his resignation from the army because of conflict with the war department on aviation questions, Mitchell has continued to advocate a separate and distinct department of aeronautics which would have general supervision over all governmental air activities.

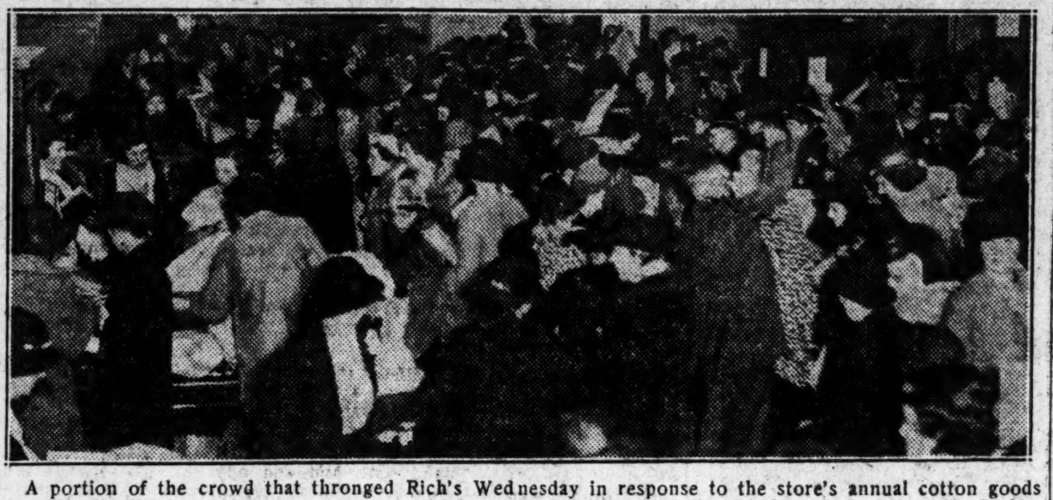
Response to Cotton Sale Taxes Resources Of Rich's Sales Staff, Walter Rich Says



A portion of the crowd that thronged Rich's Wednesday in response to the store's annual cotton goods sale. The facilities of the place were swamped by one of the largest influx of shoppers ever seen in Rich's.

Rich's annual cotton goods sale swamped the store Wednesday, and taxed the facilities of the staff to handle the crowds that attended it, Walter H. Rich, president of the company, reported Wednesday.

His statement is borne out by the photograph appearing above of the shoppers at the sale. Mr. Rich said:

"Rich's annual cotton goods sale was such a enormous success that even the extraordinary facilities in the possession of our store were taxed to the utmost, and we fear that some of our good friends and customers were not served as promptly as they had a right to expect, from our usual standards.

"When we accumulated 76,000 yards of all kinds of cotton goods to sell for 25 cents a yard, we made an outstanding merchandising effort, and the problem was not an easy one for us to solve on the advancing markets of today. But the Atlanta woman has had such wonderful previous experience at this annual 25 cent cotton goods sale of ours, that they responded in a manner that was far beyond our expectations, and was most gratifying in the confidence that was shown in our advertised statements.

"We had literally hundreds of extra salespeople, who were powerless before the early morning crowd which came to see and buy. As night fell Wednesday there were only remnants left of this 76,000 yards, but we are happy to say that there are thousands of satisfied customers in possession of this cotton goods.

"I want to take this opportunity of thanking our customers for the patience and good humor they showed under trying conditions, and the only thing I can say is that we did the best we could with the most prodigious and eager crowd."

U. S. ASSISTANCE ASKED BY LABOR ON UNION DEMANDS

Plan Not Clear.

Just what this plan entailed was not clear today. William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors and chief spokesman for the corporation at the labor board hearing, told reporters it was not definite how the reduction in hours would be obtained since the average was to be taken over the year and there was no telling how long the high production period would run.

Last year, he recalled, it stretched to September. If production held on for a long period he indicated it would be necessary to shorten working days to stay within the average.

Knudsen said there probably would be a 10 per cent increase in hourly and piece pay rates, but he was not positive about the figure.

Other automobile men were even less definite in their interpretation of the new program and NRA officials refrained from formal statements until the situation was studied further.

The labor witnesses at the strike hearing, speaking for various plants, all presented substantially one story:

Employes Discharged.

That old employes had been discharged for various reasons after soliciting membership in the American Federation of Labor local unions or after opposing company union plans of the managements.

That plant officials last fall promoted the formation of company unions throughout the industry, with the exception of the Ford Motor Company, frequently using pressure to get the men in.

That after the federation unions had been formed, their leaders had not been able to get the management to negotiate on demands but had run into requests from the executives for lists of union members.

The principal demand put forward was for recognition of the unions with a requirement that once these had shown a majority membership in the plants through elections supervised by the labor board, they would become full spokesmen for all employes in negotiation of wages and hours. They demanded also that all men discharged for union activity be reinstated promptly.

Labor Men Notify.

Labor men of the Buick, Fisher Body, Chevrolet and Hudson companies from Detroit, Flint and Lansing, Mich., and Cleveland, Ohio, testified.

Knudsen was accompanied by A. E. Barit, Hudson Motor Company executive; Harlow Curtice, president of Buick, and E. F. Fisher, vice president of Fisher Body, together with other General Motors officials.

Testimony for the Wagner bill before the senate committee was started by the author of the measure with a declaration that he proposed strengthening of the national industrial act "at the only spot where experience has proved it lamentably weak."

He said under NRA labor organizations had received one setback after another while trade associations grew constantly stronger, threatening a "worse balance than existed in the past."

he had driven the car for another block.

D. A. Palmer, 23, of a Clifton road address, who was arrested Tuesday night on "suspicion" and disorderly conduct, was released under $500 bond Wednesday. Palmer was arrested when he snatched a letter from the hands of Thomas A. Scott Jr., of 1251 Peachtre street, Tuesday night near a postoffice substation on Peachtree street.

Officers who took Palmer into custody said he was not armed and appeared to have been drinking. The letter taken from Scott was found in Palmer's possession, the police said. Patrolmen Wallace and Maynard, who made the arrest, said Palmer threatened to kill Scott and attempted to get his money but refused six cents Scott had.

Wednesday night a squad of four policemen, W. C. Nix, P. B. Daily, C. J. Schilling and J. W. Cody, patrolled the city in a radio car armed with a machine gun, a riot gun a tear gas gun and regulations pistols. They answered only radio calls of burglaries and robberies and cruised the entire city. The new car was ordered several days ago by Chief of Police T. O. Sturdivant to aid in catching criminals. The car will patrol nightly from 10 o'clock until 6 o'clock in the morning.

El Paso, Texas, authorities Wednesday refused to allow J. L. Harris, who was arrested there in a car stolen here by abduction bandits, to be returned to Atlanta for prosecution. They have lodged robbery charges against Harris and he will be tried there. Harris was arrested in the car of J. H. Griswell, of Forest Park, Ga., who was "ridden" and robbed February 28.

Capitol Now Playing Picture by Zane Grey

A change in screen program brings to the Capitol theater, starting today, the famous Zane Grey story, "To the Last Man." The cast features Randolph Scott, Esther Ralston, Buster Crabbe, Jack LaRue and Noah Beery. The company of more than 150 players was sent to the actual location of Zane Grey's story, where it remained for several weeks in order to provide the picture with the necessary tone of realism.

The story has its inception in post-Civil War days. One of two feuding families of Kentucky decides to call quits to the bloodshed. The head of the other family, sent to jail for the last killing, follows his old rival to Arizona. There the relentless feud is revived.

Unforeseen complications, however, enter the struggle at this juncture, when the son of one family and the daughter of the other meet and fall in love without knowing each other's identity. Randolph Scott and Miss Ralston appear in these romantic roles.

On the stage, the Capitol offers Maxine's Ballyhoo Revue, which has scored quite a hit during the week, for its dance numbers, novelties and beautiful costuming. Both the revue and the feature picture will end their engagement on Saturday.

Farnell, Snooky Woods Returning to Atlanta

Atlanta's burlesque followers are looking forward with keenest anticipation to next week, when three of their favorite performers, Hap Farnell, Snooky Woods and Carmen will all be seen in the one show at the Atlanta theater. Producer Matt Kolb pointed out on Wednesday that nowhere in America is there a burlesque theater offering three such stars on one bill.

The new week's production will start with a midnight show on Sunday night—12:01 a. m. Monday morning to be precise—and will be followed by the regular performances twice daily all week.

This week Carmen is adding to her already great Atlanta fame with a savage dance in the first act and a beautifully rhythmic waltz in the second half of the program.

All seats downstairs are now reserved at the Atlanta theater and may be obtained, for any show, at the box office daily.

WILD WOLF TRAPPED IN WHITFIELD COUNTY

First of Species Seen in Section Captured by Irate Chicken Owner.

DALTON, Ga., March 14.—The big, bad wolf has been effectively captured, bound, gagged and muzzled by Lester Muse, who resides a few miles south of Dalton.

The wolf, which had been raiding Mr. Muse's chicken yard and invading other hen-houses throughout the community, was caught in a steel trap set by Mr. Muse. Identity of the nocturnal intruder was not known until the wolf was caught, but many suspected it of being a species of wild cat or mountain cat.

Old-timers who know about such things say that this is the first wolf ever caught in these parts. While foxes are fairly common in the mountain sections of the state, there is much local speculation as to how the wolf came to be in north Georgia. With a leather muzzle over the beast's mouth, Mr. Muse exhibited the wolf on the streets of Dalton Tuesday.

Before the wolf was captured, it left a trail of slaughtered fowls in its wake throughout the Carbondale community of Whitfield county. Farmers of the district were indignant over the nightly raids on their poultry, and groups of armed men made several unsuccessful attempts to run the invader to earth. By using a neatly concealed steel trap and a fine Plymouth Rock hen for bait, Mr. Muse was enabled to ensnare the wolf, bringing an end to the beast's nocturnal prowlings.

Old-timers think that the wolf's mate is somewhere in the neighborhood, and Mr. Muse plans to bait another trap.

GEORGIANS ASK ACTION FOR KENNESAW PARK

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The house military affairs committee today was asked by three Georgians to report favorably on the Tarver bill creating a national memorial military park at and near Kennesaw mountain. Those who spoke in favor of the measure were Representatives Tarver, of Dalton, and Wood, of Canton, and Robert Otis, of Atlanta, chairman of the Georgian Landmarks Club.

Hearings on the bill were held before a subcommittee of the military affairs committee, and following a two-hour session, Judge Tarver said he and his fellow-Georgians had been treated very sympathetically and that he was hopeful a favorable report would be recommended to the full committee.

The bill asks for the authorization of $375,000 to purchase 1,050 acres of land in the Kennesaw mountain region, which purchase was recommended by a commission some years ago. The commission was represented by General Nat Harris, of the Confederate army, General John L. Clem, of the Union army, and a government engineer.

Judge Tarver explained that the purpose of his measure was to memorialize the valorous deeds of heroism of soldiers of both the Confederate and Union armies in the War Between the States by the erection of monuments and memorials to organizations and individual members of both armies, and the marking, laying out and preserving of battle lines. fortifications and entrenchments upon and around Kennesaw mountain.

"This was one of the greatest battles in history," Judge Tarver said, "and I believe it is both fitting and proper that congress should make the battlefield a national park in accordance with the recommendation of the commission appointed by the secretary of war in 1926."

The late Senator Harris, of Georgia, introduced a similar bill in the seventieth congress, but it never became law.

The bill's author expressed the hope that if enacted into law, markers and monuments would be erected by states and organizations interested in the Kennesaw mountain battle. He said soldiers from 14 different states fought at the battle and that if the government would acquire the necessary land there would be little difficulty in erecting suitable markers.

POLICE OF VALDOSTA STAGE CIVIC CLEAN-UP

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 14.—Quietly and without fanfare of any kind, the police department within the past week has clamped on the lid, causing a number of places heretofore dispensing 3.2 beer to ship out whatever stock was on hand and cease serving it to the thirsty.

In the same way places reputed to handle contraband beverages stronger than 3.2 were told that they must handle no more and just as quietly houses harboring persons regarded as undesirables were told that they must move or be moved.

Almost without the public being aware of it the police department put on this spring house cleaning movement in a determined manner, which has resulted in stopping many violations of the law. In carrying out its campaign the department informed all persons interested they could take their choice, quit business or stand prosecution for every violation, and others to move or be ejected from the communities which they were infesting.

TENTATIVE APPROVAL GIVEN CANNERS' PACT

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Tentative approval of marketing agreements for the canned corn industry and for packers and canners of peas was given today by Secretary Wallace.

Under the corn agreement canners in 23 states would pledge themselves to establish minimum prices to growers according to average figures in 18 price districts to be established.

The minimum prices will vary according to the type of corn in the price district in which it is sold.

The principal provision of th peas agreement is a pledge by canners that they will pay a flat price at least $6.50 more per ton than was given for shelled peas during the 1933 season. This represents an increase of approximately 15 per cent.

TOBACCO GROWERS BACK ACREAGE CUT

98 Per Cent Have Signed Agreements To Reduce 30 Per Cent.

TIFTON, Ga., March 14.—Growers of flue-cured, bright-leaf tobacco in south Georgia, where 60,000,000 pounds of the commodity were marketed last year, are strongly in favor of acreage reduction.

From the federal processing tax the producers will be paid between 10 and 20 per cent of the total amount of money received for their 1933 crop, provided they sign contracts agreeing to reduce the 1934 acreage 30 per cent.

E. C. Westbrook, tobacco specialist of the Georgia State College of Agriculture, says 98 per cent of the south Georgia growers have signed the agreements.

With this fact as a basis, and with weather similar to the last growing season, observers predict the 1934 south Georgia crop will approximate 45,000,000 pounds.

Cold weather a few weeks ago retarded the tobacco's growth and many plant beds had to be resown. This caused a delay in getting the plants transplanted from the beds to the prepared fields.

Buyers last year paid producers in this state $6,764,125. To this amount will be added the rental fee paid by the government to the contract signers.

Georgia, experts say, is the only state which does not require farmers to grade and tie tobacco before offering it on warehouse floors at auction.

Proponents of legislation to force farmers to grade and tie tobacco claim growers are losing thousands of dollars annually by not having their product marketed in better condtion.

Those opposing the legislation say the cost to the producer to tie and grade his tobacco would surpass the extra amount he would receive in increased price.

Governor Eugene Talmadge has not made known his stand in the issue.

1934 Fashions in Gowns and Etiquette Shown at Davison's "School for Brides"

No matter how well posted the brides of the season may be, there are many interesting pointers they may learn from charming Mrs. Lawrence Mitchell, stylist for the International Silverware Company, who is conducting a thoroughly unique "School for Brides," at Davison-Paxon's this week.

Just as styles in clothes changes, so do fashions in the details of etiquette which stamp as correct the setting for a party, according to Mrs. Mitchell. The 1934 bride should no more have her table, for example, set in accord with the ideas of 1914 than she should wear gowns in the style of 200 years ago, says this well-known authority.

Fashion Review.

Thrilling alike to brides-to-be, recent brides, and brides of many springs ago is the bridal atmosphere carried out throughout the store. This afternoon and Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock a fashion revue will be given in the tea room displaying the last whisper in good taste for the bride's trousseau from lingerie and gowns to be worn to parties, to her traveling ensemble and wedding gown.

Immediately following the revue, Mrs. Mitchell will set a table on the stage in three different and equally attractive ways for various types of entertainments, explaining and demonstrating the details. Clever and unusual touches which make a party different and outstanding will be suggested by Mrs. Mitchell. What could be more intriguing than a "Suppressed Desire Party," where each guest appears representing something she has always craved? The particularly amusing details for this affair and others equally attractive will be discussed.

Prizes Awarded.

Especially exciting are the prizes to be awarded to those attending the "school." Prospective brides may compete for one prize and the fortunate winner may have her choice of a maple dinette suite, a china service, a set of trousseau lingerie, or bridal linens. A chest of 1847 Rogers Brothers silverplate, valued at $122.50, will be presented to the winner in the group including anyone attending except the brides-elect of the season.

Even the girl whose home is thoroughly correct seldom notices each detail in the table appointment until she plans a home of her own and such brides-elect will be interested in the artistic tables decorated by Mrs. Mitchell. The more experienced hostess, too, will be interested in finding new ideas in the work of this expert.

On the second floor a beautifully appointed table set for the "Announcement Luncheon" features a centerpiece of red radiance roses with silver, china and linen chosen to blend with the rose motif. Appropriate for a stag party for the bridegroom is the table on the same floor overlaid with natural linen and featuring a color motif of blue and yellow, with the silver in plain patterns effectively used. Crystal epergnes holding pernet roses and crystal candelabra placed on a mirror reflector center the table on the third floor for the bridesmaids' tea, which is overlaid with an Italian cut work table cloth and set with lovely flat silver and china. Elegant in every detail is the lace-covered table on the fourth floor, which is decorated for the wedding dinner, with silverware and crystal in formal patterns used and a silver centerpiece holding white snapdragons, lilies and roses. Especially attractive is the table on the fifth floor set for the "first breakfast," where bright-hued mats and peasant china are strikingly used with very plain silver to give a delightfully informal effect.

"Honeymoon House," is lettered on a white scroll caught with wedding belles above the entrance to the model apartment on the sixth floor, where ideal furnishings for a bride's apartment are arranged. Of particular interest is the room on the same floor where appropriate wedding gifts are displayed on tables in groups according to price, ranging from the most inexpensive to very handsome presents.

NANCY PAGE

By FLORENCE La GANKE.

One of Nancy's neighbors had just returned from a trip to New York. She brought all sorts of ideas with her. One of them concerned pincushions. "Really Nancy, the shops are all showing pin cushions. You see, the bedrooms are enjoying a return of mid-Victorian decorations and that means pin cushions on the bureaus.

I saw some perfectly adorable ones—drums, hearts, stars, ovals with smocking on the boxed sides. But one that I thought you might like particularly was a square boxed one with a quilted top.

The one I saw had white taffeta. The boxing was of the same material but the cording at the top was of cherry red velvet.

Nancy immediately had an idea. She saw no reason why she could not applique a cherry spray on top of the pin cushion and then quilt around that. She worked out a cherry spray. Then her pencil being in fine fettle she designed a swan, also mid-Victorian. And to put into an Empire room with its white and gold stars and arrows Nancy worked out a third design. All of them are on the direction leaflet which you may procure by following the directions at the bottom of the column today.

Nancy made a form for the pincushion, first. She chose heavy muslin and sewed the bottom to the straight sides. She put on the top and sewed three sides and part of the fourth. Then she filled the form with saw dust. She stuffed it as full as she could get it. Then she sewed the opening shut using hand sewing.

The dimensions for the cushion are given in the direction sheet. By placing the silk top over the design it will be possible to trace the design. Then use the traced side for the wrong side of the cover. The marking will show through clearly enough for quilting.

If the top is quilted it will be wise to make it of two thicknessess of cloth, one of silk and an under one of course cheesecloth with a thin layer of wadding or cotton between.

Detailed instructions for making "Pin Cushion" may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

TEACHERS FACE DELAY IN GETTING SALARIES

Distribution of approximately $125,000 in salaries of school employes for the last half of January may be delayed until Friday because of obstacles in the way of immediate bank loans, it was explained Wednesday.

Members of the Atlanta Clearing House Association Wednesday declined to lend the city $75,000 to pay federal relief officials to maintain CWA and other federal expenditures, and Mayor James L. Key and B. Graham West, city comptroller, were forced to revise communications to the banks, on which they pinned their hopes of obtaining funds.

Key dictated the agreement during the morning, but when the relief loan was refused he was forced to rewrite the agreement, thus delaying placement of the loan.

West said the $75,000 fund would be paid from current receipts.

Bank officials told West that they have refused charity loans to the county and made the same stipulation in city loans last year, but West attempted to obtain the $75,000 in order to apply as much current revenue as possible to past-due bills of the municipality.

It is not expected that the $80,000 will complete the paving but it is understood that at a later date more funds will be allotted to the road.

The announcement came after the delegation had called upon Governor Eugene Talmadge and cited the need for the paving.

Those in the party included: From Columbus, Colonel E. G. Peyton, of Fort Benning; W. E. Page, internal revenue collector for Georgia and publisher of the Columbus Ledger and Enquirer-Sun; Mayor H. CROSS-STITCH MOTIFS. Pattern 5084.

Cross-stitch—fun to do—quickly done—colorful — effective — a durable embroidery—isn't that enough recommendation? These motifs done in good-sized crosses are lovely on table linens or scarfs. The transfer pattern is so drawn that the four motifs are correctly placed to form the wreath, as illustrated, doing away with the trouble of placing each one separately. The small sprays are separate and can be arranged as shown or used for napkins or in any way desired. The design lends itself to a great variety of color effects ranging from soft rose and green to the bright peasant colors.

In pattern 5084 you will find four 10 3-4 inch motifs, four and four reverses of each of the 2 1-2 inch motifs shown, suggestions and material requirements for using the motifs on various linens. Price of pattern, 10 cents.

Send your order to Household Arts Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

WHEN THE DOCTOR SAYS: Castor oil

YOU know the feeling of dismay that many mothers have, when the doctor suggests a good old-fashioned dose of castor oil.

"It's so hard to get the children to take it!" they say.

But at any good drug store you can buy a castor oil that's really easy to take. It's Squibb's Tasteless Castor Oil. Finest quality castor oil, fully effective, but with the disagreeable taste removed by Squibb's method of refining!

Try this better product. Keep a bottle on hand for emergencies. Just ask for Squibb's—the tasteless kind.

AS THE EARTH TURNS

By GLADYS HASTY CARROLL

INSTALLMENT VI.

Mrs. Shaw climbed up to the front seat, her eyes bright with excitement. Her coat was two years old, but clean and neat, and Lois May had taught her how to pin her hair so that would show beneath her hat; it made her feel conspicuous but modish. Lize and Lois May and Bun sat together in the back, Lize in the white fur jacket, Lois May in the green velvet dress and wool coat with a new dark fur, a gift from Lize, slung rakishly across her shoulder; Lois May had changed in these last few weeks, though no one had time to notice it just now; she was older, secure in her experience with street cars and revolving doors, but a little subdued, a little watchful and speculating. Bun's collar had been turned and her short hair done up on rags the night before. She wore becomingly her serious angelic look between the red curls, and held the package which contained her own personal gift for Margaret—a dozen russet apples rubbed hard.

"Jen!" Ed called from the sitting room. "Come fix this thing, will you?"

It was a collar button he needed to have worked through the neckband she had starched too stiff for his clumsy fingers. His thick, untidy hair and stout wind-reddened neck bowed humbly before her.

"I couldn't seem to get it any way."

"It does go hard. There you are."

"Yes."

They went out and stepped into the wagon and rode away. Ed handled the reins gently. He would not drive his horse again for nearly a week.

"Margaret like my Easter lilies?"

"Fine. She's going to—carry them, I guess."

George's place came into view around the next turn.

"You better hitch at the end of the house," she said, "so Tommy won't see the plane go up. Then you go in the front door, won't you? That's what Margaret said."

She smiled at Ed encouragingly and went in.

A few minutes later Mil sat down at the organ in the parlor and began to play a march.

Margaret came down the stairs and across the room to Ed, not slowly as she had read that brides did, but easily and firmly, her natural step. She wore a white voile dress with its wide, filmy collar and clinging skirt, and carried three Easter lilies and a small black Testament, but otherwise she did not look very different from the way she did when she walked down the aisle at school, glancing over the children's shoulders at their figures. She smiled around quietly and when she reached Ed, tucked her hand in his arm and held the lilies and the Testament idly in the other hand.

The elder began to speak. Ed answered him gruffly. Margaret softly. No one heard much of what was said. A few words now and then, that was all.

"—take thee—"

"—to serve—"

"—to cherish—"

"—any reason—"

"I pronounce you—"

The elder raised both hands and prayed in his old voice.

The sun came in, lying across Ed and Margaret, across Mil and her children by the organ, across Mark Shaw and his family; and it was the same sun. Beyond the window it lay across ground that waited to be turned, and across budding trees in the orchard and the pines of the woods beyond the Ridge; still it was the same sun. Jen knew of it, though her eyes were closed. It felt warm to her, and full of promise. The season was early. Crops would be good. It was a fine time for a farmer to be getting married.

That night Jen, as often happened, was the last to go to bed.

The sound of a knock on the side door startled her. She lifted her head and listened. After a minute or two it came again very quietly. She took up the lamp and went into the entry. The key stuck briefly in the lock and she shook it.

"Who is it?" she asked of the dark as she finally pulled the door open.

He stepped into the range of her lamplight. She had never seen him near-by before and even now saw him only vaguely, a broad, stocky figure, bareheaded, with thick dark hair. His voice was deep and smooth, and he spoke almost in a whisper.

"It's too bad to trouble you this time of night. If your light had been out I wouldn't have. But one of the children over at the house is sick, and my mother thinks she'd better have a doctor. You see, we haven't got our telephone put in yet, and I thought maybe you'd be willing to call him. Or let me. If it wouldn't be too much trouble."

"Well, now, we haven't got a telephone either," Jen began.

"You haven't!" He sounded incredulous. "I wish I'd noticed that. I wouldn't have disturbed you."

"Disturbed me!" laughed Jen. "You're no disturbance. It's wonder I heard you at all, coming as easy as you did . . . No, father's never got around to having a telephone put in. We don't seem to see much need for it. They've got one up to my brother George's, though, third place up on the left, and at Hale's and several places down along."

He hesitated.

"Well, thanks. They're probably all in bed by now. I don't believe I'll get them up. The baby'll be all right by morning. Thanks, very much."

He was turning away. Jen held her lamp higher.

"What seems to be the matter with the baby?"

He looked back, one foot on the step, one on the ground. Every word he said he spoke so slowly it seemed to Jen he drawled, but otherwise he had no accent. She saw that his face was long and earnest, with a full, gentle mouth and bigger eyes than those of any of the men she knew; but they were blue eyes, or at least not black like Manuel's and the little girls'.

"Well, I don't know. He's been fine all day, but my mother says he all of a sudden can't get his breath tonight. It's probably just a cold."

"Probably the croup," Jen said. "If you'll wait a minute I'll run over with you and take a look at him." She would have gone to any other neighbors, she thought; she would go to these. "If that's what it is, you don't need a doctor. I'm an old hand at croup."

But Jen did not wait to listen to him. She was back in the kitchen writing on a torn strip of brown paper, "Gone over to Janowski's. One of the young ones is sick," and tucking the corner of it under the lamp. She collected a kettle, a basin, some clean cloths, mustard and flour, and the bottle of ipecac; there was no telling what Polacks might or might not have ready. When she came out of the house she carried the kettle in one hand, a lantern in the other, and wore one of her father's coats and a cap of Bun's; these had been the first things her hand touched in the entry; there was no need to keep a croupy child waiting.

"My," she said cheerfully, "it's an awful warm night for March."

"Here, I'll take your things," Stan Janowski said. "Give me the kettle, too. We'd better go across the field, the road's so muddy."

"All right," Jen answered. "Hold the kettle careful, so you don't break anything in there."

"But I don't feel as if you ought to come," he insisted.

"There," Jen silenced him, "I always go when there's need. It's our way in the country."

But she knew no one else here would have gone to help the Janowskis in the night, and so did he. She felt him glancing at her often as they went down over the hill to the east, across the main road, and into the Old Joe field. It was a still night, and the air was full of fog from the river and marshes, but she could see the pricking of the stars through it, and of lamplight at one high window in the end of the Old Joe barn.

"We haven't got much of a place to live in yet," Stan Janowski said as they went up the incline under the night, "but it's warm, anyway, and fixed so my mother can keep it clean. We're going to build a house as soon as we can."

He set down the lantern and kettle to open a small door that had been cut in the center of the big one, and stood back to let her go in.

The whole end of the barn was one great room with a stove on two sides of it, high, shining black cookstoves that had no legs but set flat on a new hard pine floor. Jen saw at a glance that everything was spotless. The walls had been covered with reddish sheathing paper studded with brass nails and there was a high ceiling plastered white. The new chairs, the long, bare table, the stoves, and even the three beds full of children along the back wall did not nearly fill the room, but left it still big and clean and the smell in it was sweet from fresh air coming in at what had once been a row of mow windows. It did not look like any living quarters Jen had ever seen, but she found nothing to complain of in it. The only sounds she heard were the crying and hoarse breathing of a child somewhere behind the partition and the creak of a rocking chair. She took the kettle from Stan and set it on the table beside a turned-down hand lamp.

"If you'll sit down," he said, "I'll call mother. I had her take him in my room, not to keep everybody awake."

"I can go in there," Jen said.

But a minute after he went through a door and she heard him speak, a woman came out carrying a baby over her shoulder. Nobody in Derwich had ever seen Mrs. Janowski before; some had doubted that there was a woman, doubted if even a Polish woman could really live in a barn. She was short and very fat, with black hair and eyes like the children's, a jolly, red-cheeked, dimpled face, and dressed in coarse, black stuff with the feet of felt boots pulled over her shoes so that she scuffed when she walked.

"Now ain't t's nice," she demanded heartily. "Now t'is what I call nice. Seem t'at I ain't seen no face but t'ese"—she moved her free arm in a generous circle—"for how long, I don't know t'at. My, my. I guess you got big heart, great big heart. My, how I am please; you come out t'is time of night for me, one you don't know. You got ver' big heart."

"And They Arrest Guys Like Us," He Chirped to Champ

One of the boys out in the federal big house sends in the best Carnera gag of the year.

When Primo called in Atlanta for a visit to the prison (and perhaps a wave to Al Capone), the windows were filled with "the boys" looking out in an effort to catch a glimpse of the champion.

The champion had, you will recall, just made that fight with Tommy Loughran, at Miami. And it was, essentially, pretty terrible.

And the story goes that one of "the boys" leaned out and, with the memory of the fight stories fresh in his mind, chirped:

"And they arrest guys like us."

I don't know. It's just a yarn. Maybe it didn't even happen. I wasn't there, Charlie.

ADIOS, MUCHACHA.

It was a couple of years ago that Dr. Sam Silverman and I were in a Juarez, Mexico, chop house, doing some damage to a couple of chicken tamales. We were en route west with the Georgia eleven.

As I recall we had just dropped a couple of pesos on the bird-cage game and wished to continue the idea. So we were eating chicken tamales.

There was a young lady standing nearby doing some damage to an extra dry Martini. She was dressed in riding togs and had in her eyes a far-away look. She was staring right out the windows to the Juarez mountains. It was a very, very, very far-away look. The mountains themselves are quite far away.

We were wondering about that far-away look when she was joined by an old gentleman and they left.

And since that time, two years ago, we have kept wondering. And today comes a card from Dr. Silverman. He's in Mexico. And he writes: "Still looking for that far-away-look-in-the-eye muchacha."

Dr. Silverman wasn't to be identified in the crowd at the bullfight. Maybe he didn't go that day. Gee, I wish I had a chicken tamale!

ROBIN RED BREAST A PHONEY.

It won't be long until spring. I know. I have seen, and smelled, spring.

It was out at the ball park. I went down to the training quarters and smelled the old, old odors of rubbing oil and adhesive tape. And I saw the uniforms and the trunks and a bat or so.

A cold wind was blowing outside. But I had seen and had a whiff of spring. The red, red robin, as an harbinger of spring, had seemed a phoney to me since childhood when I learned that rhyme:

The cold winds do blow
And we shall have snow
And what will poor robin do then?
Poor thing.
He will hide in a barn
To keep himself warm
And hide his head under his wing,
Poor thing.

Obviously the robin didn't know much about spring.

But the baseball box score is a sure-fire harbinger. It may be cold and harsh outside. But when the baseball box score arrives spring is here.

The Cracker boxes will begin appearing soon from Macon. A great town, Macon. And an ideal place to train. The ball club is taking the baseball reporters along to keep the public informed.

THE DERBY IN OLD KAINTUCK.

Comes a wire from Bruce Dudley, of the Courier Journal: "Keenly anticipating another of your coveted contributions to our annual souvenir Kentucky Derby edition. Kindly jot down sketch of your career and wire collect as soon as convenient so we can begin telling our readers."

Well, it was good up there last year. And in a stroke of pure luck this correspondent named the first three horses as Head Play, Brokers' Tip and Charley O. They ran Brokers' Tip, Head Play and Charley O. It was, of course, just luck.

There isn't anything like Derby Day at the Downs. With the sun warm on the barns and the oval ribbon of track with its emerald center. And the clatter of telegraph instruments in the press box and the horses going to the post.

And this year two fillies—Bazzar, of the Bradley stables, and Mata Hari, of the Dixiana farms, are the favorites. Kunnel Bradley has won himself a lot of Derbies.

And the Blue Grass money will be riding with Bazzar—if she goes to the post.

SUNDAY BASEBALL.

Sunday baseball will be a welcome addition to the city. The Junior Chamber of Commerce, according to announcement yesterday, will take over the ball club and operate it on Sundays for charity.

The ball club's official family will have nothing to do with it. The games, played in the afternoon, will not conflict with anything. And a baseball game has always appealed to me as being about the most harmless, wholesome and entertaining of sport.

Some 11 games are scheduled for Sunday in Atlanta. I never quite understood the opposition to Sunday baseball. Golf courses, swimming pools, airplane trips for hire and all sorts of amusements went right along. While the American game of baseball was opposed. It forced the ball club to move to another city to play on Sunday. Which seemed, to my doubtlessly uninformed mind, the height of ridiculousness. The people also voted for the Sunday game. But it has come to be the habit to ignore the voice of the people.

IT REALLY HAPPENED.

The wife of one of the boys at the office called up and asked to speak to her husband.

"I don't see him on this floor anywhere," said the voice on the office phone.

"My goodness," said the startled wife, "does he stay on the floor up there?"

GIANTS LOSE TO CARDS, 7-6

BRADENTON, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals tossed three of their first-string pitchers, Bill Hallahan, Bill Walker and Dizzy Dean, at the New York Giants today and although the world champions collected 12 hits off the trio the Cards won, 7 to 6.

The Cardinals, aided by four errors and seven bases on balls handed out by Al Smith and Jack Salveson, made the most of their seven hits. They scored three times in the second inning, twice in the sixth to tie the score and won the game in the seventh when they sent two more runs across the plate on a boot by Thompson, a force play, a wild peg by Blondy Ryan, two passes and Bill Myers' single.

The champions scored five of their runs off Walker, a former teammate, and the other off Dean in the sixth inning.

Britain Names Walker Cup Team

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—A Walker cup team seasoned with veterans and garnished with three brilliant newcomers to international golf today was named by the Royal and Ancient Club of St. Andrews to carry Britain's colors this year against the United States.

The Hon. Michael Scott, 56-year-old British amateur champion, was named captain with such veteran campaigners as Roger Wethered, Cyril James Hastings Tolley, T. A. Torrance and Eric Fiddian and three youngsters, Jack McLean, S. L. McKinlay and H. G. Bentley, as the other members. Two more will be named later.

The rank and file of British golfdom received the announcement with pleasure, delighted that the committee had fallen back on the "old boys" in an effort to break America's string of seven consecutive victories since the series was instituted in 1922.

The "youngsters" of the team came in for praise, especially McLean, who last summer was called "the second best amateur golfer in the world" by no less an authority than Walter Hagen. He is the Scottish champion.

There had been some doubt as to whether he would be picked but he removed the last bar to his selection recently by quitting his job as a golf ball salesman. McKinlay and Bentley both have played for England in international contests but never against America.

Observers also were delighted with the selection of Wethered, especially as the matches will be played at St. Andrews, Roger's favorite course and one where he always plays his best.

The dates for the contests are May 11 and 12, less than a fortnight before the British amateur at Prestwick, in which members of the American team will compete.

Maxie To Meet Smith at Macon

MACON, Ga., March 14.—(AP)—Boxing in Macon and middle Georgia faces the crisis tomorrow night in its comeback campaign, when Maxie Rosenbloom, light heavyweight champion, faces "Cyclone" Smith, of Fort Benning, Ga., in a 10-round, non-title bout at the city auditorium.

Many think that Smith is not a worthy foe for the champion despite the fact that the soldier boy won a decision over the champ in Savannah two years ago.

The champion, himself, did not appear unduly confident as he concluded his training this afternoon with a light trot around a local city park, a distance of about 200 yards.

WINS LAST HOLE.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 14.(AP)—Isaac Merrill, of Rollins College, stymied Bobby Walker, of Jacksonville, on the last hole today for a 1-up victory and a place in the finals of the annual Ponce de Leon cup golf tournament here. Henry Baldwin, of Boston, went to the last round by downing James Nammack, of New York, 2 and 1.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

EIGHTEEN HOLES WITHOUT AN ALIBI WOULD SET RECORD
251

Alex Morrison says:

He's terribly exacting about everything he does.

When he started my exercises Dr. Bundesen made excuses for what he thought was a lack of progress. I told him that he would progress much faster if he could keep from making excuses.

I pointed out that I hadn't found him making nor accepting alibis in his office. He got the idea and has become one of my star pupils.

It isn't necessary to give as much time and thought to golf as you do to your business but, it's just as well to avoid alibis on the course as you do in business.

RECORD ENTRY IN PIN EVENT

By Jack Troy.

That thrill in finally getting over the hill is hard to beat. Meaning that last night the forty-ninth team entered The Constitution's St. Patrick's day handicap doubles duckpin tournament and the previous United States entry record of 48 teams, established last year in the first annual Constitution event, was broken.

Indications are that fully 60 teams will line up Saturday afternoon and Saturday night at Blick's center in the big push for the engraved gold medals.

George Small, whose stature is like unto the characterization of Jiggs, and John Conyers, a robust gentleman, are the defending champions. And their work is really cut out. They announced upon re-entering the event that they expected to win.

BEST IN CITY.

Well, they will be firing away against the best competition the Gate City has to offer. No doubles tournament has approached the forthcoming St. Patrick's day fixture as to interest or size.

The 12 additional teams that came in yesterday to put the tournament beyond last year's record mark include G. P. Dozier Jr., and I. Ashendorf, C. L. Harris and M. Johnson, E. W. Bryan and G. E. Thierfelder, Charley Wolcott and George Harris, R. M Matson and Lucien Hope, A. C. Cooke and G. L. Bushong, M. B. Barnett and E. C. Gilmore, R. Petre and Harris Dodd, W. Mays and J Leftwich, Charley Tilman and L. (Ray) Barnes, W. P. Brock and A. L. Simmons, Lindy James and Vernon Nygard.

You may as well join the fun because there is almost certain to be some of your kinfolks taking part. There is no entry fee, only the price of the games being charged.

DUCKPIN RULES.

The championship event is being conducted under the rules of the Atlanta Duckpin Association and the only restriction is that entrants must have bowled 15 or more games in a league this season.

Those who cannot roll the five-game championship set Saturday night will be allowed the privilege of bowling Saturday afternoon. Others will bowl Saturday night, beginning at 7:30.

Entries should be made to Ed (Hothouse) Plant, the vice president, at Blick's center.

Checker Champion Gives Exhibition

Newell William Banks, of Detroit, national checker champion, last night gave a remarkable demonstration at the Elks' Club before a gallery estimated at 100.

Mr. Banks played nine boards of checkers, three boards of chess and then four boards of checkers (blindfolded) at the same time.

Grover Heaton, of Hartwell, Ga., won considerable prestige by getting a draw with Mr. Banks. The champion swept all the other matches.

Mr. Banks will make two appearances today—at 3:30 o'clock at the Cauthorn Motor Company and at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Henry Grady hotel. Chess players also are invited to these matches. Competing players are asked to bring their own boards.

KERRY PATCH.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Kerry Patch, one of the big money race horses of the past few years, was saved from death tonight as eight other horses, including Sun Patch, perished in a stable fire at Belmont Park racetrack on Long Island. Kerry Patch, a Kentucky Derby candidate last year and winner of the futurity in 1932 at 40-to-1 odds, and a brown filly were the only horses led to safety.

'Mystery Match' At Indoor Range

There will be a big "mystery match" at the indoor rifle range of the Atlanta Rifle Club, 141 1-2 Alabama street, tonight at 7:30.

Executive Officer Hal Drake is to be in charge. He has proved as uncommunicative as a clam concerning the shoot. "Come and see for yourself," is the affable Mr. Drake's attitude.

Ammunition will be for sale if one forgets to bring any along. And, too, there will be extra rifles for those not having artillery.

ROBBY HAPPY AS KEY OKAYS SUNDAY GAMES

Mayor Issues Permit to Jaycees for Baseball for Charity.

President Wilbert Robinson, of the Atlanta Crackers, sees Sunday baseball games, as authorized by Mayor Key yesterday in a permit to the Junior Chamber of Commerce to sponsor them, as a "break" for the fans.

"It is a fine thing for the public and a fine thing for charity, too, Uncle Robby stated. The Cracker president and Manager Abbott sat in the huddle with Mayor Key and a list of optional Sunday dates given Atlanta at the last schedule meeting were presented.

It was explained that proceeds of the games would go to various civic charities under the same system which Sunday movies are presented.

SUNDAY GAMES.

Sunday games given Atlanta at the New Orleans meeting with hopes that the city would get Sunday ball were:

Biirmingham, June 17.
Chattanooga, July 29.
Knoxville, June 10.
Little Rock, August 26.
Memphis, May 20.
Nashville, August 22 and September 16.
New Orleans, May 13 and September 9.

The Jay-Cees will sponsor an exhibition game to be played on April 1 between the Crackers and the Toronto club of the International league, the Red Cross will receive the proceeds. This will be the first game to be played on Sunday between professional clubs in Atlanta in many years. Last year, the Crackers sought to play Memphis a regularly scheduled Sunday game during the league season, but were enjoined from so doing.

Mayor Key, one of the city's most enthusiastic fans and a warm friend and admirer of Uncle Wilbert Robinson, yesterday addressed the following letter to President Clifford Hendrix, of the Junior Chamber of Commerce:

MAYOR'S LETTER.

"Mr. Clifford Hendrix, president,
"Junior Chamber of Commerce,
"City.

"Dear Sir:

"I am very happy to learn that you and the Junior Chamber of Commerce have agreed to conduct the regular league baseball games here on Sundays during the next year for the benefit of certain charities of the town whom you have selected.

"I am very glad for two reasons: First, that these charities will receive this benefit they so greatly need; second, that the people of this town will be given this opportunity to see clean, wholesome baseball sports on Sunday afternoon.

"As mayor of this city, I cheerfully subscribe to this program, and it has my hearty indorsement, and this is your permit to conduct these games during the season.

"Sincerely,
"JAMES L. KEY, Mayor."

Casey To Join Squad Today.

Hugh Casey, young Cracker pitcher who hopes to win 20 ball games in the Southern league this season, said last night that he would leave early this morning for the training camp at Macon.

Casey has been suffering from a cold, but said he would join the squad nevertheless. Last year, he pitched for Charlotte in the Piedmont league, winning 19 games and striking out 187 batters. The first Cracker party, which left yesterday, consisted of Manager Spence Abbott, Business Manager Earl Mann and Players Chatham and Neisler. The two players went down by bus. Joe Palmisano, catcher, is expected to join the squad today.

The Crackers will start practice today at 11 a. m. It will be the first of a series of practices that will last two weeks in the Central City. The entire squad will be on the scene by March 22.

President Wilbert Robinson will drive to Macon Sunday to be with the squad awhile. No further news has been heard on plans to dispose of Eddie Phillips, veteran catcher of last year's club.

Miss Waring Wins At Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 14.—(AP)—Helen Waring, Pinehurst links veteran, today continued the pace she set in the first day of play, carded a 165 for the 36-hole tournament, and won the sixth annual women's mid-south golf tournament.

Close behind her came the two players who ran her the closest race throughout the tournament. They were Charlotte Glutting, of East Orange, N. J., semi-finalist in the 1933 national, who shot 169, and Jane Douglas, of Beverly Hills, Cal., with 170.

Others who finished in the van of the original starting field of 68 were: Mrs. James J. Lawler, New Rochelle, N. Y., 174; Mrs. Marvin J. Haynes, Washington, 176; Miss Estelle Lawson, Chapel Hill, N. C., 177; Jean Bauer, Providence, R. I., and Marion Miley, Lexington, Ky., 178, and Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth, Pittsburgh, 180.

Glaser Is Victor In Billiard Play

Glaser defeated Skelton last night in one of the outstanding games of a series being played at the Crescent Recreation Academy for the city pocket billiard championship. The final score was 100 to 85. Both men played a very close game. Skelton had high run of 26 balls.

Probably the largest crowd of the tournament so far attended the match, with quite a number of ladies present.

In the afternoon game Chambers won over Spencer, 100 to 92. Chambers obtained a good lead from the start and played well to the finish.

Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock Bassett will play Glaser with Cox vs. Hughes in the night game.

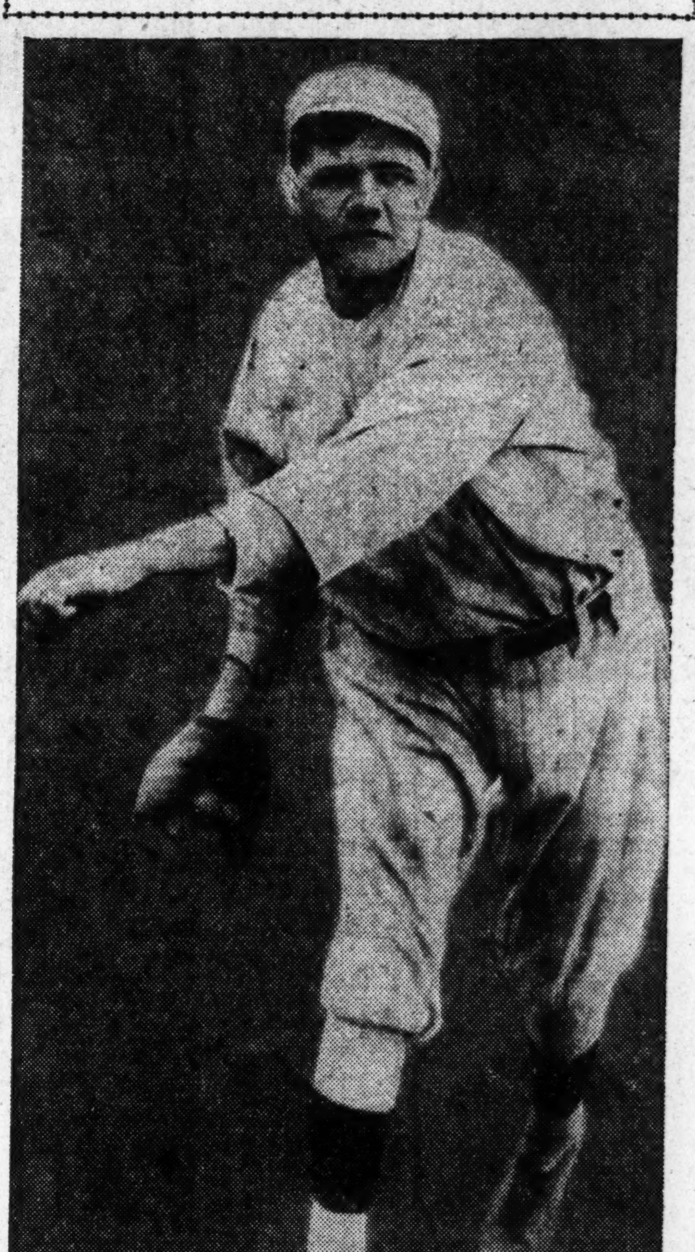
Records 'Lose' Game; Newsome Is Peeved

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14.—Buck Newsome, the St. Louis Browns' big speedball pitcher from Los Angeles, was all out of humor today. He discovered the Browns' official roster lists him as winning 30 games last yaer.

"All wrong," he fumed to Manager Rogers Hornsby. "I won 31 and I'd have made it 40, if I hadn't hurt my thumb and had to sit on the bench for a while."

THE SPORT PARADE

When Big Babe Was the Game's Best Pitcher.



Babe Ruth, the immortal Bambino, earned most of his fame as the greatest home run hitter baseball ever knew. How many know that in addition he holds the highest pitching average ever made over a span that ran five years or longer? Starting his big league career with the Boston Red Sox in 1914, the left arm of George Herman Ruth won 86 games and lost only 39 from 1914 through 1919 in Boston. Later with the Yankees he pitched four more victories in 1920, 1921, 1930 and 1933 for an all-time pitching record of 91 victories against 39 defeats—grand average .700. Not even Matty, Alexander or Cy Young reached this mark. (International News Photo.) Copyright, 1934, by Grantland Rice.

Londos Retains Title In Fast Match Here

"Thees Jeem" Is Master of Old Against Zaharias; Kirilenko, Roche Draw.

The world's mat title rested securely on the tousled locks of "Thees Jeem" Londos at the conclusion of more than an hour's furious wrestling last night at the auditorium.

George Zaharias, another Greek, was the victim. And more than 5,000 grappling fans squirmed and wrestled in their seats as the fast match went on.

Zaharias won a fall with a series of splits. He lost the first one after a series of front headlocks and body slams. Londos won the final fall, slipping out of a series of body blocks to get Zaharias in a back drop. The big fellow from Pueblo broke three of them but three body slams in succession did him in.

LONDOS GREAT.

Londos did not seem to have slipped a bit. He used his weight unusually well. For a relatively small man he makes his weight count for more than would be expected. He had his 200 pounds on Zaharias all evening. Or most of it.

His defensive against Zaharias' attempts to obtain another split was very good.

It was a great match with Charley Rentrop, veteran referee and official, as the third man in the ring. Rentrop, who was once a first-rate heavyweight, is an expert official. Commission officials and fans applauded his work. He was named for the match when Jim Londons' manager insisted on a change in referees from the one who officiated in their previous meeting.

GOVERNOR THERE.

Governor Eugene Talmadge was on hand. He is a Zaharias fan and was hoping to see him win. He cautioned Zaharias before the match against losing his, Zaharias' head.

Londos remained the most skillful and expert wrestler to appear here. He is really a marvelous athlete.

Roche and Kirilenko are both great favorites here. Roche, who has wrestled in the west and east, is the finest of the newcomers to show here.

Fonseca Is Devoting Attention to Lyons

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—Manager Lew Fonseca, of the Chicago White Sox, is giving as much attention to a veteran, Ted Lyons, as to any of his younger pitchers.

Lyons, bothered by a sore arm for the past two seasons, says he is ready for another big year.

Baseball Leagues Will Meet Tonight

All commercial baseball teams are asked to meet again at Trammell Scott's store, 66 North Broad street, tonight at 7:30 o'clock. The City league will have another meeting of managers, and the Atlanta league will organize at this time. One more team is needed to complete the Atlanta league.

EQUIPOISE RUNS FOR NEW MARK

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Equipoise is rounding into shape rapidly for his final assault on Sun Beau's world's money winning record. If all goes well in training he will make his first major start in the $7,500 Philadelphia handicap at Havre de Grace, Md., April 21.

From Trainer Thomas J. Healey, at Lexington, Ky., where the 6-year-old C. V. Whitney ace is wintering, comes word that "Ekky" will be shipped to Havre de Grace and then to New York for the rich Belmont Park meeting.

"The date of Equipoise's return to the races this year depends on the kind of training weather we enjoy here," said Healey in a message to the Associated Press. At the Maryland meeting, which opens April 16, Healey hopes to give the son of Pennant a sprint trial before the Philadelphia. Equipoise won the race last year, carrying 128 pounds to a new track record of 1:44 3-5 for the mile and one-sixteenth.

Holder of the world's record of 1:34 2-5 for the mile, Equipoise went into what was announced as permanent retirement last fall after boosting his total earnings for four years to $322,970, only $53,774 short of the mark compiled by W. S. Kilmer's Sun Beau.

Whitney and his famous trainer reconsidered their action during the winter.

Southern Zone Dates Approved

Approval of the dates for the southern zone trapshoot was received yesterday from the Amateur Trapshooting Association by Jack Tway, secretary of the Capitol Gun Club.

The shoot, which will attract leading trap stars from 16 states, is to be held at the Capitol May 23-24-25.

LUTHER THOMAS SIGNS PAPERS; REPORTS SOON

Thirteen Crackers Ready To Start Drills Under Abbott.

MACON, Ga., March 14.—Thirteen Crackers and their boss, Manager Spencer Abbott, were in camp tonight impatiently awaiting the official opening of the training season tomorrow.

Manager Abbott tonight divided his time between greeting his aspirants and observing weather conditions as the thermometer began to slide.

The first practice session will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning unless the temperature, which began to fall sharply late this afternoon, descends so much as to make limbering up of pitching arms hazardous.

11 UNTIL 2.

Manager Abbott posted notice tonight that all players will be awakened at 8:30 o'clock each morning, and that daily training drills will be from 11 until 2 o'clock in the afternoon for the time being.

The big announcement of the day was from Business Manager Earl Mann, who accompanied Manager Abbott to Macon. Mann brought the glad tidings that Luther Thomas, the promising pitcher from Albany, had signed his contract and was expected in camp in a few days.

There were eight hurlers in camp tonight, Frank Barnes, Rufus Meadows, F. E. Nix, Art Jacobs, Jake Baker, Almon Williams, A. E. Smithwick and Carlos Moore.

Bob Weaver, Bill Casey and Fred Neisler were the catchers to report on opening day.

SHEERIN, CHATHAM.

Infielders Charlie Sheerin and Buster Chatham were the players to complete the roster of 13 to check in.

Immediately after their arrival this afternoon, Manager Abbott and Mann visited the new, modern baseball plant here and gave it their enthusiastic approval.

"My gosh," said Abbott, "this is the biggest baseball park I've even seen. You couldn't shoot one out of here with a gun."

The practice for the first few days will consist mainly of loosening stiffened arms and throwing the ball about.

L. E. GRANT WINS TROPHY SHOOT

Apparently he waited until the going got really tough before he decided to step out and show the boys a thing or two about this skeet shooting pastime.

At any rate L. E. Grant, a fine sportsman, won his first trophy at the Capitol Gun Club yesterday afternoon. The wind blew in gusts and the cold, cold wind bit at the sportsmen's ribs. But Grant went around resolutely in a spectacular fashion. With handicap added, he had a score of 50x50.

Clyde King Jr. was another of the day's stars. He broke his first straight at 25 targets in the wind and the cold. It was a great performance.

King and Bill Healey were second in the silver sherbet shoot with 47x50. King won in the shootoff when he achieved the straight.

Jack Tway had 45x50 and J. K. Orr broke 42x50.

In practice shooting on the skeet traps, Orr, Grant and Tway broke 24x25.

Eighteen Barons Drill Under Milan

The list included all except two of those who were ordered to report today, and a number of others who wanted to get an early start.

Milan had ordered only his pitchers and catchers to report today, with the rest of his squad to answer the roll call Monday.

Henry Shoaf, veteran pitcher, and a rookie named Wright, were the only absentees and they were expected within a day or so.

Emory Freshmen Win Cage Title

A last-half rally led by Manuel Kulbersh gave the Freshmen a 34-32 victory over the Lawyers and the intramural basketball championship in a playoff game Wednesday night on the Emory court.

The Lawyers were leading 19-13 at the end of the first half. Kulbersh dropped in three fields goals in quick succession to tie the score at 19-19. The Freshmen took the lead on a fine throw and were never headed.

Forty Atlanta Tennis Players Invited

ONLY 25 STARS TO BE NAMED BY COMMITTEE

Constitution Is Selected To Extend Invitation to Local Netmen.

By Jack Troy.

This is the official invitation to some 40 Atlanta tennis players to enter their names for the Biltmore invitation tournament, to be played March 26. There will be no written invitations.

The players herein invited who wish to participate in the tournament are asked to reply at once to Bryan Grant or Malon Courts.

Of the following players about 25 will be permitted to play. A committee will decide who will play, Grant said yesterday.

PLAYERS INVITED.

The players invited include Billy Reese, Malon Courts, Jack Simpson, Harry Gault, Kels Boland, Molly Williamson, Reg Fleet, Joe Boland, Lem Bracewell, Milo Potucek, Malcom Manley, Russell Bobbitt, Lindsay Hopkins, Britt Knox, Zack Carnes, Count Boyer, Allison Adams, John Oliver, Howard Moss, Arthur Potter, Doc Wilson, Marion Reese, Dick Courts, Dr. Ralph Aiken, Francis Brannon and Paul Houghton. Also all members of the Georgia Tech and Emory tennis teams.

The select Atlanta field, headed by Bryan Grant, will face at least three of the leading tennis stars of the country.

There will be Frank Shields, No. 1 ranking star, whom Grant defeated at Miami; Lester Stoefen, No. 3 ranking player, to whom Grant lost at Bermuda, and George Lott, tenth ranking star nationally, who beat Grant in the Miami tourney.

GALA OPENING.

It will be a gala opening of the Atlanta tennis season and Grant's next chance to renew his rivalry with the giant Stoefen. The Atlanta star almost overcame the Californian at Bermuda. But rain interfered with his chances.

Grant also will have a chance to get even with George Lott, who maintains he should be ranked higher than Grant nationally .

Twenty-eight other leading amateur stars have been invited for the tournament, which will precede the invitation event at Houston, Texas.

SMITHIES BEAT TECH SWIMMERS

Tech High's swimming team won its second straight meet of the year in an exhibition with the Georgia Tech freshmen Wednesday afternoon in the Y. M. C. A. pool. The score was 38 to 36. The Smithies won from the Emory freshmen some time ago at Emory.

The Smithies placed first in the 160-yard relay, the 40-yard free swim, the 200-yard free swim, the 100-yard free swim and the diving. Tech won the medley relay, the 100-yard breast stroke and the 100-yard back stroke.

Thorne gave Tech High two first places in winning both the 40 and 200-yard free style swims.

The results:

100-Yard Breast—Hart, Tech; Anderson, Tech, and Davis, T. H. S. Time, 1:19.

Leading Netmen Enter Semi-Finals

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Four of this country's most distinguished racqueteers—Frank Shields, Gregory Mangin, Lester Stoefen and Sidney B. Wood Jr.—today gained the semi-final round of the men's national indoor tennis championships.

Tomorrow Mangin, who is seeking his third successive title, will oppose Wood, and Shields will engage Stoefen for the honor of fighting it out for the championship on Saturday.

Rated off today's play, Mangin and Stoefen must be given the call. Seldom in the long history of the tournament have the old seventh regiment boards taken such a beating as they did today from the terrific cannonading of the stocky New Jersey boy and the giant Californian.

In licking Andre Merlin, French indoor titlist, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, Mangin displayed a skill at volleying that was breath-taking. Almost as sensational was the merciless forehand fire laid down by Stoefen in blasting George Lott, 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

Wood was impressive in turning back Borotra's conqueror, Frank Bowden, 6-3, 12-10, 6-3, and so was Shields as he laced Dr. Eugene McCauliff, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3. But neither of them showed the brilliance of Stoefen and Mangin.

Buresch and Smith At Heights Tonight

On the main event at the Lakewood Heights arena tonight Promoter Frank Bettis has Stanley Buersch, the Australian Kangaroo Kicker, matched against Bull Smith, Hungarian. These two men have never met before, and fans may expect quite a bit of kangaroo kicking from Buersch. This will be a 60-minute match.

The semi-final brings together Eddie Wagner, former navy champion, who challenged Whittie Patterson to a finish match at this arena for Thursday night. This is a grudge affair and it will be a winner-take-all.

Bill Ward, the fast wrestler who has many victories under his belt, will wrestle a formidable opponent, Young Londos, in the opening match. These two men are very skillful and the fans may expect plenty of action in this match.

Promoter Frank Bettis wishes to announce that he will referee all of these matches.

Pitching Staff Only Problem Facing Connie

By Alan Gould.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Perish the thought that there is melancholy in the mind of Connie Mack, or tears in his eyes over the breaking up of his second and perhaps last great championship ball club. At 72, after more than a half a century devoted to the national game, the tall, thin master of the Athletics has banished all regrets in his earnest, keen-eyed enthusiasm for a fresh job of reconstruction.

For one thing, the elderly leader is free for the time being from financial worries that have weighed heavily upon him and his associates for the past few years. For the second time in his career Mack has known the bitter experience of losing money with a championship club. Consequently, the sale of his greatest stars within the past two years, while wrecking his own pennant chances and making contenders out of three rival clubs this season, nevertheless has lifted a heavy payroll burden from the Athletics and brightened the club's hopes of capitalizing on Sunday baseball at home for the first time.

MACK CONFIDENT.

For another thing, Mack feels confident that except for an absolute gamble on his pitching staff he has a first-class ball club this year, one whose speed and batting power, featuring the great Jimmie Foxx, will make it troublesome for all rivals. The main survivor of the 1929-131 champions, Foxx, is a power house all by himself as the American league's leading batsman, home run slugger and run producer. At about $18,000, the Maryland mauler is now the only player on the club whose salary runs into five figures and he had to wage a brisk debate with Mack to get that much.

Mack's infield worries will be removed as soon as Frank Higgins, the last holdout, reports. Eric McNair is a great young shortstop and Dib Williams has replaced Max (Eagle Eye) Bishop at second. They all pack a real batting wallop, along with the rangy outfield trio of Bob Johnson, Roger Cramer and Ed Coleman.

The task of replacing the irreplacables, Lefty Grove and Mickey Cochrane, is something else. It only emphasizes the gap left by this great battery to say that Mack is hopefully inspecting a group of young pitchers named Cascarella, Dietrich, McKeithan, Benton, Kennedy and Matuzak or relying on Charley Berry and Ed Madjeski to do the back stopping. It is extremely doubtful if all six of the ambitious young moundsmen named could combine to duplicate the work of Grove last year, when he won 24 games and saved at least 10 more.

YOUTHS PROMISING.

In short, there are no substitutes for players like Grove and Cochrane, the best proof of which is the fact that on the strength of having one of them apiece, the Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers have been babbling about their pennant chances.

"Some of my young pitchers are real promising," says Mack, "but I could not even give you a guess as to what they might do."

That just about sums it up. In Merrit (Sugar) Cain and Roy Mahaffey, Mack has only two seasoned flingers in a group consisting exclusively of right-handers. Consequently there is not even a potential Grove. The old master fancies John Marcum, fast-ball product of the American association who registered two shutouts in his 1933 major league debut. Harry Matuzak, apparently the best of a trio bought from Oklahoma City; Joe Cascarella, from Jersey City, and Tim McKeithan, a former collegian, so far have won Mack's approval but the future of all, under fire, is highly speculative.

The A's are shy anything resembling a seasoned relief pitcher. In fact Mack probably could use several experienced rescue artists. As it is, he may have to work his young pitching staff in relays when the season opens, just as he is doing now in training camp. The rest of the club's reserve strength also is limited. Rabbit Warstler and George Detore are the only infield reserves.

Although Lou Finney can substitute at first base as well as in the outfield. The veteran coach, Bing Miller, is available for pinch-hitting duty. Ray Radcliffe, obtained from St. Paul, also may be carried for outfield reserve duty.

Winn and Lassiter Will Meet Again

Rivalry between Hugh Winn, Georgia, and southern titleholder in the light-heavyweight class, and Freddie Lassiter, Ohio light-heavyweight champion, will come to a climax Monday night, March 19, in the Fair Street indoor arena at Fair street and Capital avenue.

The clamor for a return match between these two has been strong, and Matchmaker Jason Thompson has succeeded in getting them to agree on the terms. Several weeks ago, Lassiter put Bill Crussell out of the running temporarily in a rough scrap, and Winn stepped back into the picture as champion.

Terms on which the two have agreed to meet therefore have included the selection of a new referee, who will be announced later. There will be no time limit, and no holds will be barred. The winner will receive all the money. Mutual charges that the other fellow didn't intend to appear have been settled by both Winn and Lassiter posting $200 cash bond with the boxing and wrestling commission.

Down the Alleys

Mrs. Lindy James, of the Gold Diggers team in the Southern Railway Ladies' Bowling league, burned up the wood on the maple lanes at Blick's Bowling Center Wednesday evening with a 300 series, and was largely responsible for the three-game win of her team over the Gigolettes.

Miss Gertrude Whitney and Mrs. Blum had games of 102 and 108, respectively, as their team, Hoboes, won the second game from the Tramps, in the same league.

The Power Club mixed doubles sweepstakes will be a special attraction at the bowling alleys tonight. The event is scheduled to get under way at 7:30 o'clock and three games will be bowled.

Handicaps assure every pair of players an equal chance at the prize awards, which will be cash.

BERGER LOSES $250 EACH DAY HE STAYS OUT

Fuchs Ultimatum to Star Goes Into Effect on Friday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Emil Fuchs, Boston Braves president, today notified the slugging Wally Berger, now sulking over his 1934 salary terms in Miami, that he would be fined $250 for every day's training he misses after Friday.

The tribal "prexy" wired that threat to Berger today and demanded an immediate answer, which was not forthcoming.

"I gave Berger a $2,500 increase," Fuchs blustered. "He'll take it or leave it. And he's been informed that if he doesn't show up here by Friday, each day's absence thereafter will cost him $250. And I won't give it back to him either."

Ted Kleinhans Gives Up Homer.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 14. (AP)—Those Phillies yannigans served notice on the regulars today that they are by no means to be taken lightly.

In fact, until the last of the first practice game's six innings, the Yans were out in front of their first-string rivals. Then Left Fielder Ethan Allen, in the closing session, hammered one of Ted Kleinhans' slants to right-center field for a four-bagger to tie the score at five-all.

The game was a mere workout, with scoring frequent and errors plentiful. However, Curt Davis and Kleinhans, for the Yannigans, and John Kerdock and John Krider, for the regulars, gave good pitching performances.

Buck Newsom Has Tough Time.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—"Buck" Newsom, fireball king from the coast, is the first casualty of the Browns' 1934 training season.

He was fielding a ball in a pepper game yesterday when he stepped in a hole and fell against the grandstand. The club physician gave his right arm a little attention. He went out and got mixed up in another pepper game and was hit by a batted ball on the same arm. This sent him to the clubhouse for a time.

Johnson To Test Recruit Pitchers.

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—(AP) Manager Walter Johnson is all set to find out what his recruit pitchers have got on the ball.

Thornton Lee, Dennis Galehouse and Forest Twogood have been awarded the distinction of pitching in Cleveland's first exhibition game against the New Orleans Pelicans here Saturday. Just two weeks later the Indians open a 14-game series with the New York Giants. Johnson expects to build up a pitching quartet for the series out of Monte Pearson, Oral Hildebrand, Mel Harder, Clint Brown and the recruits.

Red Holdouts Dwindle to Two.

TAMPA, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—Holdouts of the Cincinnuati Reds dwindled from three to two day, as Ray Kolp, pitcher, signed his contract for 1934. Si Johnson and Joe Morrissey still are outside the fold.

Redland hopes shot upward meanwhile as Chick Hafey reported, 15 pounds heavier than he has been in two years, and promptly, in batting practice, slammed a couple to the fence.

Washington Vets Work Cautiously.

BILOXI, Miss., March 14.—(AP)—The veterans of Washington's pitching staff, Al Thomas and Bob Burke, are training cautiously.

They want to avoid the sore arms that handicapped them and their club last season. Together they won 11 out of 21 games in the 1933 campaign, which wasn't impressive with a championship outfit.

White Sox Rally But Lose to Angels.

LOS ANGELES, March 14.—(AP)—Held scoreless for eight innings, the Chicago White Sox put across two runs in the ninth with the aid of a home run by Milton Bocek but dropped an exhibition contest today to the Los Angeles baseball club, 10 to 2.

The Angels went wild in the third inning, scoring seven runs.

The score:

White Sox ....000 000 002— 2 5 4
Gregory, Tietze, Stine and Pasek, Shea; Lightfoot, McDougall, Prince and Campbell.

'Flea' Clifton Gets Chance at Last.

LAKELAND, Fla., March 14.—(AP) Herman (Flea) Clifton, who has been trying to make the grade in the majors for two years, has landed at last, and will appear in Navin field with the Detroit Tigers this season, either as a regular or utility infielder.

Clifton has made a very good impression here in the training camp, both in hitting and fielding, and will be used in the season at either second or third.

Dodger Regulars Get Serious, Win.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 14.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' regulars decided to play a little serious baseball about the sixth inning of today's practice game after they had taken a pasting from the scrubs yesterday and were trailing 1-0. So they promptly pasted Rookie Bob Edwards for five hits and enough runs to win 4 to 1. Jimmy Jordan, Johnny Frederick and Joe Stripp contributed a three-bagger apiece to the rally.

Grove Uses Zip In Mound Practice.

SARASOTA, Fla., March 14.—(AP) Feeling in fine fettle, Bob ((Lefty)) Grove used all of his southpaw zip today when he took a half-hour turn on the mound for batting practice. None of his Boston Red Sox mates were able to take a clean wallop at his smoky offerings.

All of the Red Sox pitching staff, with the exception of Right-hander Henry Johnson, whose kinky arm is causing Manager Bucky Harris much concern, went into action.

FAMOUS GEORGIA ATHLETES
TODAY and YESTERDAY
By Jimmy Jones

Nolen Richardson—Toronto Shortstop.

RICHARDSON.

One of the best all-around athletes ever developed in the city of Atlanta was Nolen Richardson, of Tech High school, now playing professional baseball as a member of the Toronto club of the International league.

Richardson, who afterward entered the University of Georgia at Athens to become a basketball and baseball star there, held a most unique record his last year at Tech High.

He captained the teams in all three sports in which he participated—football, basketball and baseball.

At Georgia, he did not play football, but as a basketball player under Coach H. J. Stegeman and a shortstop on Bill White's baseball team, continued his brilliant play that marked his high school career.

GREAT IN COLLEGE.

While a very fine forward on the basketball team and a very good high school end as a football player, Richardson probably reached greatest renown as a baseball player in college. He was generally conceded to be the best college shortstop in the south at Georgia, Bob Reeves, of Tech, and other good ones not excepted.

At Georgia in 1926, he captained both the basketball and baseball varsities. He had another unusual record in that he never missed a game in either his high school or college career. Nolen Richardson was a very durable athlete and was always a remarkable fielder at the shortstop position, which he always played until he entered professional ball.

He played through an entire season at Tech High school without an error.

Upon leaving college Richardson went with the Detroit club. In fact, the Tiger scouts had had their eyes on him even while he was playing in high school, but fortunately for Georgia, he was left alone until he had played out his allotted time.

Detroit sent Richardson to Fort Worth in 1927, where he was shifted to third base. He never liked the position as well as playing short, but said nothing in his own quiet way and went about learning to play third as well as he could.

FIELDED WELL.

He fielded very well and hit over .300 his first year in the Texas league. He was with Fort Worth two seasons —1927 and 1928—before being called to Detroit for a trial in the big leagues. He started the '29 season with the Tigers, fielded faultlessly but was a little light with the stick against the big league curvers. He was sent to Toronto, a Detroit "farm" for many years, to finish out the season.

Richardson's playing with Toronto was brilliant. He hit .320 there in 1930 an led the league in fielding.

For the next couple of years, the Georgian spent considerable time commuting between Detroit and Toronto. He continued to field brilliantly, however, and was good enough to play in 70 games at third with the Tigers in 1932. He made only two errors and would have led the American league in fielding but for the fact that Jimmy Dykes, of the Athletics, had played in a great many more games. Richardson's average was two points higher than that of Dykes, however.

VALUABLE PLAYER.

Bucky Harris, the Detroit manager, used Richardson often to play third in the tight spots. In other words, he would take the regular third baseman out for a pinch batter in the latter innings and if Detroit tied the score or went ahead, Richardson would go in to play third because of his accuracy on fielding and throwing.

"Talking about playing under a strain, that was it, scooping up those hard-hit balls with men on bases and your team holding a one-run lead," Nolen said once. In one inning he fielded three hard balls in succession to retire the side.

Richardson batted .270 for Detroit. If he could have hit a little more he would be with that club now, for they were shy of a third baseman for several years. But Detroit sent the Atlantan back to Toronto, where he has played good ball since. He has led the International league in fielding for three seasons, including 1930.

This year Richardson will play shortstop, his old position, and hopes to get back to the big leagues. He is only 29 years old and he is very happy to be able to play under Ike Boone, the old University of Alabama star and noted minor league slugger, who has been named the Toronto manager. Boone has told him that he will play short.

REPORTS SOON.

Richardson will report with the Maple Leafs, who will train at Augusta this year, on March 20. He will come here with the team on April 1 for two exhibitions with the Crackers.

Nolen is one of the most popular clean-cut young men in the history of Atlanta sports and has a great many friends here. He is married and has a young son of two and one-half years. He was employed during the winter by Rich's, Inc., and also played a little basketball with the Atlanta pro team as long as it lasted. He always kept in perfect shape as an athlete, during off season and on.

In all his baseball career, which extends quite a way back, including his high school and college and minor league days, Nolen Richardson was put out of only one ball game—that of 1926 with Tech, in Atlanta. But the rivalry was hot in those days and Richardson was captain of the Georgia club. Remember that it was Doug Wykoff's sensational hitting that won that series for Tech.

Bill White, the veteran coach, sent a number of players into professional ball while at Georgia. There were Spurgeon Chandler, Shaky Kain, Andy Chambers and Fred Sale, pitchers; Chick Shivers, Scrappy Moore and Buster Mott, outfielders; J. D. Thomason, first baseman, who played with Columbus a while, and several others. But Nolen Richardson remains the only Georgia infielder of recent years to reach the big leagues.

FIVE U. S. HORSES IN AINTREE RACE

LONDON, March 14.—(AP)—Only five American horses were left among the 34 posted today in the final acceptances for the Grand National steeplechasing classic at Aintree March 23.

J. Metcalf's Theras and Patron Saint were added to those previously scratched, leaving only John Hay (Jock) Whitney's Thomond II and Lone Eagle, F. Ambrose Clark's Sorley Boy, J. R. Snow's Delaneige and M. D. Blair's Prince Cherry.

Of the American survivors Delaneige and Thomond II are the most fancied in the betting, being third choices at 18 to 1.

Sorley Boy was held at 20 to 1 in the last callover of odds. You could name your own price on Lon Eagle and Prince Cherry.

Heading the list of final acceptances is Dorothy Paget's Golden Miller, favorite at odds of 100 to 9.

Also named for the blue ribbon jumping test were Mrs. M. A. Gemmell's Gregalach, the 1929 winner; W. Parsonage's Forbra, which galloped home in front in 1932 at the juicy odds of 50 to 1; Major Noel Furlong's lightly-weighted Really True and second choice at 100 to 8; Trocadero and Southern Hero, bracketed with Sorley Boy in the betting.

The number of American-owned entrants is the smallest in years. Ten were named in the final acceptances last year.

By ELY CULBERTSON
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Making the Best of a Bad Situation.

No player is particularly pleased when he must play a hand at five of a major suit. While this contract is often reached by entirely correct bidding in which a Slam try is made and refused, the Declarer who is faced with the necessity of taking eleven tricks when ten tricks would have been sufficient to secure a game is always fearful that some particularly unfavorable distribution will defeat his contract one trick, whereas a game could have been made had the bidding stopped at the safe level of four. Even though the bidding was unexceptionable, the Declarer usually regrets the one extra trick of the contract.

Today's hand, which was played by Mr. George T. Spillman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., in a duplicate game, in spite of the precarious contract and very good defense, resulted in declarer's tying for top-score on the board.

			Pass
1♡	2♣	2◇	2♠
4♡	Pass	5♡(1)	Pass
Pass(2)	Pass

1—After North's jump to four hearts, South, with three honor-tricks, including the kind of his partner's suit, cannot be severely criticized for trying for a slam.

2—Mr. Spillman quite properly decides not to heed his partner's slam try, respecting the fact that both opponents have entered the bidding.

East's opening lead was the spade 6. West won with the spade Ten and returned the seven of clubs, which the declarer quite properly ducked, East winning with the queen. Another spade was returned and ruffed by North. The trumps were then all played out, the ace, king and nine of diamonds being carefully retained in dummy, and the last trump lead squeezed East, who gave up his last guard to the club king. Mr. Spillman now played out his ace of clubs, dropping the king, and won the last three tricks with the four of clubs and the ace-king of diamonds.

A diamond opening, and a diamond return after West wins with the spade ace, is the only defense that can defeat five hearts, but East's opening cannot be criticized. According to Mr. Spillman, he merely obtained a four-way tie for top on the board since three other players playing the hand at four hearts received as an opening lead the club king, which enabled the declarer to make five quite easily.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

With the opening lead of the heart knave, how can South fulfill his contract of four spades on the hand below?

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

Only rarely do I burden other people with my troubles but I am asking your help to get rid of my worst enemy—sensitiveness. I have reached the point where my failure to solve the riddle of a happy life with understanding friends is making me lose every shred of self-confidence. I am not able to maintain that closeness in friendship that is so desirable. Even when I am with people I am so lonely that I can hardly keep back the tears. Living away from home increases that sense of loneliness. I have honestly tried to adjust myself to people and to circumstances and my failure frightens me. I don't blame the other fellow for this. I am not a coward. My friends would, no doubt, be surprised to know how unhappy I am. Sincerely I beg you to help me. I am 23 years old.

A STRUGGLER.

ANSWER:

It is possible that there is some physical basis for your sense of failure. Go to a physician, preferably a psychiatrist, and talk out your deep thoughts as you cannot do in a short letter. The expert will ask you leading questions that may develop ideas only partially formulated in your own mind, questions that will help to clarify your thoughts about many matters. He, or she, will make recommendations to you from the scientific point of view.

In the meantime, there are some common sense devices which you may employ to divert your mind and fill your empty life. Engage in some sort of sport, if only walking. This will induce physical weariness which is always a good antidote for worry. When you are tired a hot bath and a good bed will make you forget everything but bodily pain.

A famous metropolitan store is, at the moment, having an exhibition of leisure time pursuits, in common parlance—hobbies. This is an effort of business to capitalize on the new leisure that shortened working hours have given the American people. More than 50 hobbies are represented in the exhibit and experts in each line are lecturing to the crowds that attend. If you are so sensitive that you cannot enjoy association with people you should choose a hobby and pursue it energetically.

There is cllecting, not only a hobby for the rich and well-to-do but a hobby for the poor as well, collecting anything ffrom Indian arrowheads to rare antiques. There is building, anything from an airplane model to miniature furniture. There is needlework, with an endless opportunity for diversion and possibility for making it pay. There are scientific, artistic, literary hobbies any one of whch will fill emptiness and solace loneliness.

If you cannot enjoy association with people because of excessive sensitiveness and sense of frustration, then you should substitute things until you have dulled the keen edge of your disappointment in people. You must find some method of forgetting yourself or go crazy mulling over your situation.

You are doing, my dear young lady, what most of us do at some time in life and what many of us do throughout life—putting too high a premium upon your age. The only cure for this weakness is to force yourself to find outside yourself some absorbing interest. Young, college-bred, financially independent, or at least self-supporting, you might conceivably find that interest in seeking out the needy instead of dwelling on your own need. One of the strange paradoxes in life is that only as we empty ourselves in the interest of others do we find the fullness that we yearn for. This is one of the chief tenets of every worth-while religion. It is a theme that is harped on by psychologists and sociologists as well as religionists.

Lastly, buy the best clothes you can afford, groom yourself carefully. To be conscious that she looks her best has a stimulating effect on a woman's spirit. A new dress will dissipate the blues and a wash and a wave and a manicure have a magical effect on a maiden's mind.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

by Whitner Cary

The women's pair championship, the opening event in the Georgia state bridge championship got off to an auspicious start Wednesday afternoon in the ballroom of the Piedmont Driving Club.

No less than 48 feminine stars answered the call for fame, glory and the handsome Annie Adair Foster memorial bowl that goes to the winning pair for one year. The first session saw the Mitchell movement employed with each pair playing 22 boards. Thursday afternoon, which will see the final session in this event played, the field will be split into two sections of Howell play. The total points made in the two sessions will determine the winners.

As those lines are typed the official scores made during the first session have not been announced.

Several extremely interesting hands were played during the afternoon session but probably the one which produced the greatest thrill and resulted in more varied scores was the following apparent rock crusher:

North.
S—2
H—5
D—A K Q J 7 2
C—A K J 10 9

West
S—9 6

South.

Both sides vulnerable and south the dealer.

Although the honor count in various suits looks tempting the hand is such a misfit at a suit that the best result is notrump. Two pairs, Mrs. Humphrey Wagar and Mrs. William K. Barrett and Mrs. Howard Muse and Mrs. George Street were the only ones to reach and make a grand slam at notrump. Mrs. Wagar, playing the north hand, was fortunate enough to get a double and therefore beat the Muse-Street combination one point on the board. The bidding at Mrs. Wagar's table was as follows:

Mrs. Barrett, sitting south, dealt and opened with two spades. Mrs. Wagar answered with three diamonds to which Mrs. Barrett replied with three hearts. Believing from her distribution and the bidding that the hand was a misfit and that the future lay in notrumps, Mrs. Wagar then bounced into seven notrumps which was doubled. She gave the hand a fine play and deserved to win a well-deserved top.

The opening lead was the heart jack. This was taken in the dummy with the king. The club seven was led and the ten finessed. When this held Mrs. Wagar led four rounds of diamonds. This suit failed to break. The ace and king of clubs was then led and East was hopelessly squeezed, being forced to either unguard the spade jack or the heart ten. Whichever was done made no difference as Mrs. Wagar had the spade deuce to led to dummy's hand.

The first session of the mixed pair is about to begin. The second session in this event will be played Thursday night. At the present time it looks as if about ten tables will go to the post in this event.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

VISITS IN STARLAND.
IV—Meteors.

How would you like to be standing in a barn when a meteor came sizzling down, right through the roof?

That happened, years ago, to William Gaffney, a Wisconsin farmer. Late on a June afternoon, he was working in the barnyard of his farm when he heard a rumbling noise which sounded like thunder. Then he did what proved to be just the wrong thing from the safety point of view —he stepped into the barn and stood there. Hardly an instant after he got inside there was a loud report, "like the firing of a cannon," and a stonelike object came through the roof.

By good fortune, it struck the floor of the barn several feet from where Mr. Gaffney stood. He went to the spot and found that it had gone down nine inches into the hard-packed clay. When he dug it out, he found that it was too hot to hold in his hands, and it remained warm for more than two hours.

The stonelike object was a small meteor cinder, or part of such a cinder. Perhaps the explosion—which was heard at a distance of three miles from the farmer's barn—blew a much larger cinder into bits; but, if so, this was the only piece found. It weighed barely two pounds, but it tore through shingles and a one-inch board in the roof, then through a plank in the hayloft, before it struck the floor.

It happens now and then, though not often, that a person is close to a falling meteor; but more often meteors fall where they are not seen until later. There is hardly a section of the earth from which meteor cinders have not been reported.

During visits to New York city, I have seen a large meteorite in the American museum which was brought from Greenland. It weighs 35 1-2 tons. The British museum in London contains hundreds of meteor cinders.

In Arabia people look upon the "Kaaba stone" as a sacred thing, saying that it "fell from heaven" long ago. This black stonelike object is believed to be a meteor cinder.

Meteors are made up chiefly of iron, or of stone like that which comes from the eruptions of volcanoes. In addition to iron and stone, some meteors contain copper, tin, nickel, aluminum and other elements.

It seems almost certain that some meteors, if not all of them, are bits of broken comets.

PLANE CRASH VICTIMS ARE BURIED IN TEXAS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 14. (AP)—Funeral services with military honors for Flying Cadets Nelson T. Samuels and J. W. Carson, of Kelly field, plane crash victims, were conducted here today.

Cadet Samuel's body will be sent to Baltimore, Md., and later to Arlington cemetery at Washington, D. C., for burial and that of Cadet Carson to Spartanburg, S. C.

The cadets were killed yesterday when their observation ship crashed one mile north of Camp Bullis.

Georgia Fields And Streams

By H. A. Carter.

Quite a number of people have telephoned recently, or where long distance charges prohibit, have written in from the fringes of The Constitution's circulation, to protest against the inroads that flying squirrels are making on their property. I had always considered Glaucomys a most amusing little rodent, and utterly harmless. I have lived in houses where visitors invariably went away with the sensation of having been in a rat hole, but if they were not intimate enough with the family to ask and be told that they were flying squirrels, we didn't mind at all.

Yes, I rather like to hear them go scampering over the rafters, and squeaking merrily in the friendly darkness. I have never minded being kept awake by any animal so long as I know it is not rats. Not that I am morbidly afraid of rats. I am wholesomely afraid of them, because I personally know of nothing more dangerous than a rat. Look at the money spent in this very state recently in an effort to control typhus fever, in a program which was based on the extermination of the rat, an immigrant of the most deadly sort. Think of that dreadful and justly dreaded organism of rat-bite fever, that has a high index of mortality in the tropics. But all this is beside the point.

If your are troubled with flying squirrels, you may control them in this style. Make a few light box traps, and see that they are baited with plenty of peanut butter of the nice, smelly, oily variety. Flying squirrels lose their small heads completely in the face of such a sticky mess. They enter the box traps with no suspicion at all, and from the traps they can be removed to whatever sort of disposition you choose to make of them. I recommend that they be sent to me, for I can use them in my studies on the fauna of the state. In fact, the American Museum of Natural History has already asked me to get some specimens of this particular subspecies of flying squirrel for them. If you want to kill them instead of shipping them or bringing them to me, you will do it most easily by gassing them with carbon bisulfide. If you want more immediate action, and cannot afford the time to build traps, burn a few formaldehyde candles in your attic after calking the ventilators. Results are guaranteed.

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Bonds and preferred stocks were the chief movers in security markets today. Their direction was upward, the loan averages making another new high for 1934.

Common stocks loitered through an uninteresting and generally featureless session. Rails extended their recent gains by fractions to a couple of points at the best, but edged back when other groups failed to follow. Final price changes were mostly fractional, with gains and losses so well divided that the averages closed unchanged. Turnover was 1,400,869 shares.

Although the market had a firm undertone, traders seemed unwilling to venture far from the sidelines pending clarification of labor and other problems. Some of the aviation stocks improved, Douglas being especially busy. Motors were disposed to do better at times.

Some chain store stocks improved quietly as more recent statistics on sales trickled in showing expected gains over a year ago. American Telephone, ex-dividend $2.25, was firm. Steels were somewhat uneven, United States Steel losing nearly a point net.

Midweek trade reports included the Iron Age comment on the steel industry. Estimating current production at 48 1-2 per cent against 49 per cent a week ago, the review said demand from automotive consumers had been checked by "fear of labor troubles." Evidence of increased caution, it found, was also visible in other direction, but farm equipment makers and producers of containers have been able to expand output. The review thought the steel industry seemed disposed to increase wages if it could advance prices to cover the higher costs.

Bonds traded briskly as prices advanced. In the past week or two the investment market has tended to assert an independence of stocks, a reassuring symptom.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—On the basis of technical market considerations, we believe a further extension of current gains depends largely on the industrial group.

BEER & COMPANY—While the impressive strength continues in the bond market, we do not anticipate any sharp recessions in the stock market.

DOBBS & COMPANY—The market is still waiting for Washington developments.

COURTS & COMPANY—Until something definite is known in regard to present labor controversies the market is apt to be a dull, trendless affair, with minor meaningless moves in both directions.

COTTON OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for the adoption of the Bankhead bill and are inclined to view its passage as a help to the market.

BEER & COMPANY—We continue to favor buying cotton on recessions.

COURTS & COMPANY—Until some of the uncertainties in the present political situation have been ironed out we do not expect any pronounced activity and continue to suggest purchases only on substantial declines from present levels.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY—Should the Bankhead bill fail to pass we believe there would be a very sharp break in prices.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

FENNER & BEANE—From now on the wheat market ought to be a weather proposition, with a possible loss in crop outlook if the weather is not fully normal or a little better.

BEER & COMPANY—We continue to believe that the wheat market has little to offer for the time being and would await a more opportune time before making commitments.

LIVINGSTON & COMPANY—There is a growing disposition to consider that the wheat market is quite thoroughly liquidated and that any favorable news would be quickly reflected in higher prices.

CURB LIST HOLDS IN NARROW RANGE

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Utilities and specialties advanced moderately on the curb exchange today. All groups, however, did not follow and final quotations among oils, metals and alcohols were marked by minor irregularity.

Activity was at the recent quiet pace, transfers which approximated 278,000 were about the same as the day previous. Fluctuations generally were narrow throughout. The list performed better during the forenoon and light offerings appearing in the last hour were scattered.

General Tire and Rubber rose 3 1-2 points in a good turnover. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Consolidated Mining each gained 4 in less active dealings. Advances of fractions to around a point were shown by American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Consolidated Aircraft, Mead Johnson, National Container, and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

Income Tax Collections Far Ahead of Last Year

Payments for the first 12 days of the month were $33,073,277 as compared with $10,377,625 in that period last March.

The increase has lifted income tax collections for the fiscal year almost to the level of the last fiscal year's payments.

For 1934 they stood at $391,280,266, compared with $393,717,268 in the corresponding 1933 period.

Metals.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Copper quiet; electrolytic, spot and future 8. Tin barely steady; spot and nearby 54.00; future 54.02. Iron quiet, unchanged. Lead steady; spot New York 4.00; East St. Louis 3.90. Zinc dull; East St. Louis spot 4.37@4.40; future 4.40. Antimony, spot 7.50.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady and unchanged at 12.40. Receipts 376; shipments 808; stocks 205,484.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Cotton fluctuated irregularly today in a quiet market. Differences narrowed somewhat on trade support in the near months and speculative liquidation of later positions. July contracts sold off from 12.39 to 12.30 and closed at 12.34, with the general market closing steady, 1 point higher to 5 points lower.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady but early trade and commission house buying was offset by some southern, Liverpool and wire house selling. During the morning moderate mid-month trade price fixing brought in a little scattered buying, causing the prices to rally to net gains of 2 to 6 points in the more active positions.

Absence of stimulating news with respect to the Bankhead bill appeared to bring in liquidation late in the session when the market established new lows for the day.

May sold off from 12.30 to 12.20 and October from 12.55 to 12.45, involving losses of 3 to 7 points for the list.

Renewed trade price-fixing in the near months developed at the lower levels causing old crop positions to recover most of their loss at the close. January ended at the lowest for the session.

The census bureau report on domestic consumption for February of 477,890 bales against 508,034 in January and 441,203 in February last year was in line with trade expectations.

Part of the late selling in the distant months was credited to southern hedging and also to liquidation of speculative account.

Exports today 26,164 making 5,872,813 so far this season. Port receipts 7,333. United States port stocks 3,234,362.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON SHOWS SLIGHT LOSS

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—(AP) Cotton continued very quiet today with prices keeping in a narrow groove as traders awaited congressional action on the Bankhead bill. Firm stocks supported values early in the day but the market dipped later, closing 3 to 5 points net lower. Census bureau figures showing 477,890 bales of cotton consumed in the short month of February as compared with 508,034 in January and 441,203 in February of last year were bullishly construed.

The market opened a shade easier with Liverpool cables slightly lower than due and sterling about steady. Manchester reported business in cloth and yarns restricted.

Liverpool is due on New Orleans tomorrow 3 to 4 penny points down.

Port receipts 7,333, for week 50,852, for season 6,624,878, last season 7,448,486. Exports 26,199, for week 88,155, for season 5,758,493, last season 5,846,587. Port stock 3,242,931, last year 4,402,924. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 136,177, last year 106,644. Spot sales at southern markets 12,755, last year 16,049.

By VICTOR EUBANK.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Continued demand for corporate and United States government bonds again pushed prices up briskly today in the loans market.

The average for 60 domestic industrial, rail and utility issues advanced one-half point to 85.7, another new peak since 1931. Transfers totalled $19,476,000, par value, the largest aggregate since February 16.

The opinion was general that there would be little interruption to the business advance. Estimates were also made of a slightly more than seasonal advance in carloadings.

Certificates of the new American Waterworks 5s appeared for the first time on the list at prices ranging from 107 1-4 to 107 3-4. They were quite active. Among the livelier gainers of fractions to 2 or more points were some bonds of Alleghany Corporation, Chesapeake Corporation, Chesapeake & Ohio, Florida East Coast, Goodyear, International Hydro-Electric, International Mercantile Marine, Louisville & Nashville, National Dairy, Paramount, Postal Telegraph, Southern Railway, Virginia Railway and Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Most of the treasury securities edged up 1-32 to 5-32 of a point to new highs for the year.

Foreign obligations were without any particular interest.

Electric Production Gains Over Last Year

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Last week's electric power outturn for the country was 18.4 per cent ahead of the same week last year, the Edison Electric Institute reported today. This is one of the largest percentage gains ever reported in official figures giving yearly comparisons, but to some extent it resulted from the fact that at this time last year business was still suffering semi-paralysis from the bank holiday.

The week's output of 1,647,024,000 kilowatt hours was off slightly from the previous week which showed a consumption of 1,658,040,000 kilowatt hours. In the corresponding week of 1933 production was 1,390,607,000 kilowatt hours.

In the southern district output was up 18.5 per cent over last year against a gain in the previous week of 11.7 per cent.

CHICAGO, March 14.—(AP)—Notwithstanding a temporary advance of about a cent a bushel to the highest point since February 17, wheat at the last today underwent declines.

Belief prevailed in various quarters that owing to slackness of general speculative demand it would be impossible to uphold wheat prices when liquidation of May delivery got started in earnest. Increasing reports of bullish domestic crop condtions aided the transient rise of the wheat market, but purchasing was mostly in small lots, and during the late dealings the sellers of wheat here were more numerous than buyers.

Wheat closed easy at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8 lower, corn 1-8 to 5-8 down, oats 1-8 off to 1-8 up, and provisions unchanged to an advance of 2 cents.

Corn and oats took their cue mainly from wheat. Shipping demand here for corn was slack, although Argentine corn presumably for March arrival was quoted in Liverpool today at 60 cents a bushel, up more than 4 cents from yesterday.

Provisions reflected firmness of hog values.

Earnings.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Net profit of the American Sugar Refining Co. in 1933 amounted to $4,801,574 equal to $3.67 a common share, Earl D. Babst, chairman of the board, reported to stockholders today. This compares with net income of $4,504,408, or $3.01 a share in 1932.

"Tariff protection for United States sugar refiners is urgently needed to stem the tide of refined sugar flowing into this country," Mr. Babst stated in his report. He listed total imports as 1,403,379,520 pounds, "enough to supply the needs of 15,000,000 Americans."

Fox Film Corporation reported a profit from operation of $1,410,793 for the 39 weeks since its reorganization beginning April 1 to December 30, 1933, compared with a loss for the 40 weeks ended December 31, 1932, of $7,595,100.

On the basis of 2,436,409 shares of Class "A" and "B" stock outstanding, these earnings amount to 58 cents per shape of which $1,080,015, or 44 cents per share, was earned during the last quarter of the year.

Gross revenues for the 39 weeks ended December 30 amounted to $24,288,824 compared with $20,229,900 for the same period in 1932.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 14.—Net income of the Atlantic Coast Line Company for the year ended December 31, 1933, was reported today as $95,224. Net income for the previous year was $506,476.

All officers and directors of the company were re-elected at the annual meeting.

Market Outlook

By MAX BUCKINGHAM

NEW YORK, March 14.—(UP)—Wall Street tonight waited hopefully for something that will sound off a trading move in the stock market.

There are optimists in the Street who believe prices have moved to levels which warrant a rise. There are others in the Street—mainly among the chart readers and technicians—who feel that even lower levels can be reached before any rising market will get under way.

Today's market was a repetition of those in the last week or so. Prices drifted in an aimless course. At the close the prices were irregular. Railroad shares were stronger. Packing stocks showed some strength. But the main list was without any clear cut position and trading again was light, totaling slightly more than a million and a quarter shares.

CHEERED BY RAILS.

Those optimistically inclined took cheer from the railroad group. Many brokers, technicians and traders have insisted the railroads give the true picture of the market. This group in the Dow Jones Averages today was the only one to advance. None of the gains was particularly impressive but there was fairish trading and the majority of issues showed fractional advances. Some Wall Street observers believe rails, particularly the eastern rails, will benefit by defeat of the St. Lawrence waterways treaty in the senate while the steadily advancing carloadings—with New York Central and Pennsylvania reporting peaks for many months and three years in the former—have given added incentive to buying in these issues.

The various points before the trader for tomorrow included such items as:

Electric power production showed the best gain since 1929, on a year-to-year basis, but this somewhat offset by the fact that business was at a low ebb a year ago during the banking holiday.

STRIKE SITUATION.

The strike situation, particularly as affecting the motor car industry, continued to be "loaded with dynamite," as paraphrased by one Wall Street man. The magazine Iron Age today called attention to this situation as affecting motor car demands for steel.

Opposition developing in several sources to the communications control bill.

The indefiniteness—as Wall Street considers the cause to be—surrounding the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market control bill. Request has been made for $50,000 additional funds to continue the investigation and pick up loose ends, while the ultimate manner in revision of the bill still has not been determined.

Buying in aviation stocks in belief that even if air mail contracts are not turned back to private companies, the government will have to buy new equipment for government planes in order to resume the mail routes.

One administration belief that some of the unemployment problem brought about by dismissal of CWA workers is being solved by absorption of labor in industrial concerns.

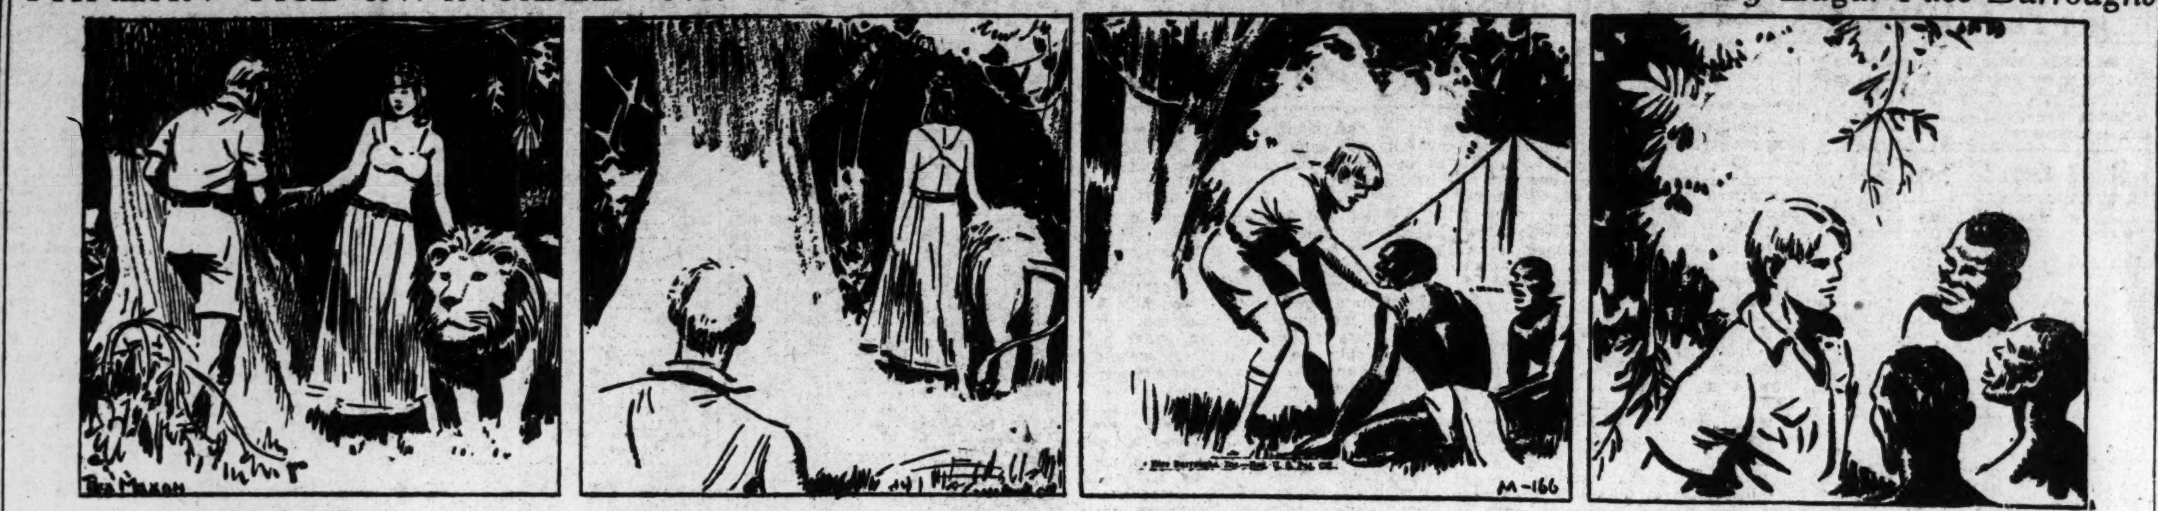
TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 166

By Edgar Rice Burroughs



"Won't you stay at least for today?" asked Colt of La. "No, my friend," she said, "that is impossible. Jad-bal-ja and your blacks could not remain together in the same camp. You would lose your men. Goodbye, Wayne Colt. But remember I have Jad-bal-ja."

From the base camp La knew the trail back to Opar; and as Colt watched her depart he felt a lump rise in his throat; for the beautiful girl and the great lion seemed personifications of loveliness, and strength, and loneliness. With a sigh he turned into camp.

He awoke the blacks who lay sleeping through the midday heat. At the sight of him they were all very excited, for they had been members of his own safari from the coast. At first they were a little frightened until they realized he was indeed flesh and blood.

Since the killing of Dorsky they had had no master, and they confessed to him that they had been considering deserting camp, for they had been terrified by the strange things they had witnessed, and they felt alone and helpless without the protection of their master.

Talmadge To Decide On Downer Case Today

Governor Eugene Talmadge Wednesday heard a plea for executive clemency filed in behalf of John Downer, Elbert county negro, who is under sentence to be electrocuted Friday for an attack on a young white woman in May, 1931.

The governor delayed his decision until this morning, when, at his own request, he will interview the young woman and her husband who were not in the city Wednesday. The young woman was attacked while in the presence of the husband, the attack occuring the night before their marriage.

The plea for commutation was argued by Harry Strozier, of Macon, and Judge Henry C. Hammond, of Augusta, attorneys for Downer, while it was vigorously opposed by Solicitor-General A. Steve Skelton, of Hartwell, who prosecuted the case.

The prison commission has declined to recommend clemency for Downer.

He is sponsored in this drive by the Nash Atlanta Company, distributors for Nash and LaFayette cars, and other Atlanta firms.

CONTINUED GAINS FORESEEN BY FORD

DETROIT, March 14.—(AP)—Henry Ford, who yesterday announced a restoration of the five-dollar-a-day minimum in Ford Motor Company plants, said today that President Roosevelt is "stopping" a good many "harmful things" that would otherwise be "put over on the people."

Predicting that industrial and commercial condition will continue to improve throughout the year, Ford warned against "get-rich-schemes, whether they come from the stock market, the politicians or the so-called 'labor leaders.'"

"I believe the bankers cannot put anything more over on the American people," he said, "at least not in this generation. In the last year, the American people have learned so much about the bankers that they are no longer afraid of them.

"The bankers of the country would like to use the banks and the labor unions and anything else in their control to destroy competition. In the present condition of the country, a good many harmful things would be put over on the people if the president did not stop them.

"Most of these things come into collision with President Roosevelt. He stops them."

F. D. R. TO NAME FIVE TO STUDY CANAL PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt was said by members of the Florida congressional delegation today to have agreed to the appointment of an independent board of five engineers to review the cost of the proposed Atlantic-to-Gulf ship canal.

Senators Fletcher and Trammell and Representatives Sears, Caldwell, Wilcox and Green called upon the president and presented a petition, which they said, was signed by gulf state senators, asking that such a board be named.

The petition, the delegation members said, cited that the army engineers estimated the cost of clearing the canal channel at about $200,000,000 while the engineers of the public works administration placed the cost at approximately $115,000,000.

W. F. Coachman Jr., executive vice president of the national Gulf-Atlantic Ship Canal Association, and H. H. Buckman, association engineer, accompanied the congressional delegation to the White House.

Buckman said the petition pointed out that public works and army engineers had agreed on the fundamental benefits to be derived from such a ship canal but disagreed as to cost.

City Hall Employes Fear Further Cuts

Fred K. Stephens, president of the City and County Public Service Employes' Association, Wednesday issued a statement in which he expressed fear that the compromise budget approved by Mayor James L. Key and members of council will result in further reductions in salaries of municipal employes.

He asserted that an impression is prevalent that city employes have been cut only 3 per cent in the lower brackets and 13 per cent in the brackets of $100 a month or more. Stephens pointed out that many of the laborers have been slashed from 15 to 47 per cent in reduction of time allowed them, and that they can not stand further slashes and make a living.

In addition, he cited large reductions in the personnel of various departments, especially the parks and construction.

SMALL LIQUOR CACHE FOUND IN BARBER SHOP

Liquor concealed in a wall trap hidden by a calendar, and under the cover of a towel on a bench, was confiscated Wednesday night by the Atlanta police "wrecking crew" in a raid on a barbershop and pressing club on Houston street near Ivy, according to police.

Detectives E. S. Acree, Leo Nahlick, J. D. Buice and F. B. Watson reported finding six quarts and a half-gallon in the wall trap, and six pints under the towel, as well as 250 empty pint bottles and 40 empty quart bottles. They arrested J. E. Chapman, 28, of 1094 North avenue, N. E., a barber, and Charlie Smith, 26, negro, of 326 1-2 Old Wheat street, a presser, on charges of possessing whisky. Both defendants made bonds of $100 each.

Several dramatic critics in the west commented favorably on the production.

Chicagoan Is Named Democratic Treasurer

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—Walter J. Cummings, Chicago banker, is to be the next national treasurer of the democratic party and within a week will get started on his task of reducing the $500,000 party deficit.

His acceptance of the post was announced tonight by Postmaster-General James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee. He will succeed Frank C. Walker, of New York, who resigned several months ago to become executive director of the national emergency counsel.

Before appointing Cummings, Farley offered the job to Major John S. Cohen, of Georgia, who declined. Cohen said tonight he was sure "there could have been no more admirable appointment" and that it would "meet with the hearty approval of democrats throughout the country."

2 Filipinos Jailed In Extortion Scheme

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP)—The arrest of two Filipinos and search for a third involved in an extortion and kidnaping plot against Louis Hager, of St. Louis, and his 3 1-2-year-old son was announced today by the justice department.

Manuel C. Lopez and Andrew Haime were seized in New Orleans today, while George Cubano, the third, said by justice officials, to be implicated by Lopez's confession, was sought in St. Louis.

The similarity of the handwriting of Lopez, a former employe of the C. Hager & Sons Hinge Manufacturing Company, and the penmanship in the extortion letters, was the clue.

JUDICIAL REFORMS URGED BY CUMMINGS

Attorney-General Advocates Action To Avoid Breakdown of Agencies.

NEW YORK, March 14.—(AP)—Drastic revision of judicial procedure under the guidance of the supreme court to remedy a "distressing breakdown of the law enforcement agencies in many parts of our land" was urged tonight by Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings.

Addressing the silver jubilee banquent of the New York County Lawyers' Association, the attorney-general declared he was authorized to say such a method of reform carried the indorsement of President Roosevelt.

Cummings said he has suggested to house and senate committees legislation to effect this reform.

"I am persuaded that if the federal courts could reform their procedure and render it not only simpler but more responsive to actual needs," the attorney-general said, "the example of such a system would have a powerful and corrective effect upon the practice in the states.

"Perhaps the most vital objection is that the federal courts are tied to the antiquated system of statutory regulation now generally prevailing in the various states. Reform and improvement are, therefore, hopelessly stalled at the outset."

The cabinet member cited the practice in America for more than a century of permitting the supreme court to regulate practice and procedure in equity cases.

"The results have been highly satisfactory," he added. "If this power could be extended to actions at law, the court would be in a position to unite the equity and law practice so as to secure one form of civil action and procedure for both. This would constitute a legal reform of the first magnitude."

Three Convicts Flee Cobb County Gang

A white man and two negroes late Wednesday afternoon escaped from the Cobb county chain gang under fire from guards as they leaped from a truck near Marietta on the Powder Springs road, according to a report to Atlanta police by Warden John Hood, of Cobb county.

Hood said that the three men were trailed for three miles with dogs but that they made good their escape. The convicts who got away were: B. A. Mullins, 20, of Rome, four to eight years for highway robbery; Walter Gibson, 21, negro, of DeKalb county, 13 to 17 years for burglary, and Elmer Prestley, 35, negro, of Cobb county, 12 months for a misdemeanor. The trio filed the shackles so that the iron broke easily when they were ready for the dash, police were told.

FRAUD IS CHARGED TO AIR MAIL LINES BY LABOR SPEAKER

Charging that fraud on the part of air mail operators brought about the curtailment of service, R. L. Johnson, business agent for the machinists' union of the American Federation of Labor, spoke before the regular meeting of the federation of trades in Atlanta Wednesday night and scored air line executives for "padding pay rolls and personnel records for a showing to the government."

Mr. Johnson said that because operators had "padded pay rolls in their reports to the government, unreasonable demands were made and secured." He stated that the operators had reported wages to the government which were from 40 to 100 per cent higher than the actual wage paid to mechanics and operators.

The regular meeting also was featured by the installation of officers elected at the last meeting and a speech by C. W. Bolick, of the United Textile Workers of America, who condemned "the stretch-out method which has been employed by American labor in recent months."

MISS. HIGHWAY BODY IS FLAYED BY CONNER

Governor Refuses To Approve $10,000,000 PWA Road Loan Bill.

JACKSON, Miss., March 14.—(AP) In a scorching arraignment of the state highway commission, Governor Sennett Conner today informed members of the Mississippi legislature, assembled in joint session, of his refusal to aprove the $10,000,000 PWA highway loan bill.

As soon as the governor finished speaking and the house session resumed, Representative Fielding Wright, of Rolling Fork, chairman of the committee on highway financing, moved that the house override the veto and fix consideration of the motion as special order of business tomorrow. The motion passed with only a few scattered "nays."

A two-third majority of both houses is necessary to override the veto.

The message contained sharp criticism of State Superintendent of Education W. F. Bond, who is seeking an increase in the common school appropriation for the current biennium.

The governor suggested that the legislature investigate the highway department, and "adopt legislation to compel efficiency and economy in this department, and to confine its activities to the purposes for which it was created. In other words," said the governor, "make them build roads instead of political machines. If you do this you will render the state a real service and may eliminate the danger of our losing federal monies, as was threatened last year because of the inefficiency of this department."

That a veto also awaits the homestead exemption bill, which is being enrolled and enclosed after passage by both houses, was strongly hinted in the message when the governor declared "thousands are losing their homes at tax sales to pay bond issues. You have proposed to give the average home-owner a reduction of about $3 on his tax bill through a so-called homestead exemption, and to supply revenue displaced by this nominal exemption you propose to mortgage his home with a bond issue."

SOUTH CAROLINA SOLONS FIGHT ON APPROPRIATIONS

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 14.—(AP) While the senate wrangled over a motion to recommit the $6,947,000 appropriation bill, the house today plunged into its calendar in an attempt to clear the way for sine die adjournment as soon as the pivotal supply measure can get its final approval.

In the face of what appeared to be another senate deadlock on money matters, the house took stock of its accomplishments to date and found that only five of the 46 counties have yet to introduce their supply bills for the next fiscal year.

Before becoming embroiled in the appropriations fight, the senate was prevented from taking immediate action on a joint resolution to extend the time for the payment of property taxes to May 1.

An objection by Senator Hughs, of Oconee, carried over consideration of the resolution until a later time. The taxes are scheduled to go into execution tomorrow. The resolution was passed by the house more than two weeks ago.

No sooner had the finance committee's new $6,947,811 appropriation bill been presented to the senate than it came in for a double-barreled attack. The committee bill proposed to raise state employers and teachers 10 per cent by slashing departmental allotments, and to leave the present six-month school term as it is.

A dissenting minority of the committee offered a motion to recommit the bill with specific instructions to cut it to the 1933 basis of about $5,400,000 and leave an estimated surplus of $1,600,000 to provide for an eight month school term, repealing district property taxes.

Pending before the senate also is a counter-proposal by Senator Purdy, of Jasper, to table the committee bill and to work out another measure on the senate floor to "come within revenue." Senator Purdy said a previous $6,784,000 bill had been recommitted after objections that it exceeded revenue, and that the committee had returned with a bill $164,000 higher.

FRANCE YIELDS POINT IN ARMS STALEMATE

Shows Tendency To Retreat From Adamantine Stand on Guarantees.

PARIS, March 14.—(AP)—France will propose a four-point arms convention in reply to the recent British disarmament plan.

A note now being drafted by the foreign affairs committee, it was learned tonight on reliable authority, will accept an arms treaty, providing that:

First, German storm troopers are included in any count of the reich's soldiers.

Second, France will not be asked to disarm immediately if the reich is granted the right to rearm.

Third, serious guarantees will be given that the convention be carried out faithfully.

Fourth, that the convention be concluded shortly because many countries are already speedily rearming.

Failing in these reservations, the note hints, it was said, that France will be unable to budge unless Great Britain offers to come to the aid of France in case of attack.

VIENNA, March 14.—(AP)—Rumors of arms shipments from Italy to Hungary caused excitement here today, even though an official communique branded them "products of malicious fantasy."

An independent investigation, meanwhile, revealed that a trainload of armed cars passed through Sillian and Lienz on March 8. Another train, also eastbound, passed through Lienz the following day.

This train of 24 cars included 20 cars of artillery and four cars of armored automobiles. Because they were going east, some who saw them assumed they were bound for Hungary.

It had not been established tonight, however, whether they actually crossed the Hungarian frontier.
